Canadian Dance Troupe To Open '75 Forum Arts

By Debi Patterson

Contemporary Dancers of Canada, called Canada's leading modern dance company, will present the first Forum Arts program of the spring semester, at 8 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 13, in the University Auditorium, according to Sue Anglin, graduate assistant to Forum Arts.

Last season alone the company traveled more than 20,000 miles making 104 performances in 53 cities throughout the North American continent.

Everywhere it goes, the company, which includes the 12 featured dancers and also their choreographers, directors and technicians, carries one-and-half tons of technical equipment, sets, props and costumes. This includes their own lighting equipment, stereo sound system and even portable flooring, Ms. Anglin said.

Although the company turned professional just three seasons ago, it was originally formed in 1964 by Mrs. Rachel Browne, a former Canadian classical ballet soloist, now the company's artistic director, and one of its feature performers.

Mrs. Browne, who spent 3 years with the New York Dance Drama Company before moving to Canada, chose modern dance rather than ballet for her company because she felt that it showed greater potential for providing both serious and entertaining dance theatre at the same time, Ms. Anglin explained.

The dance troupe's philosophy, according to Ms. Anglin, "is to offer thoroughly enjoyable entertainment. A typical evening's program will provide a range of works, some sparkling with wit and comedy, some profoundly moving and perhaps romantic, and others lively and lyrical..."

This philosophy is achieved, she said, through a two-hour program from their repertoire of 35 original works.

The company's first performances were at the University of Manitoba, but since then the dancers have performed at Montreal's Expo '67; Whitehorse, Yukon and the Northwest Territories. With their Yukon trip, the Contemporary Dancers of Canada, the first dance company to tour the territories, also earned the distinction of being the only dance company to have toured every region of Canada.

Senate Passes Bills, Resolution

By Kevin P. Cox

The Student Senate passed two bills and one resolution after approving four senate nominees and one nominee for the Student Supreme Court during its Wednesday night meeting, Feb. 5, in the Board Room of the Student Center. It was necessary for the senate to approve the senate nominees in order to acquire a quorum and pass the bills and the resolution, according to Byran Jackson, Senate president.

The first bill approved by the senate, Bill No. 6, combines all bills which refer to senate absences and it sets the guidelines for absences, according to Jackson.

The second bill approved, Bill No. 7, combines all bills referring to the duties of the president pro-tem of the senate and defines the president pro tem's duties, Jackson said.

The senate also passed a resolution, resolution No. 21, which appropriates $1,100 to provide two Continental Trailways buses to take students to the Lone Star Conference championship game in Brownwood if ET qualifies for the game. According to the resolution, students should be charged no less than $1 and no more than $2 to defray the cost of a box lunch. The senate voted to pass the bill after it was presented by Sen. John Reinhart without sending it to a committee.

Two junior senator vacancies were filled by Gary Bassett and Daniel Dockery. Issac Williams filled one graduate senate vacancy and Jim Steely filled a senior senate vacancy.

RONDO AD ABSURDUM — The first Forum Arts Program for the Spring will feature the Contemporary Dancers of Canada. The group's dance selections range from serious works to light comedy. Members of the group are pictured here performing Rondo Ad Absurdum, a comical spoof.

There are two freshman, one junior, one senior and three graduate senate vacancies left to be filled. The Rules and Judiciary committee will present more nominees to fill senate vacancies at the senate's next meeting at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday, Feb. 12, in the Board Room of the Student Center.

The senate approved Wade Glover, graduate student, as a Supreme Court justice. The four accepted senate nominees and the approved supreme court nominee were sworn in during the senate meeting by Supreme Court Justice Artis Wright.

In other action, the senate approved a senate financial report presented to the senate by the Fiscal and Governmental Operations Committee. The senate also decided that the Fiscal and Governmental Affairs Committee should resubmit a resolution which would state the necessary expenditures needed to purchase a portable microfilm viewer for student use in the library.

Last semester, the senate passed a resolution to appropriate $165 to buy a microfilm viewer. According to a report by the committee, a

James 'Big Band' To Appear

Harry James and his orchestra will bring a piece of musical history to the University Auditorium at 8 p.m. Tuesday, Feb. 11.

Tickets are $3 in advance from any Commerce Rotary Club member and the Student Activities Board in the Student Center and $3.50 at the gate.

