DOCTOR PHELPS APPEALS FOR CLASS-CONSCIOUS TEACHERS' COLLEGES

Youngest Child No Longer Silent

Dr. Phelps, Professor of School Administration, the George Peabody College, addressed a special chapel at 2:05 on Tuesday afternoon of last week.

This noted educator stated that recently he had addressed many audiences of students and faculties of Teachers' Colleges. In each instance, the same motive had actuated him. "For some time," he said, "there has been a growing belief that we need to develop a class conscience, that is, to have more of a belief in teachers' colleges, more of a pride in the things for which they stand, to have less inclination to envy older institutions who are revered, and to ever stand ready to sound the needs of the teachers' colleges. The youngest child in a large family remembers that he must sit back and listen to the virtues of the older brothers and sisters as they are extolled by a fond parent; he knows that he will naturally take the clothes that the older ones have outgrown; he takes what is left after the others have been provided for. So it is in the family of higher institutions. Teachers' colleges have been the youngest child in the school family; their experience has not been the same as that of the others. But, now, the time has come when the teachers' college has come into its own; it has come to stay. If it expects the things to which it has not been accustomed, if it expects to occupy the place of big brother in the school family, class consciousness must be developed."

An interesting history of the teachers' college was outlined briefly. For a time, ancient records were searched, but no trace of this type of college could be found. Then, in France, a little old priest was found who taught the children of the poor. One day he became obsessed with the idea of teaching these children better (Continued on last page)

DR. McCOY AT SPECIAL CHAPEL

Dr. McCoy, Head of the Department of Elementary Education at Columbia University, delivered a very interesting lecture to the students of the East Texas State Teachers College at a special chapel on Thursday at 3:00 o'clock. The subject of the address was "Modern Education," a most appropriate and interesting one for a college such as this, engaged in preparing young people for the life work of teaching. "There are three primary characteristics of modern education," said Dr. McCoy. "First is the recognition of the fact that every one of the many children we deal with has a personality all its own. The second is that every one has individual differences that must be considered. The third is that the subjects taught should appeal to the child's interests."

ENTERTAINMENT JULY THIRTEENTH

On July 13th, Mr. Noah Bielhartz, impersonator, reader and entertainer, will render a program in the auditorium of the college. The program will begin at eight p. m. There will be no admission charges, but children must be accompanied by their parents and not permitted to run up and down the aisles of the auditorium during the rendition of the program. Mr. Bielhartz is an entertainer of great reputation and the general public is assured of an excellent evening. Everybody is cordially invited to be present.

FANNIN COUNTY HOLDS DEBATE

The Fannin County Club held its regular meeting on June 28th, in M. 5, at seven o'clock. There were fifty members present. A very interesting program was rendered. It consisted of the following items:

- Reading—Resa Reynolds. Vocal Duet—Misses Aovel and Earnestine Claiborne. Extemporaneous debate, on the question: Resolved that all Old Maids should have a Parasol and a Cat.— Affirmative— Misses Vivian Browning and Odie Lee Boyd; Negative— Messrs. Omer Cline and J. Hugh Fletcher.

Honorable Judge Hays Holman gave the decision in favor of the affirmative.

The debate furnished much merriment, and the program of entertainment was concluded by the serving of delicious refreshments consisting of Dixie-cup-ice-cream and Eskimo pies.

Members who failed to put in their appearance at this meeting missed an evening of much fun. Everyone is appealed to rally up on Tuesday next July 12th, at seven o'clock.

NEW BUS TERMINAL HAS OPENING

On the evening of June 23, at Greenville, Texas, the formal opening of the new Bus Terminal was held. The Terminal is located at 3026 Lee Street, just east of the Katy station.

The station is built with all modern conveniences with a large waiting room, drug store, and bus drive. There is built in connection with the terminal a modern hotel. The drug store is under the supervision of Clark's and will be known as Clark's No. 2. The hotel is under the management of Henry English. The men with chief interests in the terminal are: J. H. Peyton, Mr. Lockmiller, Will White, and Henry English.

