Which influenced one's personality more, heredity or environment? At a recent faculty party one Dr. Johnson's little girl said to another small child, "Come let me show you about." In this case we would mark a tally for both sides.

We hear that Grandpa is about to take the cows. What cows?

Mary Katherine Griffin wants a roomie.

There are many causes for car wrecks such as one hand driving, bright lights, and divided attention. We would like to ask Miss Allen the cause of her collision on Live Oak last week.

Cupids claimed four more victims this week end.

From a large number of interviews with students last week we have the following reasons for not returning to school: Love affairs, at home, homework, finance, hot weather, already smart enough, tired of this occupation, politics, etc. Some are not returning on account of recent marriages.

Freeshian Le Noir becomes smaller and lighter as the temperature rises. We don't pretend to predict his volume at the close of this term.

Presmen may purchase the East Texan at all down town drug stores for five cents the copy get them while they last.

And too, slimes, if you want your name in the paper please come to the office and pay a small publicity fee. If you fail to pay your bill, we will be forced to drop your name from our ever growing list.

Eddie, can two live as cheaply as one? Simpson says that it can be done. Luck to ya son.

Axain rises the old old question—Who broke the look on the henhouse door?

When she took the car number he said, "Lady this is a Greenleaf car," but the young lady knew better.

While propounding on an important question, one young man consulted the book of Ruth for his answer.

Although no definite information had been given out at press time, it is believed that even though students are still registering, the number enrolling for this six weeks' will fall below that of the first term. Enrollment was heavy throughout the day Monday and Tuesday with some six hundred sets of books being issued at the Text-book Library through the first day of registration.

Registration will continue throughout the remainder of the week and it is expected that a number of students are yet to register. Late registration may be due to the fact that numbers of students have not returned from their summer term. Next week's paper will probably carry definite information as to the term enrollment.

Musical Program Greatly Enjoyed By Student Body

Welcomed by an enthusiastic audience, the Jubilee Singers presented their program of spirituals, folk songs, and readings Wednesday evening at eight o'clock in the auditorium of the Education Building. The expectation of a pleasant evening was based on knowledge of what the singers could do, they having appeared here twice before.

The program was opened with a group of spirituals: "I'm Seeking for a City," "Jesus is a Shelter in a Weary Land," "Little David, Stay on Your Hips," and "Humble Yourself, De Bell Done Run," all of which were well done and well received. The second number carried the solo in all except the second number in which the baritone, who also announced the numbers, took the lead.

The ever-popular "Swing Low, Sweet Chariot," without which no program of spirituals would be complete, completed the selection of that type. The second number also had the solo in this.

Changing to a lighter style of singing, the quartet gave a jolly "Kentucky Babe," "Chicken," and a medley of Southern songs. In this last number the top notes of the first tenor showed to splendid advantage.

"Old Black Joe" was the first opportunity for a bass lead. Possibly the accident enroute to Commerce was responsible for his slanting slightly off-key, for we did not notice this in a number later in the program in which there was a bass solo. The relative in "Old Black Joe" was well done.

COLLEGIANS LOOK AT NEW DEAL

Beams of materials have been written on how the industrial, economist, financier, scientist, farmer, housewife and other groups considered the progress of the New Deal, but scant attention has been paid to the attitude of the collegians. This lack of attention is an error, for the future success of the movement depends largely on the present college group. They are the leaders of tomorrow.

Impetuous youth has always appeared rather critical of Democracy on the ground that its political apparatus impedes action, thus causing a time-lag between the making of a decision and expression of that decision in governmental action. The exercise Mr. Roosevelt has given his dominant personality in initiating new governmental policies, instituting recovery measures, and using experts in the work, "without the advice and consent of the Senate," has been accepted with great acclaim in most college groups.

But the question that is being chorused by all collegians, the question that is becoming an ominous rumble in the future economic era is "When can I expect to get a job?" They rightfully demand to know when they can become a functioning cog in the New Deal wheel, and at what price service.

Their day is rapidly approaching, and they will find an answer to their query in the declaration of President Roosevelt that he will "perpetuate this practice of calling trained people for the tasks that require trained people."—THE LASS O.

BACK ON THE JOB

With the beginning of the last six weeks of this summer term, the thoughts of countless school teachers are turning to the job ahead. The scholastic year of 1934-35 will soon be here.

All over the state of Texas instructors have been preparing themselves and planning for their work. There is something about classroom teaching that has a peculiar appeal; and the majority of teachers are happily anticipating the sound of a school bell once more.