Gene Lockhart, music faculty, said, "Harry James today sounds like Harry James of the 1940s. His style has not changed, unlike Stan Kenton who has changed his style several times to retain a contemporary sound."

James, 58, represents the "big band era." He is a product of radio and movies.

Lockhart explained, "Jazz and big bands became very popular in the 40s because families stayed at home and gathered around radios to hear programs like 'Let's go Dance.' America was less mobile. Movies were big, too, and gave exposure to musicians like James."

From 1941 to 1943, songs like "You Made Me Love You," "I Cried for You," "I Had the Craziest Dream" and "I'll Get By" were carried into

Black Awareness Week To Be Held on Campus

By Rita Booker

Several programs have been scheduled for National Black History Week, Feb. 9-15, known at ET as "Black Awareness Week," according to Dorothy Wilson, Multi-Cultural Center director.

Zeta Phi Beta, social sorority, will sponsor Black Culture on Parade at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, Feb. 11, with the location to be announced later, according to Jeanette Oakry.

The program will include songs and poetry demonstrating the many roles of the Negro in America. Roles include slavery, Uncle Toms, mummies, pimps and revolutionaries.

Delta Sigma Theta, social sorority, will present "The Revolution Will Not Be Televised" at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Feb. 12, in the University Auditorium. Admission is 35 cents.

This program will identify five segments of the black man's development including slavery, freedom, search for identity, revolution, and the black man today.

According to Johnnie Lee, president of Delta Sigma Theta, it will also include a variety of entertainment. Special groups performing will be the ET Mach III choir and the Rose of Shannon choir of Greenville.

At 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 13, the Multi-Cultural Center is sponsoring a play entitled "Kind to Remember" in the American Ballroom of the Student Center. It is directed by J. W. Hutson, North Texas State University graduate, who has written several Reader's Theatres. The play, approximately two and one-half hours long, is cast by 35 black NTSU students. Before the performance, the band "J. W. and Friends" will perform and also provide background music for the play.

Hutson described the purpose of the performance as an effort "to present a black-oriented Reader's Theatre performed, directed and written by black students."

The showcase on the second floor of the Student Center will contain exhibits of black art and literature displayed by the Delta Sigma Theta and the Multi-Cultural Center, according to Dorothy Wilson, MCC director.

In observance of National Black History Week, Ivory Moore, director of Minority Affairs, will speak Monday, Feb. 10, at Angelo State University in San Angelo on "Needed, A New Image."

Moore said that his speech will concentrate on the following four eras of black development: the golden years of Africa, 1619-1862;

GUEST EDITORIAL

Improved Child Care, Unbiased News Needed

As a married student and the father of an 18-month-old boy who goes to a nursery school two days a week, I was among those more than a little concerned about the recent flap in Commerce over the licensing of persons and institutions in the day care business.

Children being, to my mind, the most important investment we all have in the future (not to mention the fact that they are humans and thus deserving of the best attention), need the very safest, securest, happiest, and most instructive environment we can provide them. At the pre-school age they are not capable of protecting themselves.

We all know that there are parents, yes, even here in Commerce, who would stash their children any place that was cheapest so that they (the parents) can get on with whatever activities, be it school or work, that concerns them and not have to worry about "the little brats" for awhile.

The Texas Welfare Department has been given the task of making sure that all day care businesses that are caring for six or more children have the proper facilities and room to adequately care for children. The agency may have blundered in its manner of presenting its case to parents and operators here in Commerce, but I, for one, am glad to see that the state is trying to do its job in this critical area.

I thought, too, that the Commerce newspapers denied their readers fair and unbiased news coverage of this important story in their efforts to present a case against the state agency. There is always room for editorializing on the editorial page, but one newspaper didn't even bother to run news stories on the situation. Instead it ran editorials on its front pages.

The citizens have a right to all the information. The newspapers should present them the facts, state their positions on the editorial pages, and let the citizens make up their own minds.

The citizens of Commerce deserve more and better day care centers run by responsible people, at least as interested in developing the children's minds and bodies as in turning a buck. Furthermore, the citizens of Commerce deserve news-coverage that attempts to be unbiased, penetrating, and that gives all sides of an issue full treatment.