The formal opening consisted of orchestra music, talks by prominent men of Greenville, inspection of the hotel and terminal, and refreshments served by the drug store.

This new terminal is among the few large terminals, and shows the great progress of the bus business.

READING DEPT. PRESENTS THREE ONE-ACT PLAYS

The Reading Department presented three one-act plays in the College Auditorium, Friday evening, July 1st.

The first number was Dix's "Alison's Lad." It is a story of a group of soldiers of the Cavalier and Roundhead parties. The action centers in the deed of "Tom Winwood," who has broken his parole. Condemned to death, he shows, at first, the swank spirit of his cowardly father, but in the end proves himself the brave son of a wonderful mother—in truth, "Alison's Lad." The characters were presented by Messrs. Berry, Harville, Howell, Sellers, Williams, and Thomas. The action was well worked out, the interest sustained. The work of all was good. Mr. Thomas played a difficult role with deep feeling and fine understanding.

The second number was a "Modern Mystery." Mr. Ben Patrick played the part of "a gentleman," in the midst of a mysterious situation, very cleverly. Norman Galyon was the "perfect butler." In this instance, perfection included keeping the mas-

SPORTS WIN THREE IN SUCCESSION

E. T. Sports took their third consecutive game yesterday, winning easily from Quinlin by a score of 8-2. The Sports were expecting to be forced to the limit to beat the highly touted team at Quinlin as reports were numerous as to the number of consecutive games and the total number of games won. They looked formidable enough and the lowly Sports trembled as they took their workout.

The game opened up with a bang and before the smoke of the first inning had cleared away it was not difficult to see that the "Invincible" Quinlinites were doomed to a disappointing afternoon. The Sports were going great guns, and any ball that attempted to get to earth within the enclosure found a sport parked under it. Scott Williamson, who was doing the hurling for the Sports, had the boys guessing just what was going to happen next, and the number of times he was in trouble wouldn't worry a pitcher a great deal. He pitched a great game and issued up (Continued on page 2)

AEROPLANE RACE INTEREST GROWS

It was announced at the various Sunday Schools on Sunday morning last that the Church of Christ plane had far outrun the others on the previous Sunday and so had reached the first stopping place in the flight to Alaska. Evangelist Don Hockaday, who has every confidence in the plane of his church being the first to reach Nome, Alaska, has been instructing his crew during last week and this week end the secrets of that fire which fails not in the most adverse atmospheric conditions. The relative attendances of the five competing schools were:

- Church of Christ
- Presbyterian
- Christian Church
- Methodist
- First Baptist.

With such a decided advantage in the first lap of the race, the Church of Christ will call for a tremendous effort on the part of her rivals to force her from securing the coveted trophy. The running with the other entrants is so close, however, that it would be unsafe to suggest that the First (Baptist) shall be last, or what the final positions will be. Tune up the plane of your choice for the last flight and, all together, let's win the goal!

FORMER STUDENT OF E. T. MARRIES

Miss Louise Ogletree, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Ogletree, of Oakland, Texas, and Mr. Billy McElroy of Mount Pleasant, were married at Oakland at 7:45 on June 11th, says an announcement just received. The Rev. L. E. Strickland, pastor of the Memorial Baptist church of Oakland, officiated. After the ceremony, the happy couple returned to the home of the bride's parents, where a crowd of friends had gathered to congratulate them. (Continued on last page)

PRIZE OF $100 FOR BEST ONE-ACT PLAY

In lines with the purposes and ideals for which it was founded, the Southern Memorial Association of Dallas, Texas, offers to any lineal descendant of a Confederate Soldier, who is a student in a Texas university or college, a prize of one hundred dollars for a one-act play written around some character or incident of Southern history.