This spring and summer has been unusually fruitful for the employment of teachers. Hundreds of college graduates without experience are entering the field, and East Texas State Teachers College is well represented. All over the state they are carrying the banner of the Commerce Institution.

Such a coming breaks well for the Texas State Teachers College, and for by their nature they are better prepared to train teachers than any other educational unit.

The teachers of Texas are going ahead in spite of hardships. A challenge is thrown to every community to support and encourage the teachers in their midst, for their work is of incalculable value. The boys and girls of today will attest to that fact tomorrow.—C. P.

Mutilated Books Prove Of Little Value To Students

What do you think when this happens?

You have been assigned an article in a magazine to read, and make a oral report on it to the class on Tuesday. You are busy and wait until 7:30 p. m. on Monday to read the article. When you find at your assignment you find you have failed to get the pages. You seek the aid of the Reference Librarian and she directs you to the Readers' Guide. There under the author, or title you find the volume, page, and date.

You go to the shelves in the Reading Room, where that bound magazine are located, and you find the volume. You wait a few minutes and then eagerly take the volume and turn to the pages. Lo! some Outcrop has taken the article from the bound volume. The Librarian advised you that containing usually by way of print, immediately upon publication and a book number is often impossible to obtain.

You must study a concrete plan for your class tomorrow, and for waiting patiently. You start to read the article, and you find the drawer at the card catalogue you obtain the information necessary in order to borrow the book from the stacks. The Loan Desk assistant brings the book to you, and you eagerly find a seat in the Reading Room. No Doubt In Mind Of Texans That Texas Centennial Will Be Great Event

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas, July 19.—

If there ever was a question in the mind of any Texan as to whether or not a great exhibition would be held in 1936, that doubt has been dispelled.

This is the opinion of Will H. Mayes, Austin, executive secretary of the Texas Centennial Commission, here the first of the week attending a meeting of the Commission.

"Prior to the organization meeting of the Commission in Austin on June 6, my mail indicated that a considerable portion of the public had grave doubt as to whether or not the State would be able to stage the exhibition. Following that meeting there has been a radical change in the viewpoint. Now all the mail is optimistic. All are waiting impatiently. These are having historic shrines near them are indicating active preparations to participate."

Mr. Mayes for more than a quarter of a century was himself an active newspaper editor and publisher, and a former president of the Texas Press Association. His ability to stage public sentiment is recognized in all sections.

"There was a gradual change in the public viewpoint," Mr. Mayes said, "from the day the legislature held its adjournment for the celebration of the centennial of the Texas Press Association. The people then began to realize that the Centennial idea was not halcyon, but the presentation of a great plan which had gotten so far along as to command legislative approval."

"Now with the Commission here announced a definite working plan for those cities desiring to receive the central exhibition, what has been made plain. All those locations having historic shrines are expected to do to have their share in the Centennial."

everybody has a job, a definite goal, and can go to work.

"In no movement have I ever witnessed this early as much favorable sentiment as has been crystallized in the last few months. Everybody wants to help. Everybody wants a piece. It will be the job, as I understand it, of the publicity committee to give these folks a job. The service of every local Texan is needed. The personal interest of all is wanted because this exhibition must be all-Texan and for all its citizens."

PANAMA OFFERS PLEASANT WORK AND GOOD PAY

The Panama Canal Zone is the

Utopia of the teaching profession, according to C. B. Hodges, Ironton, ex-teacher, who has just returned to the states for a year's leave of absence after five years of teaching down there.

Since the schools in the Canal Zone are under governmental supervision, politics do not enter into the selection of teachers, as teachers are employed strictly according to qualifications, an M. A. degree being a requisite. The remuneration is good and dependable; beginning teachers receiving $250 per month in cash. There is no worry of the year about employment, for a teacher's position there is permanent, employees being discharged only for incompetency or immorality.

Contrary to the popular belief the climate in the Canal Zone is an exceedingly pleasant one as the temperature does not rise above 85 degrees, and the nights are cool enough for blankets to be comfortable. The representing quality of the climate is the humidity. The change being evident from one year, and to another. Thus, according to Hodges, a person is unable to do grilling work of which he might be capable in a temperate zone. A great deal of time must be spent in a recreational fashion. The government, recognizing the fact, has provided innumerable recreational facilities. Huge club houses built by contributions of the government employees, are located just over the border in Washington, with the finest American country clubs and the membership fee is only five dollars.