Jobs Available for Art Models

By J. F. Ayers

There is a shortage of models for Art classes, according to Charles E. McGough, head, Art Department, and there are jobs available for anyone wanting to apply.

Anyone can model, McGough said, and models can be used for any hour of the day. Clothed models are paid $2 per hour, and "life" models receive $3 per hour.

Craft Center Now Under Construction

By Sheree Gambill

Construction has begun on a hobby center for students in the Student Center. According to Barry Mangels, Student Center program director, some of the necessary building materials have arrived, and work has begun. The project is expected to be completed by the end of February.

Located on the second floor of the Student Center between the Activities Center and the Founder's Lounge, the facility will house areas designed for several craft uses. Students will have free access to the facilities to work with ceramics, leather, photography and other arts and crafts. The completed center will contain darkroom facilities, two electric clay-throwing wheels and a kiln.

Roxie Valteau, Student Center program adviser, who is in charge of the center, said students must buy their clay from the hobby center so that one kiln may be used for all pieces fired. She also said that darkroom chemicals will be provided and that some small craft tools will be available for check out use. Other equipment will include two Omega darkroom photo enlargers, a drymounting press, a photo washer and dryer, and craft tables and shelves. Future plans call for a small craft library and an enameling set-up.

Total working capacity for the hobby center will be approximately 25, according to Ms. Valteau. This includes five people in the darkroom and processing area, 10 in the ceramics space and 10 to 12 in the other crafts area.

Mangels said the center will be designed for students who wish to pursue recreational hobbies and will be open free of charge.

Ziegler To Appear Despite Protests

By The Associated Press

Student opposition apparently won't keep former presidential news secretary Ronald L. Ziegler from speaking at two universities. But he canceled one scheduled campus appearance because the lecture fee was too low.

Ziegler's agent, William Leigh, said Thursday that Boston University's "standard maximum fee" of $1,000 plus expenses was "well below the basic market for people of his character."

Boston University President John Silber extended the invitation after the school's Student Government Assembly withdrew its offer to pay Ziegler $2,500 to speak Feb. 26 amid controversy over Ziegler's close association with former President Richard M. Nixon.

"Since the withdrawal of the invitation has received national publicity that has distorted the university's position on free speech, I am acting to remove any doubts about that commitment," Silber said at a news conference.

Silber added that the $2,500 offer was unauthorized and that the university's maximum fee for campus lecturers was $1,000.

On Wednesday, representatives of the Florida International University student government voted 14 to 12 to overrule a student body protest and honor an agreement to pay Ziegler $2,150.

Opposition to the Feb. 21 appearance developed at the Florida school after student senators approved a cultural and social events budget that included Ziegler's $2,000 fee and $150 in travel expenses.

Constitutional Revision Plans Continue

With the goal of constructing "an improved, simple system of government for the United Students Association," the Constitutional Revision Committee has divided into three subcommittees in hopes of having a new or revised constitution for ET students to vote on later in the spring semester, according to USA President Steve Henderson.

The CRC, which was appointed by Henderson and is composed of students, faculty, and administrators, is meeting in subcommittees on elections, legislative functions, and executive functions this week. The full committee will meet next on Thursday, Feb. 13, to discuss the report of the Elections Subcommittee, chaired by Student Senator John Reinert.

Henderson said that each CRC committee member should seek advice from fellow members of the ET community on how the constitution should be written.

Reinert's subcommittee was asked by Henderson to submit possible answers to three questions concerning the representative body of the new constitution: 1. How shall representatives in the deliberating body be elected? 2. Who shall they represent? 3. How large should this body of representatives be?

In previous meetings of the CRC, members have expressed a consensus that the present class constituencies of the student senators are not meaningful, and that some new method of electing the representatives needs to be devised.

Allen Hallmark, journalism graduate assistant, is chairman of the subcommittee on the legislative function in the new constitution. Another subcommittee, chaired by Byran Jackson, USA vice president, is to come up with proposals on the form of the executive branch.

The legislative subcommittee is to recommend the areas of campus life that would be the responsibility of the new body of representatives. It is also to recommend the type of internal structure of the new body and how often it should meet.

The subcommittee on the executive is tasked with providing recommendations on the handling of student government affairs, the duties of the officers and the handling of disputes. The subcommittee will recommend whether or not a student court is necessary.