RULES OF CONTEST

Plays shall not require more than thirty minutes for production, nor more than one set of scenery. All rights shall be reserved to the author. The Association reserves only the right to produce the play, if desired. Plays must be typed on one side of paper only, sized 8 1/2x11. Copying ribbon must be used, but a carbon copy of play should be retained. Paper must not be folded, but inserted flat in proper sized strong envelope. Pages shall be bound together at (Continued on last page)

SENIOR CLASS OF SUMMER, 1927

The Senior Class which is to graduate in August of this year met in M. 5 for a business meeting on Wednesday last. After some discussion, it was decided to have Mr. White send in the order for rings and pins on July 1st. It was mentioned that the class needs to devote its attention in the near future to the having of a good time, socially.

The President of the class is Mr. S. O. Loring; the Secretary-Treasurer is Miss Gladys King. In view of the fact that apparently but few of the seniors read the bulletin board, the announcement is hereby made that the class will meet every Wednesday at 9:25 a. m. in M. 5. Each member should keep this in mind and attend regularly, because there are several business matters transacted in such meetings that it is very important for him to know. The class moreover points out that the seniors are lacking in the right kind of class-spirit as long as the majority of its members fail to put in a regular attendance at class meetings. The membership is urged to employ the few meetings that remain to it to demonstrate its unity and fellowship.

CHURCH OF CHRIST REVIVAL MEETING

W. Don Hockaday, Evangelist, is conducting a series of revival meetings at the Church of Christ during this week. Services are held from 9:30 to 10:45 each morning and from 8:00 to 9:00 each evening. The church will appreciate the presence and help of the students and faculty of this institution at the various services. Good attendances have been made during the meetings of last week, but it is hoped that they will be much improved upon this week.

DELIVERS THE OFFICIAL WELCOME OF EAST TEXAS TO ALL TEXAS SPECIAL

THRILLS AND ROARS OF BAPTIST HOBOS

Not to be daunted by the heavy rain which fell on Friday last, the Baptist Young People's Union held their Hobo party exactly as it had been scheduled with the exception that they remained in the old Gym instead of proceeding therefrom to the City Park. A very large crowd assembled, each person bringing with him, or her, a huge barrel full of overflowing with the peppiest pep to be found in East Texas. The reports say that—

Daniel Boone
Was a rare old coon,
With his funny old pants and hat on Palmore Curry
Was all in a scurry
As he put the several games on.
Mr. Chism
Could amuse and tease 'em
Were they standing or sitting;
But 'twas old Dean Smith
Was really the pith—
He brought their sides near splitting.

After various games had been indulged in with much vigor and mirth, ice cream cones were served to over two hundred guests, and an exceptionally delightful evening was brought to a close.

LATIN STUDENTS ENTHUSIASTIC

The S. P. Q. R. (Latin Club) held its regular two-weekly meeting on Wednesday afternoon of last week.

Several new members were added to the already large roster. The Latin Department has been rapidly growing during the last few years, due to the manner in which the institutions have made the study interesting and have shown both the need for and importance of a good knowledge of this very old, but still vital language from which the English tongue has derived such a large proportion of its words.

An interesting program was presented. Miss Bradford talked on the mythology of Virgil. Mrs. Blankenship read some amusing Latin poems. Next followed an educative puzzle contest, directed by Miss Maud Anderson, and a Latin cross-word puzzle. Many brain cells that long since had lain dormant were stimulated into activity. The club appeals to its membership to endeavor to secure a hundred per cent attendance at each of its gatherings.

DEAN WRAY'S IMPRESSIONS OF THE EAST

So many people have asked me about my experience in The East during the past year that it seems well to write down some of them in a simple way that may be read by all who care to read them. I shall not undertake to give such details as would make a scholarly treatise on life in the East, or even a minute account of life at Yale. Such books are to be found in abundance, written by men who have given years of their lives studying for that one purpose. What I shall try to do will involve only a few things which would ordinarily attract the attention of a man or woman first coming in contact with them.

