Campus Impressions

Heat—great yellow fogs of it rising from the ground. Heat everywhere. Wonder if Coue was right after all. Thinking of ice water might help—

Wonder why Miss Van Heavyweight wears broad stripes horizontally. They do not exactly create the impression of a sylph-like figure beneath.

The East Texan is out—students indifferently bumping into various obstructions—in that blissful state of oblivion peculiar to one reading his school paper.

Indolent students lolling in the shade—girls sitting on their feet—Prince Charming would have a hard time here though he would probably have a vanity case instead of the glass slipper—the buzz of the big saw in the manual training room—almost as monotonous as the grind of summer school—Students walking backward in a struggle to read that which is proclaimed in cold hieroglyphics across the walk—why don't the advertisers ever consider the reader of their ads.—What is the queer little yellow and white animal swimming around in the fish pond—we think it's a dog—the poor fish must feel terribly disturbed—wonder if they object sharing their home with "the animal."

The rear view of the fan in third story main window—another futile attempt to beat down the heat—suppose the prof. is getting hoarse—Let's give Coue a trial, however, old fashioned he may be.

A new use has been discovered for the East Texan—and a good use at that. The problem has long been before us as to how we should utilize our nine hundred to one thousand East Texans after their sparkling wit has been read and memorized, but the question has been settled quite beautifully for us by forty dashing young ladies of the Physical Education department. When we saw them said young women stretched out gracefully on East Texan copies we knew that our work was for something. The East Texan will protect your Gym middy from the grim and dust of a gym floor. Try it.

As in every school of any importance there is the traditional lazy student at E. T. The one whom we claim is a beautiful young lad of twenty or thereabouts with the makings of a Lochinvar (at least we heard he tried young Lochinvar's tricks with scarcely as much success as the original—perhaps that was due to the fact that he used a Ford instead of a brave steed and Fords may be easily overtaken by Buicks. At any rate the said young man has high aspirations for his future. He is at present engaged in searching for the end of the rainbow expecting to find therein a huge cake of yeast sufficient to raise dough.

C. C. has been insulted—of course not intentionally—but then you know in the hurry blurry of getting out a paper someone's name must be used and his was well—might we say—beautiful. The anastrophe of the initials appeals to our musical souls—for even editors can be poetical and we could not resist the temptation—at any rate C. C. is avoiding the campus 'Please' signs.

Midnight lamps—or rather lights—are being burned and sleepy eyed students, toil hour after hour over that last minute notebook. Another resolve has been broken. But next term we'll start out right and the necessary evils, those nightmares of pre-exam week shall their place in each daily routine. Will they? Maybe so but we doubt it.

Two students of the college were asked the other day if they considered the price of milk high and they positively replied in the negative. After attempting to milk a gentle neighbors bovine, or rather a neighbors gentle bovine they were convinced that milk was entirely too low. Anyway they got the milk and a midnight milk diet must be good—those who need it.

BOARD OF CONTROL BUDGET ESTIMATES FOR NEXT BIENNIUM AGGREGATE $39,000,000

BUDGET HAS INCREASE OF $8,000,000 OVER TWO YEARS AGO.

AUSTIN, Texas, Aug. 1.—The State Board of Control was staggered when it found that its tentative appropriations aggregated $39,000,000, or $8,000,000 more than those of two years ago.

This set the board to trimming again and it now is assiduously at that job directed by R. B. Walthall, member in charge of the budget estimates.

"We are confronted by a real problem," commented Mr. Walthall, "for we would like to advance salaries in the State government to something near a desirable figure and at the same time we would like to recommend funds for a building program worthy of the name at the State educational and State eleemosynary institutions.

"Two years ago we could not provide buildings badly needed and we hoped to be able to compensate for that in the current budget. The State's finances bring us to the point where we must decide which route to travel, substantial increases in salaries and minimum building program, or a healthy building increase and small raises in salaries.