Eco-Finance Receives Gift

The Economics-Finance Department has received a gift of approximately $4,700 from the Northeast Texas Savings and Loan Association, Dr. W. L. Dorries, head, Economics-Finance Department, said.

The Northeast Texas Savings and Loan Association contributed to the state office in Austin, and then the money was funded to the Economics-Finance Department.

The Southwest Savings and Loan Institute, an ET-sponsored program, was officially organized Sept. 1, 1974. It is the only training program for top level management of savings and loans in the United States.

Faculty Research Opportunities At ET Discussed by Lafferty

By Jim Hudgens

Preliminary organized research on a smaller financial scale often leads to better opportunities, according to Dr. H. M. Lafferty, director of Organized Research at ET.

For instance, a faculty member might receive only $1,000 or $500 for his first research project. If this project is successful, then the faculty member can use it as a "launching-pad for something bigger and better" by receiving a larger sum of money through a federal grant, Dr. Lafferty said.

This year, ET is receiving its first federal grant to a faculty member from the National Science Foundation, according to Dr. Lafferty. Dr. Janice Barton, sciences and technology faculty, received this grant partly because of successful work on two smaller grants at ET. This is her third year on the ET faculty, according to Lafferty.

A faculty member is eligible for research grants immediately upon arrival at ET. Many schools require a faculty member to wait a specific number of years before he is eligible for organized research, according to Dr. Lafferty.

The Faculty Research Committee which votes on research applications is a peer-group of faculty members. "People on this committee spend considerable time providing assistance to those who are interested in doing research but have had little experience in drafting applications," Dr. Lafferty said.

This committee has members from every college at ET—Sciences and Technology, Library, and Fine Arts, Business Administration, and Education, according to Dr. Lafferty. Each of these has an equal opportunity for research funds. Some departments might seem to receive a disproportionately large amount of research money but this just isn't so, according to Dr. Lafferty. If a department doesn't apply for research grants, then it doesn't receive any funds, Dr. Lafferty said. Also, some departments require more funds than others. A department might require a large amount of money for equipment which it will use for several years.

Organized research often allows a faculty member to hire students as research assistants, according to Dr. Lafferty. In some cases, research grants might even pay a student's way through school. One woman received a four-year Doctoral Fellowship to the University of Wisconsin because of her research at ET, according to Dr. Lafferty.

ET also helps faculty members in organized research to publish their works which publishers would not ordinarily handle because of their "specialized interest," Dr. Lafferty said. ET is able to publish these works by using the ET Print Shop. The authors receive no royalties from these works; all the money goes back to ET, Dr. Lafferty explained. ET also gives research funds for art and music, while many schools don't.

Sometimes ET will allow a faculty member "released" time from his teaching duties if the research project warrants it. In such a procedure, the faculty member would teach one quarter-time or one half-time, instead of full-time, while doing organized research, Dr. Lafferty explained.

Upon completion of their research, "We expect them to remain here at least a year to teach," Dr. Lafferty said.

Bill Would Give Schools One Cent of Sales Tax

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Three East Texas representatives introduced a bill Monday that would earmark one cent of the state sales tax for public education.

The bill would "provide some relief to the real property owner who is being subjected to ever-increasing taxes," said Reps. Latham Boone, D-Navasota; Joe Hubenak, D-Rosenberg; and Roy Blake, D-Nacogdoches.

"Also, it will insure that everyone helps pay for public education," they said.

The money, about $300 million a year, would go into the Available School Fund.

The three legislators said it was "time that the property tax be de-emphasized and that more equitable means of supporting public education be looked to."

Vet Grant To Expire; Next Funds Pending

By Kern Baker

The second year of a three-year federal grant used to fund the ET Office of Veterans Affairs expires June 30, according to Bill Martin, director of Veterans Affairs. It will not be known until April whether or not the final year's funds will be allocated.

The grant is one of the many veteran cost-of-instruction grants that was allocated in 1973. According to Martin, the funding is a year behind due to presidential impoundment of funds.

The office of Veteran Affairs is not run by the Veterans Administration and has no connection with ET.

If funds are not allocated by the government, Martin is hopeful ET will continue to fund the program.

Martin said that approximately 2,000 students are receiving veteran aid of some kind, and he pointed out that that was 20 per cent of the student body.