First of all we drove our car to New Haven last September, and returned with the same car this June. We did this simply for the purpose of having the experiences that would come from such a trip. We had rather often been over the same territory on the train, but we thought a trip in an automobile would show us (Continued on page 3)

E. T. Proud Of Its Popular Head

At 8 o'clock on the evening of Independence Day, to the strains of beautiful music provided by the town band, there steamed into Longview depot the All Texas Special, returning from its extended tour of the northern and eastern states of the Union. The East Texas Chamber of Commerce had decided that someone should deliver to the representatives of Texas a message of welcome from the eastern section of the state, and readily determined to honor Dr. Whitley, our worthy President, with this great mission. When the instrumental tones had ceased, Mr. Whitley addressed the Texas delegation in the following language: "My Friends:

"Texas has watched your every movement through the North and East. It feels that you have carried its spirit in a very happy manner to other parts of this great Nation. Nothing contributes more to National solidarity than a correct understanding of the entire country's resources, economic, social and civic. You have put emphasis upon those things which relate to Texas that ought to be emphasized and you have dispelled many incorrect notions about our people and the kind of lives they live. "The North and East have too long thought of us as wearing high heel boots and spurs, the usual broad brimmed hat, red bandana handkerchief, and the deadly pistol. This view of Texas has hurt us materially; it is not typical of Texas and never has been. You have helped the people in other sections to know that Texas is the greatest State in the Union, greatest in area, greatest in cotton production, greatest in wool production, greatest in railroad mileage, greatest in live stock production, and greatest in its historical traditions. You have carried the message to our friends and neighbors in the North and East that we of Texas are rich in natural resources, that our (Continued on page 2)

METHODISTS PLAN RALLY JULY 10TH

The Methodist Sunday School is engaged upon a great campaign to secure an attendance on Sunday morning next, July 10th., of twelve hundred persons. A similar drive was made on Easter Sunday of last year and gave the gratifying result of making a record attendance—1426. In view of this fact it should not be a difficult matter in the midst of a summer term when the college registration exceeds seventeen hundred to rally twelve hundred to school on Sunday next. It is necessary to this end that every one connected with the church shall do his bit in the matter. A car will be sent to convey anyone who is otherwise unable to get to church. A committee will be stationed at the parsonage on Sunday morning to deal with all transportation inquiries.

COMMERCE PUBLIC MEN SHOW FINE SPIRIT

Everyone who is interested in the education of the young must very highly appreciate the fine public spirit manifested by the Lions and Rotarian Clubs of our city. These men have caused their desire to rightly guide and care for the youth of Commerce to materialize in the form of a ball league. The games of this league, conducted under the supervision of tactful men who are awake to the unique characteristics of the adolescent, cannot but contribute to the inculcation in these young people of that spirit of fairness, team-play, and fellowship without which the true democracy can never exist.

The clubs further propose to put on in the fall a "Go-to-School" campaign. The whole city will be canvassed for the purpose of ascertaining what boys and girls of school and college age are not in some educational institution. The reasons for such absence will also be inquired into, and an endeavor will be made to secure that as many as possible of these shall resume their institutional education.

NEXT EDITION OF THE EAST TEXAN

In view of the fact that the final examinations of the term take place on the 15th and 16th instant, there will be no further edition of the East Texan until Wednesday, July 20th.

three well scattered hits, two of these being obtained by the center fielder who was an old A. and M. star.

Sneed started the hurling for Quinlin, but found the going too strenuous and retired at the close of the third stanza in favor of Watson, who proved more effective than did Sneed.

This game was the third in which the Sports have participated, and, at this writing three games are checked up in the win column. Fairlie fell victim in the first game by a score of three to two. Durham was next and obtained two points while the Sports were collecting ten, and then the "unbeatable" Quinlan aggregation were able to garner two circuits after the Sports let down in the ninth frame. It will readily be seen that the defensive work of the Sports is no bad since two runs is about all that they will allow.

The Sports will be playing some home games within the next few days and we hope to get some real backing from our homefolks. Watch for the signs on the walks. We are trying to get competition all the time, and will appreciate information regarding unbeatable teams.