It is impossible to provide both adequate salaries and sufficient buildings in the same budget. We are now trying to work out what might be termed a compromise and make a start toward paying a "living wage" in the State government and at the same time give buildings for education and for the care and treatment of our unfortunate. It is regrettable that we can not provide generously for everything."—Dallas News.

MR. PHILLIPS TELLS OF SPANISH SCHOOLS

H. D. Phillips of Spanish Department at the College, gave a very interesting interview to the East Texan reported on the educational conditions of present day Spain. Mr. Phillips stated that Spain has a compulsory education law but it is not enforced because of the lack of facilities. There are no rural schools because the towns or 'pueblos' are not more than five miles apart. The farmers live in the villages and cultivate their farms from there. This custom gives the farmer the advantages of the electric lights and other community facilities, one of which is the village school with the proverbial village school master. The teacher, who is very much like the village school master in Africa sits on the floor surrounded by some twenty or thirty urchins, who drone out their words in concert. Catholicism and a smattering of reading, writing and number work constitutes the curriculum. The children in Spain start to school at the age of six and go twelve months out of the year, six days out of the week. They do not all attend school at the same time but are taken in relay sections from nine a. m. until 6:15 p. m.

Children are on the play grounds engaged in games such as 'tug of war' and 'association football' after it is too dark for them to discern with whom they are playing and whose chins they are kicking.

The school rooms have neither ventilation nor heat in the winter but plenty of the latter in the summer. One of the best and most upto date of the secondary schools in Spain is the 'Instituto Escuela' at Madrid which is a part of the university 'El Centro de Estudios Historicas' (Studies of History) The latter school is being opposed by the Catholic Church and a fight is being made for its existence, in as much as this is the sixth and last year of the appropriations made by the state for its support. No progressive element in Spain is striving harder to build up a system of public schools.

SPANISH STUDENTS ENJOY BULL FIGHT

Mr. H. D. Phillips, head of the Spanish Department of the College, gave a very interesting talk on the Spanish bull fight Thursday morning, August 11. The talk was illustrated by pictures which he collected in Spain.

He began by showing the views of Madrid leading to the Plaza de Toros' or bull fighting ring. He then showed the various fighters of the ring, the bandarillero, the picador and the matador, and explained their attire and work. The audience was taken through the whole of the bull fight, having each action explained. The pictures were shown especially for the Spanish, 313 students who are studying Blasco Ibanez's 'Blood and Sand' but were enjoyed by all of the students.

East Texas Student Dies At Hospital

MOZELLE SMITH OF PLEASANT GROVE DIES AFTER OPERATION FOR APPENDICITIS.

Miss Mozelle Smith of Pleasant Grove, Texas, died August 10, at the Commerce Hospital from an appendicitis operation. She was stricken several days before the operation. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Smith of Pleasant Grove were notified and hurried to her bedside.

She was taken to the hospital late Monday evening but gangrene had already set in and her condition was even then critical. The end came about 11:00 o'clock Tuesday night and the body was carried to Pleasant Grove, Wednesday morning for burial in the family lot.

Mozelle was completing her fourth term as a student at E. T. and the news of her tragic death has come as a blow to her many friends and schoolmates of the college. While at school here Miss Smith stayed at the dormitory.

Miss Smith was a cousin of Mr. and Mrs. T. R. Young of Commerce and they along with other friends of the bereaved family accompanied the body to Pleasant Grove where funeral services were held at 3:00 o'clock.

STUDENTS FETE ON BIG SENIOR DAY

Tuesday, August 10, was observed here by the entire Senior class as "Senior Day," the day being set aside by the college authorities in connection with class members.

A rather full program was planned for the day. The Seniors were not required to attend classes. The day started with a breakfast at the Commerce Hotel beginning at 8 o'clock at which time the class was permanently organized. M. E. Irby was elected as president, Homer Cox as vice president, and L. I. Smith as secretary-treasurer.