"No other department deals with as many students, except Admissions," Martin said, adding that the purpose of his office is to see that the vet is taken care of.

He was recently in Washington, D.C. at the first annual meeting of the National Association of Veteran Program Administrators. As a member of the planning committee, he helped write the resolution that was passed by the members and sent to Congress urging continued funding of the veterans cost-of-instruction

Phillips Project: 'Win F'ball Games'

HOUSTON (AP) — O. A. "Bum" Phillips, new Houston Oiler head coach, says he has only one pet project—to win football games.

Phillips, 51, defensive coordinator for the Oilers last season, was promoted to head coach of the National Football League team Saturday. He is the club's fifth head coach in the last six years.

Phillips, a burr-haired, tobacco chewing, country music fan, succeeds Sid Gillman who stepped down as head coach but remained as general manager.

Gillman served in both capacities last season as the Oilers compiled a 7-7 mark, the best for the club since 1968. Phillips' defensive team was a big factor in Houston's turnaround season.

Phillips said Gillman is a "little more of a driver than I am."

"Some people get effort out of players in different ways," he said. "My methods will be different but I plan for the results to be the same. The only pet project I have is to win."

Gillman, 63, said no one has a better football reputation in the South than Phillips.

'Meals on Wheels' Plans Being Made

Plans for the Senior Citizens Program, "Meals on Wheels," are underway, according to Tim Hardy, Alta Loma senior. Hardy, coordinated a similar program in Houston as the director of the Larkin Street Community Center.

The program will include dinner, recreation and fellowship at a central location and meals served in the home for "shut-ins."

The target of the program is to serve the dinner meal five days a week, although that will probably not be possible at the outset, according to Hardy.

The first phase in implementing the program will be a survey to determine the need for such a program in Commerce. A house-to-house survey will be conducted Saturday, Feb. 15, in six representative square block areas in Commerce, according to Hardy, coordinator for the survey.

The Steering Committee for the project will meet Wednesday, Feb. 19, to review the results of the survey and make further plans. Father Mark Padduk, pastor of St. Joseph's Catholic Church, is chairman of the committee.

Anyone wishing to volunteer to help with the survey or the program can contact Hardy at 468-6240 or Ray Alderman, director of the United Christian Center, at 886-2953.

City Calls Election, Appoints Auditor

An April 1 city election to fill the expiring terms of two Commerce city commissioners was called by Mayor Thomas Young at the commission meeting Tuesday night.

Mayor Young's and Dr. K. C. Smith's terms are expiring, and the deadline for filing for the two posts is February 28.

In other commission business, Walter Scott was appointed to examine the city's 1974 fiscal records which will include a check into utility funding. Scott has served in this capacity for the last three years.

ET President F. H. McDowell, Winfred B. Dyer, and W. G. McKnight were re-appointed by the commission to the Commerce Water District Board for new two year terms.

Terms of a new city sanitation contract were discussed. The present contract with the City Sanitation Co. expires April 1. Negotiations with the company have resulted in several suggestions for new terms.

Commissioners delayed action on the matter until they can study the present contract and establish terms of a new contract. Bids for the contract will then be taken.

A work session to study the proposed 1975-76 fiscal year budget was set by the commission for 7 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 13. The sanitation contract terms will also be discussed. The meeting, to be held at City Hall, will be open to the public.

The commission also set back one hour the regular meeting time for the Feb. 18 meeting, due to the Water Bond Issue election set for that date. The meeting will be held at 8 p.m.

Participants are asked to bring a shirt or other article for the embroidery session, a bottle for the stain glass session and a brush for the glass painting session.

Registration for the craft sessions is being held at the activities Desk on the second floor of the Student Center. An approximate number of participants is necessary in planning the activities, she said.

Stephen F. Austin Player Killed in Car Accident

Gary Brown, 6-8 sophomore forward on the Stephen F. Austin basketball team, was killed in a car accident Tuesday night, Feb. 4, while returning to Nacogdoches from his home in Cherino, Tex.

Brown was a starter on the SFA team, averaging 17.1 points per game and 8.7 rebounds. His brother, Andria, is also a starter on the Lumberjack team. The two combined for 43 points in a game against ET Jan. 20, as SFA won, 82-78.