FRENCH CLUB HAS HONOR GUEST

Le Cercle Francais was honored Friday evening with the presence of Mrs. Germaine Williamson of Dallas. Mrs. Williamson is a Parisian, now Professor of French in North Dallas High School. In the summer session of 1926, she taught French in the East Texas State Teachers College.

Mrs. Williamson was the guest of Miss Laura Topham while she was in Commerce, and was entertained by her Friday evening with a bridge party. Friends of Mrs. Williamson came early in the evening to play bridge; after several games the members of Le Cercle Francais gathered for their weekly meeting. Mrs. Williamson was welcomed by the President. A short French play was given, followed by slides of Paris with the lecture given by Miss Topham.

Over forty members and guests were present.

coal and petroleum products are the equal of any on earth; that our timber lands and their products are as valuable as can be found in America; that our agricultural industries are superior to any to be found between the great oceans on the East and West and between the Great Lakes on the North and the Gulf of Mexico on the South; that our bankers and business men are ready and willing and anxious to invite foreign capital to this empire State for further industrial development; that our citizenship is a God fearing citizenship, giving to every man the freedom to worship God as he pleases; that our educational system is coping with the problems of ignorance and superstition in an adequate manner; that our citizenship are cultured and refined; that our government is honest and fearless; that a public office is a public trust; and, that he who serves mankind must be actuated by the motive that he profits most who serves best.

"You have performed your mission with dignity, dispatch, and decorum; you have lived and acted the spirit of Texas and now it becomes my very pleasant duty to welcome you on behalf of the East Texas Chamber of Commerce and the people of this section of Texas. East Texas has given birth to some of the greatest men and women of the Lone Star State, and when we remember their immortal deeds, we are reminded that tonight we are standing on sacred ground—but what part of Texas is not hallowed ground? We welcome you home with love and affection and we of East Texas now express the hope that all Texans will unite in one grand effort to make and keep Texas first in the industries, first in natural production, first in economic advancement, first in educational value, first in spiritual development, and first in the patriotic defense of the noble principles on which our government is founded."

In connection with a membership drive which it has been conducting, the East Texas Chamber of Commerce has offered prizes approximating to $12,000. Dr. Whitley was requested to judge the work of the various contestants and performed this function during his visit to Longview. He also addressed the Rotary Club there.

ter guessing. John Old was the "unexpected guest"—he solved the mystery and delighted the audience. The third number, Clement's "Moontide", is a powerful study of the gripping power of fear. "Sniffles," the dope fiend, well portrayed by Mr. Murphy, runs the gamut of emotional reaction to the fear of "Big Bill,"—of the sea,—of "Hank's" ghost, and of his own guilty conscience. "Big Bill," skillfully acted by Mr. Roach, has no fear of anything. In the end, however, the sea changes him.

Mrs. Estes' orchestra furnished delightful music.

Miss Webster had planned to give a three-act play this summer. The smallness of the attendance on Friday night has led her to believe that the students do not care for plays enough to warrant the work of production. However, since a promise has been given to our own Mr. Whitley for a program as a benefit for the City's Park, there will be presented on Friday evening of this week a Big Time Vaudeville. Dancing, singing, a playlet, Vaudeville sketches, and all the charm of a Big Time Show will be in this program. It will be run off in record time—there will be no waits between numbers. It is hoped that all students will plan to attend the Big Show!

DEAN WRAY'S IMPRESSION OF THE EAST

 at least some parts of the country, and some scenes, that we had not before come in contact with. We were right in our guess. Long before we arrived in New Haven, to say nothing of our return to Commerce, we were thoroughly convinced that when compared with sight-seeing on the train traveling in a good car so far surpasses anything we had experienced that it seemed we were traveling through an entirely different country.

On our way up in September we went by way of Hot Springs, Little Rock, Cairo, Vandalia, Arkon, Dayton, Pittsburg, Wheeling, Washington City, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Trenton, Jersey City, New York City, arriving at New Haven on the ninth day after our start from Commerce. Many of the cities through which we passed have connected with them traditional and historical incidents so interesting as to make a story worth reading in each case. But in the articles there would be little else possible were we to stop for the story of the various cities.