Since all the shops and businesses are government owned, the cost of living is very low. For example, the teachers are furnished with five room apartments with a rental fee of only $12.50 per month.

For the information of those who would like to achieve the ultimate goal of the teaching profession, Hodges gives the following advice: First acquire an M. A. degree; then send your application to the superintendent of the Panama schools. From these applicants the superintendent selects those best qualified and sends them to Washington. When a vacancy occurs the applicants are informed in the order in which the applications have been received. After a period of a year or more passes before a teacher is needed there, therefore, many of the applicants change their minds and frequently one far down the list receives the position.—Campus Chat.

Century of Progress In Swiss Teachers College

Paul U. Thalman
PART FOUR

The original constitution fixed the college education at two years. Naturally not too much could be expected in a way of scientific education. In 1842 custom was extended to three years; but there was no room to accommodate the third year's classes, so for the time being the third year was just on the paper. Meanwhile the agricultural school had already found a haven in the college atmosphere. Now the time had come when the college would follow there. The monastery was already administered by the state. Longing for the beautiful buildings and the valuable property, the monastery became state property and two years later, in 1850, the college took possession of it. The students were delighted to get away from the cramped quarters and they enjoyed the new aristocratic atmosphere. Now the third year became a reality; it meant the completion and a more thorough study of the already acquired knowledge and the opportunity in practice teaching. The superintendent was happy in celebrating his 60th birthday in the refectory of the new college building, yet this happy moment was not to be long. His health already began to fail, left his real happiness behind in the "little castle."

As great a name as he had made for himself there were indications of approaching changes. Criticism was being heard, especially by teachers, who formerly were his favorite students. He became more and more isolated, yet he did not see the danger. He did not protect himself, nor did he even discuss proposed changes. Meanwhile new men—opponents—were being elected to the board. Dissatisfaction was handed in his resignation in 1852. Around 1850 the 19th century formed new views of the world and it is but natural that the college of Kreuzlingen was to be drawn into the current.

The new president of the board of education was very much interested in the college, the existence of which was rather precarious, since a new proposed school law had been voted down by the people. On November 24th, 1852 a mass of great influence submitted to the board of education an outline of a college law, which was to put the institution on solid ground. The government demanded additional plans, in case the seminar should be closed in 1853. Finally the original plan with a few changes was accepted by the state senate as the first seminar law of the canton of Thurgau. The college had been saved!

The selection of a new superintendent was a difficult matter. The highly elected head teacher acted as temporary superintendent; the man who was responsible for the seminar law obligated himself to teach German and education, but resigned after a short while. In March 1854 a new superintendent was elected. His aim was to introduce new and progressive ideas. Just a few points of his projected and before final acceptance, amended plans:

The college is under the supervision of the board of education. The college teachers under the presidency of the director (superintendent) form the teachers' concert (faculty). The faculty makes decisions on the following points: Matters pertaining to the college in general, particularly with regard to the curriculum, the manner of teaching, material, discipline, use of credit provided for the purchase of material, distribution of the same, duties of the students, recommendations for promotion, detention or expulsion, also any other matters referred to it for action. The director supervises not only the correct pedagogic of classroom, but also the hours he conducts the community morning and evening services of the students. He buys the books for the college library. He has at all times access to the books of the college business administration. To maintain order in the sleeping quarters and to facilitate the supervision in general he may appoint students. He has to see to it that the students are properly fed and he supervises their agricultural work. There are no indications of any friction whatsoever between the directorate and the faculty. The system was actually strengthened through the co-responsibility of the colleges.