ET in LSC Tourney

Having to play catch-up basketball, ET's Lions came from behind to wallop Sam Houston State, 73-57, in a Lone Star Conference win at Huntsville, Tuesday, Feb. 4, automatically clinching a berth in the LSC Tournament in March.

After a slow start, the Lions rallied past a 33-32 half-time deficit to chalk up their 15th win of the season against eight losses. ET is now 7-3 in LSC East Zone play, one game behind first place Southwest Texas.

The win sets the stage for ET's crucial clash with SWT at San Marcos Saturday, Feb. 8. An ET win would tie the two for first place in the East Zone; a loss would leave it as is.

Nate Granger, ET sophomore, bounced back from a four point performance in Saturday's win over Austin College to lead all scorers with 26 points, 16 coming in the second half. Granger also had 12 rebounds.

O'Neal Tarrant threw in 16 points, although sitting out nearly half the game with four fouls. He went out with six minutes left in the first half and entered the game again with just over six minutes remaining to be played.

Hugo Cabrera added nine points and 11 rebounds and Pat Laue bucketed 12 points.

Don Gay led the Bearcats with 16 points. Melvin Moore, SH's leading scorer with a 17.2 average, was held to only six points by the stingy Lion defense.

Stan Witherspoon turned in a noteworthy job on defense, and Lonnie Jones and Larry McGhee came off the bench to combine for 10 points for ET. McGhee kept SH at bay in the final minutes with several successful stalls.

With seven minutes left in the game ET led by only seven, 54-47. Several tip-ins by Granger, and field goals by Tarrant, Laue and Cabrera soon stretched that to 13 points, 70-57 with 1:31 remaining. Laue added the final three on a field goal awarded him when a Bearcat was called for goal tending, plus a free throw.

During the second half the Lions outscored SH, 40-25.

After the SWT game in San Marcos, ET travels to Kingsville Monday, Feb. 10, then hosts SH Saturday, Feb. 15, and closes out the regular season at Nacogdoches against Stephen F. Austin, Thursday, Feb. 20.

PAT LAUE, ET sophomore, reaches for a defensive rebound in the Austin College game Saturday night. Laue grabbed nine caroms in the game and also bucketed 20 points. He finished second in the game in both statistics behind Hugo Cabrera. Warren Korecky (40) offers assistance.

Future Bright for Lions

Several developments during the past week's basketball action have combined to make the future rosier for ET's coach Jim Gudger and his Lions, the most important being the Lions' 73-57 win over Sam Houston State which clinched an ET berth in the Lone Star Tournament. Another bright spot for ET was a Stephen F. Austin win over Southwest Texas, 83-73, at San Marcos. That game leaves SWT with an 8-2 East Zone record, one game up on ET's 7-3 mark.

ET and SWT clash in San Marcos Saturday night, Feb. 8, and a Lion win would tie the two for the East Zone lead. Then, providing ET could finish the regular season without losing, the Lions could possibly finish first in the East Zone and draw a first round bye in the LSC Tournament in Brownwood, Feb. 23-25.

In the West Zone, Howard Payne, 7-3, holds a one-game edge on Angelo State and Abilene Christian. HP travels to San Angelo Saturday night, Feb. 8, and could just about sew up the West Zone title with a win. The HP Jackets still have to play ACC again, but with a two game lead HP would still be in the driver's seat if ACC won that game.

In Saturday action, Sul Ross takes on Abilene Christian, SWT hosts East Texas, and Sam Houston entertains Stephen F. Austin. San Angelo played at Tarleton Thursday night.

Monday night, Feb. 10, finds Howard Payne at San Angelo, Sul Ross hosting Tarleton, East Texas facing Texas A&I, SWT hosting Sam Houston and Paul Quinn visiting SFA.

WINNING THE BATTLE for the ball, ET's Hugo Cabrera gets one of his 10 rebounds in Saturday's 97-76 win over Austin College. Cabrera also set a career record of 32 points in the contest. Both figures were high for the game. Lonnie Jones (50) also gets part of the ball as Austin's Larry Carson looks on.

ET Student In Gloves

By Scott Miller

Terry Vice, Garland junior, lost a split decision Monday, Feb. 3, in the 39th annual Dallas Regional Golden Gloves Tournament at the Dallas Convention Center.