The class kept the student body in a roar during the chapel hour by holding a mock faculty meeting in which they discussed whether or not and why certain members of the class should receive their degrees.

Tuesday evening, after hearing the program by Edwin Donaldson and Emory Erwin, the class went to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lutz where it was served Eskimo pies and frozen fruit suckers.

Edwin has studied in New York and has been commended by some of the greatest pianists of the world.

COLLEGE HEADS TO GET RAISES

CONTROL BOARD INCREASES SALARIES OF INSTITUTION PRESIDENTS.

AUSTIN, Texas, Aug. 16.—Salaries of the presidents of the eight Texas State Teachers Colleges would be raised from $4,500 to $6,000 per annum under tentative recommendation made by the State Board of Control in adopting the biennial budget for the fortieth Legislature and the salaries of deans and faculty members will also be accordingly advanced, but not to the point asked for by these instructions.

C. E. Evans, president of the Southwest Texas State Teachers College at San Marcos and A. W. Birdwell of the Stephens F. Austin State Teachers College at Nacogdoches, conferred with the control board Thursday regarding their budgets and the presidents of the other colleges will follow immediately. The fare readjusting their figures to stay within limits by the board keeping up the necessary items and reducing or eliminating those they can lose without serious embarrassment. This is under the system of rehearings inaugurated by the board this year for the first time.

The board is making a herculean effort to finish with the State departments this week, having heard Labor Commissioner Crocker and Land Commissioner Robison Thursday, with Friday set apart for representatives of the railroad commission and board of water engineers. The departmental hearings are sandwiched in with the rehearings for completed budgets.

The conferences which have started with the deans of the State teachers colleges are to adjust salaries for the deans and the full professors and departmental heads at the eight colleges, and making them uniform in the increases to be recommended to the Legislature.—Dallas News.

JUVENILE WRITER SPEAKS IN CHAPEL

Elizabeth Alice Howard, a prodigy in the field of poetry and literature entertained the students with the reading of several of her original compositions Thursday morning August 12. She is the daughter of Dr. Howard, professor of English in Southwestern University and a member of the summer faculty of E. T.

Miss Howard read her poems in a beautiful voice which charmed the audience. She was master of a poised bearing. She impressed the entire audience as a remarkable child of great poetic promise.

Miss Howard has published a group of poems know as "Garland of Child Verses." She edited this volume when she was only eight years old. Her accomplishments have brought her under the observation of the literary celebrities of the land. Dr. J. B. Hubbell of S. M. U. said, "The poetry of Elizabeth Howard is superior to that of Hilda Conklin."

She has been composing since she was four years of age.

On June 3, 1926, Miss Howard attended the Mayo Memorial service. After the service she recorded a beautiful poem which proved the depths of pathos which had touched her.

In Memory of a Great Man.

We know how to honor thee,
By beauty, love, or tears
But still sweet memories crowd our mind
Through the unforgotten years,
And flowers with rare perfume
Many a tear we shed for thee
Like scattered stars on a night of June,
We would love to praise you highly
But yet, you cannot hear,
We would love to tell you of our love
That grows each year by year,
But we will tell all of your greatness
And teach our children too,
To love and be great men
Like you.

WHAT WILL YOU TAKE WITH YOU?

It is an old, old story—so old the younger generation is inclined to laugh at it—that we get out of a thing exactly what we put into it. As the school year 1926 fast approaches its finale, it is pertinent to take stock of ourselves and our achievements. What are we taking with us as our heritage of a year at E. T.? Are we taking A's, B's, C's or D's and F's? If so, what of it? It is nice to have an A, it is nicer to know we put ourselves wholeheartedly into the job, be the reward A or C.

We get what we give, we take out what we put in. Memories of a joyous year mean memories of joys we have contributed for others. Have we given our all on the athletic field, in debate, in journalism, in music and art? Have we given of our best, our all, to our school and our school mate? Then we take success with us, a wonderful success. Do we take A's with us—conceived in selfishness, achieved in a spirit of cold egoism? Then our year at E. T. is a 100 per cent fairare and coming failures cast their shadows on before.