One thing I had thought to tell was our experience on the Mississippi River. We drove our car into a large steam ferry boat at Byrds Point, turned it over to the Captain of the vessel, and ate a large watermelon while the car and ourselves were being taken up the river some five or six miles to Cairo, Illinois. But our experience in this seems so flat and uninteresting now in comparison with the experience of a man and woman with whom we talked only a few days ago that it hardly seems worth while to tell of our river experience.

To those of us who have always been on the prairies of Texas a trip through the mountains of the eastern part of the United States would furnish a thrilling experience not easily imagined, nor soon forgotten when once realized. While we had long been used to mountains, we shall never forget our climb from the west, our stop on the summit, and our going down the east slope.

The first city in which we made more than a very brief stop was the National Capital. We drove over much of the city, saw many places not possible to see from a railway, and visited many places commonly visited by tourists. A few of the most interesting were the Capitol, the Congressional Library, Washington Monument, Mirror Lake, and Lincoln Memorial. As is usual with tourists, we went to the top of the Washington Monument, from which we had a most excellent view of the entire city. Of course we went into the Lincoln Memorial, a wonderful pile of marble erected by a grateful people to the memory of our first martyr President.

Our next stop of any importance was in Philadelphia. There we visited the great exposition, the Sesqui-centennial, organized for the purpose of commemorating the 150th year of our national independence. We saw the buildings in which the old Continental Congress met. We visited the Hall where George Washington took the oath of office. We reverently placed our hands on the Old Liberty Bell, now resting in Liberty Hall, guarded by two soldiers day and night.

On our way from Philadelphia to New York City we crossed the Delaware River where Washington's army crossed through floating ice to attack the enemy. We, however, were far more fortunate than were the army, for we had a great new bridge over which we went safely. We crossed the Hudson River into New York up at 167th Street at Dikeman's Ferry. If you have been in New York City after nightfall, you can get some notion of the seeming utter confusion we encountered as soon as we landed on the Island. It seemed that one point to block our progress. However, we were fortunate in falling in with a man who was well acquainted with the city. He generously proposed that we follow him until we were safe on the great Boston Post Road, a highway that leads from New York to Boston.

This briefly tells the story of our "anabasis." Our "katabasis" was to us even more interesting. In order to pick up a friend who was coming down with us, we came through New York City. We could have gone across the western part of Massachusetts, approaching Albany from the east. But it was quite fortunate for us that we came as we did, for in going up the Hudson River to Albany, we crossed the river over the famous "Bear Mountain" bridge, a far more wonderful structure than the famous bridge over Niagara River just below the falls. Our way lay up the great Storm King Trail along the west bank of the Hudson. We passed through the campus of West Point where, as is said in the East, our future generals are educated. This drive along the west bank of the Hudson is one of the most beautiful drives I have ever seen.

At Albany we turned west over the new highway, the famous Cherry Valley Route, a distance of about 130 miles to Syracuse. The highway is so straight that it is claimed it does not vary as much as five miles from an air line the whole distance. Along this road we found the country made famous by the writings of Cooper, especially in his Leather Stockings Tales. Here, too, was the beautiful lake country made dear to us by "Hiawatha." The country here is not quite so widely beautiful as was that part just east of the Hudson near Tarrytown, where Irving wrote his Sleepy Hollow stories. There we saw the little creek over which the headless horsemen was wont to ride his ghastly steed. But we cannot linger over these interesting spots too long if we are to get back to Texas on time.