Vice, 24-year-old physical education major, fought in the open middleweight class and won a split decision over Robert Mathis in the first night of the five day tournament. "I hadn't boxed in a tournament in more than four years," Vice said, adding that the win against the sports writers' favorite, Mathis, really helped his confidence. He didn't have to fight again until Saturday and won by default when his opponent didn't show.

Vice moved into the finals Monday against Robert Hurtado, 1974 State Golden Gloves runner-up. "I really didn't think I could beat Hurtado since I didn't have much time to work out and had not boxed in so long," Vice said. Besides taking physical education and computer science courses at ET, Vice works full-time for a paint company and part-time for the Garland School District recreation department.

"I didn't work out much at all before the tournament and felt it in the third round when I could barely hold up my arms against Hurtado," Vice said. "I took a lot of punches during the third round because of my ineffective guard," he said. Vice decided to enter the Golden Gloves this year when his younger brother started training for the tournament.

Although he has been fighting unattached, he is thinking of fighting for the O. A. Ray Boxing Club of Greenville and entering some of the post - Golden Gloves tournaments starting with one slated in McKinney on Feb. 13.

"I learned a lot Monday against Hurtado but feel I did well under the circumstances," Vice said.

Jones Buckets 37 In Tarleton Game

The ET women's varsity basketball team traveled to Stephenville over the weekend and came back with a 1-1 standing in the Tarleton Tournament. The women were defeated by North Texas State 43-56 with Yalanda Jones hitting for 14 points. ET came back to roll over McMurry, 51-32, in the second game. Yalanda Jones again led the Lion attack with 23 points.

The varsity returned home Tuesday, Feb. 4, and downed Richland Junior College 56-24, in Whitley Gym. The Lion drive was led by Susie Parker's 14 points and Cheryl Idom sank 10 points.

The Lions, now with a 5-4 standing, will travel to Waco tonight and take part in the Baylor Tournament followed by a home stand against North Texas State Tuesday, Feb. 11.

TERRY VICE (right), ET boxer, grazes Robert Hurtado with a left jab in the championship finals of the Dallas Regional Golden Gloves Tournament at the Dallas Convention Center. Vice lost the decision against veteran Golden Gloves fighter, Hurtado. A record 376 boxers entered the five day tournament and more than 8,000 spectators were on hand at the finals.

Knicks Trade Bibby To New Orleans

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Knicks traded guard Henry Bibby to New Orleans Jazz for center Neal Walk and backcourt man Jim Barnett Saturday.

New Orleans, struggling with a horrendous 5-42 record in its first season in the National Basketball Association, also will get a 1976 first round draft choice from New York and reportedly will receive an undisclosed amount of cash.

The draft choice going to the Jazz is one the Knicks had received recently from Detroit in a deal for Howard Porter.

The trade was disclosed after the Knicks lost to the Houston Rockets 95-93 and came about nine hours before the league's midnight trading deadline.

The Knicks have been shopping for front court help all season following the retirement of three big men, center Willis Reed and forwards Dave DeBusschere and Jerry Lucas. Walk, a 6-foot-10 center had frequently been mentioned in trade rumors.

The Kansas City-Omaha Kings of the National Basketball Association announced Saturday the trade of 6-foot-4 forward Nate Williams to the New Orleans Jazz for 6-6 forward Ollie Johnson and 6-2 guard Rick Adelman.

Doctoral Student's Play Takes First Place Honor

By Debi Patterson

"A Hell of a Time" is an original play about the devil, or "Bub" as he is called, who goes to a near-bankrupt advertising firm in New York City to hire the firm to change his public image, according to Stephen Yanoff, speech-drama doctoral student.

"That's fine," Yanoff continued, "except this fellow who runs the firm has one other client called Happy Carl, a religious fanatic and Texas preacher. When they find out about each other, that's when the fireworks begin."

The play recently won first place for Yanoff in the "University of Houston Texan Playwriting Contest" at the University of Houston at Victoria. The contest was open to all playwrights either living or working in Texas, according to Yanoff.

"This is a contemporary theme, but it doesn't have any of that old stuff about selling your soul to the devil," Yanoff added.

The first place award includes a $150 royalty-prize award to cover the prize money and royalties for producing the play for five shows, transportation to Victoria, hotel accommodations for three days during the production of the play, and a banquet in his honor.