A TRIBUTE

"Mozelle is dead."

These were the words that struck grief to the hearts of anxious loved ones and friends watching by her bedside last Tuesday night at 12:00 o'clock, when with a fortitude that has graced none more fair, she took leave of life without a fear.

Each day as I return to our room, 217, my mind and soul are borne down with a heaviness for no more do I hear her voice greet me with, "Hi, Ann," and on leaving I still feel I want to hear her say as in the usual way, "Bye, Ann, see you later." To me as well as all the dormitory girls Mozelle has left a vacant place that makes us sad indeed. Yet we realize that words fail, and tears of sympathy cannot heal the wound of the vacant chair in the home; that the loved ones are so bereaved by her absence, that her voice will not be heard in this life again. The most comforting thought, to them and to us, must be, that she is not dead but is sleeping just over the river, in the City of God's Kingdom prepared for the good. Not dead but sleeping, Mozelle has met the mandate that all must sooner or later meet and pass.

Her dying eyes read a mystic meaning which only the rapt and parting soul may know and in the stillness of the receding world there fell upon her ear the sound of waves breaking against a farther shore. I imagine the breath of eternal morning wafted to fan her brow as she beheld the Savior's bright and shining face.

Shrouded in a delicate robe to sleep beneath a wilderness of flowers that fain would have kissed her eyelids to awakening.

"We paused and breathed a prayer above the sod, and left her to her rest and God."

Hers was a short life but to us how beautiful.

Each returning year will recall to memory the passing of a dear roommate, and I shall but yearn,

"For the touch of a vanished hand and the sound of a voice that is still."

Her Roommate.

SPANISH EDUCATION

Spain, who have made fortunes in the Americas have endowed the public schools in their section of the state.

Spain has twelve universities, 11 of which do not confer Ph. D. degrees. The only one conferring that degree is 'El Central' or better known as the University of Madrid. Children enter these universities at the age of ten and in six years complete the Bachlreate degree which is not as efficient as our High School degree. The next degree is called 'Los Licenciados' and the third is the Ph. D.

The doors of the universities—as far as credit work is concerned—are closed to the foreigners. One may enter classes by special permission of the instructor without being required to register.

ASK ME

Dear Ask Me:

I am a student of E. T. and since this is my first year here I am quite anxious to get in with the best set. I do not know, however, exactly how to dress and as I have no one to turn to I am writing to you for advice.

I will say, in order that you may advise more fully that I am a blonde and further more money is of no consequence. When I left home papa said, "Son, here are two hundred dollars and I want you to go out and get all you can out of college life. I don't want any one saying that we are poor folks, or stingy either." So you see how it is. Thanking you very much in advance I remain, your indebted friend.

CLARENCE.

P. S.—Enclosed you will find a self addressed envelope, stamped.

Dear Clarence:

I would suggest that you select the colors most becoming to you and stick to them. Always carry out this color scheme in your mode of dress; a cream colored flannel suit 'collegiate of course,' a bright green tie to bring out the color of your eyes, a red, green and tan striped sport shirt to give a bit of dash to the attire and a yellow and orange crepe de chine handkerchief protruding from the breast pocket will emphasize the beautiful blondness of your hair. Dark tan or black shoes worn with baby blue socks (which by the way are quite the go in New York) will complete the costume.

THIS IS GINGHAM WEEK

There is no material which will take the place of Gingham—it is the best cloth on the market in its price and can be used for more purposes than any other material.

Gingham makes beautiful house and street dresses for the grown ups, it is the ideal fabric for school dresses, it is used extensively for draperies, scarfs, table covers and combined with other materials it makes beautiful bed spreads.

We invite you to come and see this wonderful display of new Fall Gingham. Our show window, tables and ledges are filled with new patterns and new colors, anyone of which would make beautiful dresses. Our prices are just right.