From Syracuse we went north to Rochester, and thence to Niagara Falls where we again heard the roar of the mighty cataract after a period of twenty-five years. Here, too, we met the Canadian customs officers, who asked us all manner of questions about our business, our nativity, our intentions, etc. However, since we answered all these questions to their satisfaction, we were permitted to go on our way toward the west of Ontario. On leaving Canada we were met by a set of customs officers on the American side more insistent by far than those mentioned above. Here we crossed the Saint Clair River into the United States, passing through Detroit on our way to Chicago. From Chicago through St. Louis, Springfield, Joplin, Venita, Muskogee, Denison, Greenville, and Commerce was a matter of only three days drive. The entire trip down had covered 2,160 miles, requiring seven and one-half days to make the drive.

In this scattering paper I have tried to give some notion of the trip to and from the East. In a future number of the East Texan I will discuss some phase of my work in Yale.

 methods in study and play. The enthusiastic soul was not satisfied here, he sought to embed the germ of the idea in the rich in order that their children might enjoy the same opportunities that he offered the poor. It is true that the germ lodged, but growth was slow. While this was taking place another idea was developed. To advocate teaching children, not subjects, seemed a laborious task because of public sentiment. But, as in the first case, the germ of the idea passed over by force of the genius of the little French priest. Then came the first division of the first teachers' college. Once the idea was grasped, the first real division of teachers' training schools was destined to revolutionize education, to set aside teaching as a goal worthy of attaining. Pestalassi's idea persisted and we find traces of it in 1835. Two or three years later, our present movement began in America. Through the period of the Civil War, a few colleges were found. Then came a fall in teaching. Private enterprise came to take its place, and not until 1890 did the public resume an effort in building teachers' training schools. Not until the beginning of the present century did the public normal come into its own. In 1903-04, the U. S. expended almost $100,000 for teacher training. In the years 1923-12, there were more students enrolled in the three teachers' colleges of Tennessee than there were in any of the universities of that state. This, Dr. Phelps asserted, he did not use as an array against any of the universities. It is not a condition peculiar to Tennessee. Since this is true, the youngest child (the teachers' college) should cease to listen to the virtues of the older children as they are extolled by the proud parent (the public). It is time we took pride in our own achievement and deserved what is served to the older brother. Dr. Phelps was a member of a committee that worked on an extended survey of educational systems in bordering states. Noted schools were visited to see what was expended in comparison with schools of Tennessee. In each case Tennessee fell short; it was time to move for the protection of the little brother of the big educational system. The only logical thing was done. The exact situation was reviewed and the deplorable condition was presented to the public. When the legislature met the next time, the teacher training grant was increased by 50 per cent. This was the result of the youngest child telling its needs in loud tones provided for—the result of an increasing class consciousness and self-confidence. "The day is not far distant when students will talk with all pride and earnestness of the wonders achieved by the baby brother. This situation can be brought about if the student of the teachers' college will take his position rightly and not keep quiet when the public extols the virtues of older institutions, but contend for those things that are rightly and justly his. It is time to begin to believe in ourselves and to develop pride, belief, and class consciousness in a state teachers' college. If E. T. students carry this message into the homes they represent, their effort will bear fruit in the Forty-first Session. Are you contented to be a little brother?—if not, believe in yourself, sound your opposition in loud tones!"

 late them. During the evening, amid a shower of rice, old shoes, and the like, Mr. and Mrs. McElroy left for the honeymoon trip, in which they have been visiting Corsicana, Fort Worth, Dallas, and points in Oklahoma. They will be at home in Mount Pleasant after July 15th. Miss Ogletree is a former student of E. T. where she finished her sophomore year with honors. She has completed her Junior year at Baylor University, Waco, this spring. Whilst there, she was a prominent member of the Daily Lariat staff and various other campus activities. She took part in all religious activities and holds a diploma in every department of the Young People's work, as fostered by the Baptist church, having taught Sunday school and B. Y. P. U. Normal work in the Rusk County Association last summer. Mr. McElroy did Sophomore and Junior work at the State University. He is now employed as cotton buyer by the Lockhart Cotton Co., and is stationed at Mount Pleasant. He has the honor of having made the highest record in the cotton grading course in Tyler Commercial College, where he took his training in cotton classing.