The order of the day (setting up at 4:30 and 5 a. m., on Sundays an individual school, because it made greater demands on the methodical talent, and was the common school in small country towns, where the young teachers usually started teaching. However, one had to adjust oneself to the particular conditions prevailing at the college—at that time already there was an upper and lower (junior) school. From 1873 to 1887 there followed the following practice: During the winter semester of the second grade there was discussed in a few hours of education the organization, etc. of our public schools, and the most important points in the art of teaching outlined. These each student of this grade had to visit as silent observer one day a week with the primary school at Kreuzlingen and make a report to the superintendent. Only students of the third grade were given a chance to teach. These visited in summer three days a week with the primary school and in winter three days a week with the upper classes, partly as observers or student teachers, partly teaching independently. The teacher of education gave to the practicing students certain subjects, called their attention to mistakes and also indicated by means of demonstrations, by hints, etc., how a matter should be taken in hand. Again a written report was made by both the student and by the teacher of education. During the winter practice teaching under the personal direction of the superintendent took place with some student teachers, which were followed by a discussion by superintendent and students. Together with the superintendent the upper class visited every year other, especially undisciplined schools and every student had to spend at least half a day with a prep-school. Until 1887 methodical-didactical lecturing was reserved to the superintendent, but later was transferred to the teacher of education. Opinions regarding the system are divided, since even the students had fewer opportunities to teach them than at present. The lack of a fourth year of college education made itself felt. The superintendent would have preferred to postpone the examinations in practical subjects until one year after finishing the theoretical part, in order to give the students an opportunity to get some practice at a country school, under a certain control of the college. He also fully realized, just as we do today, that a COLLEGE CANNOT SEND OUT FINISHED TEACHERS. The graduated college student shall, however, have enough initiative to further improve his education and increase his store of knowledge.

Gentry Appointed As Assistant By Business Manager

In the absence of Jimmie Carroll for the last term of summer school Joe Gentry has been appointed to fill the position of assistant business manager of the East Texan. Gentry is a junior student and has been connected with the East Texan for the entire period he has attended school here. He has been in successful reporter, columnist, sports reporter and for the past year has filled the office of sports editor with East Texan winning their first football championship and taking for home the basketball and the prize. Gentry is a student assistant librarian, was managing editor of the 1934 Locust, and at present is movie critic with "What You'll See at the Movies." In his latest journalistic effort, "Singing and Music (Fiddle, Banjo and Organ)" (23 hours), by a priest, Catholic religion and geography, light on only Swiss geography (4 and 5 hours). By a pastor: Protestant religion (4 hours). By a teacher: Calligraphy and business administration (4 and 1 hour). In 1937 French was added. The point is stressed that the mother tongue, German, should not be neglected. Since High German was not practiced outside the college. The real mother tongue of the students was German SWISS dialect, which is entirely different from the high German and had its origin in the old "Allemannic." Physical education was introduced in 1861 (two hours weekly). The gymnasium was opened in 1864. In 1867 the position of a 4th teacher was created for German, history, geography and calligraphy. The system of practical teaching has during the course of years, for reasons not only pedagogical, undergone numerous changes. The ideal for the training school was

SUMMER P O R T TALKS

Boy, oh boy, is this a rich one—Cass county lost a basketball game last term and they decided to disband. No, they aren't even going to have a team this year.

Well if I had been cheated out of as much as you Cass boys were, I don't think I would have a team either. Here in the inside down on the case. It happened on Wednesday night just before the finals. There was too much West Texas for them, and on top of that the referees were against them—Ain't that bad—

Wonder how many cream cones and Coca Colas that cost me?

Old Hunt, Van Zandt and Franklin went down the other night under the load of Bowie county. There would probably have been a great difference in the score had it not been for Castleberry's points, and Holley, of Bowie, out of training, or condition—

Leon Taylor and "Pete" Johnson have asked for some publicity, but I don't know much to say about them as they have never done anything of importance. I might mention that Leon is crippled in the leg and Pete is in the head, and it would apply just as well to reverse the statement.

Freshman McCord has been hanging around "Babe" Smith and "Pepper" Austin too much. He is getting to be about one of the "cocky" types on this campus, and he thinks he is a great basketball player. Well, perhaps he is good for a kid.

Oh! he floats through the air with the greatest of ease—and that would apply to Mr. Bryant, who plays in the outfield for Hopkins and also the boy that defeated West Texas the other day with his long running jackrabbit jumps and catches.

I sure do feel sorry for Sheffield if he tries to play basketball during the last half. That little explosion of yours the other night just cost you four fouls in each game. Both referees said that they would have you out before the first quarter got started good.

You need not read this paragraph unless you want to—Milburn "Cattfish" Smith said the other day that while in High School he missed a field goal one day and his "Pa" made him quit school.

He also said that when he entered school up here, some five or six years ago, he heard the coach say something about hitting the net. "Cat" thought he was

BOWIE LEADS IN LOOP RACE FOR SUMMER CROWN

At the end of the first term we find the county basketball race led by Bowie county with Hopkins and Cass tied for second place. Bowie has a perfect record having played and won five games. Hopkins and Cass have one defeat marked against them. With plenty of competition and rivalry the second half promises to be even better than the first.

The following is a box score of the four games played on Wednesday evening July 11.