The play will run Wednesday, March 12-Sunday, March 16, at the University Civic Center. It is being directed by Roger Sorey, a University of Houston drama teacher, and will be cast with university students, Yanoff said.

Yanoff's background in the theatre and show business begins with his father, who was a professional entertainer in New York. "He was a popular nightclub entertainer during the '40's. His stage name was Vinton Storm," Yanoff noted.

Yanoff also won first place in the "Texas Tech Annual Playwriting Contest" last April for another original play, "It's All in Your Head," which was dedicated to his parents.

It too, was produced for five nights at Texas Tech University, according to Yanoff.

He added that both plays are now under final clearance for publication with Performance Publishing. When they accepted his plays for publication, they told him that "both plays were greatly entertaining."

Yanoff recently finished the final revisions and returned them to the publishers and is now waiting to hear from the company.

Publication of the plays will mean a cash down payment, 50 per cent of all royalties plus 10 per cent on playbook sales, Yanoff said.

In addition to these two awards, Yanoff has had original scripts produced at the schools he has attended as an undergraduate and graduate student, which include Tyler State College, Texas A&I University, the University of Corpus Christi and Westchester Community College in New York.

Yanoff received his B.A. from the University of Corpus Christi in 1972, and his M.S. from Texas A&I in 1973. He expects to complete his course work for his Ed.D. this summer.

Currently, Yanoff is finishing a full-length, three-act mystery. "I think it's the best thing I've ever written. It's very weird, and I like it," he added.

Home Economics Beneficial To More Than Homemakers

By Nora N. Garza

Home economics is not strictly for the housewife type, or only for women, according to Dr. Judy Wilson, acting head, Home Economics Department.

ET home economic's graduates find jobs teaching in secondary grades, working with utility companies and the Cooperative County Extension Service, and writing for women's magazines, according to Dr. Wilson.

Dr. Wilson said that home economics majors are in demand to teach career education or employment programs in high schools. High school students are assisted by the instructors to find jobs in the field of home economics, such as child care and textile merchandising.

"Men home economics majors are welcome," Dr. Wilson said. The department has two male students, Willard Bynum, a graduate student, and Dan Chenault, an undergraduate student. Bynum plans to work in nutrition programs.

Men are showing an increased interest in home economics, according to Dr. Mary Beth Tuck, home economics faculty. Men who have their own apartments have to prepare their own food, she said. "There are always one or two men taking the beginning food course, Home Economics 131," she added.

Euthenics II, a class in which social and business ethics are studied, has increased in enrollment by 35 men since last semester, according to Dr. Tuck.

As a response to career education, a new course "Orientation into the World of Work," will be offered next summer, according to Dr. Wilson. In the course students will receive on-the-job training or participate in directed research in home economics-related fields, such as child care, food service, and fashion and textile merchandising.

McFeeley Receives Grant

Dr. James C. McFeeley, biology faculty, has received a $2,000 grant from the Center for Teaching

Dr. McFeeley will use the funds to improve the biology core courses 101 and 103, the beginning courses for biology majors.

The courses will be changed from the regular lecture with a directed lab to a self-paced lab within a framework. An individual can progress at his own pace, but a set amount of work will be required, according to Dr. McFeeley.

Dr. McFeeley explained that in the revised courses students will listen to lectures about the lab unit on tape, therefore the student will review the lab work before he actually attempts it.

Instructors will be present at the labs to help in projects and to demonstrate materials.

Dr. McFeeley said that the revised courses are being planned to be taught so that student "can get a lot out of them." He added that the courses may appeal to students who do not desire an entirely self-paced biology class.

Faculty Senate To Meet

The Executive Committee of the Faculty Senate will meet at 2:30 p.m. Friday, Feb. 14, in the Board Room to set the agenda for the March Senate meeting. Those who want to have an item placed on the agenda can contact their departmental senators before noon, Feb. 14.

The senators will forward proposed agenda items to Dr. Stuart Chilton, senate vice president.

Biology 101 and 103 can be substituted for general studies, biology 251 and 252, which are totally self-paced and audio tutorial.

Dr. McFeeley will work on the project this summer, and he hopes to have the courses functional by next fall.

The Center for Teaching awards grants for innovative teaching developments. Proposals for teaching or course improvement are sent to the Center. Projects the Center consider worthy are given grants.

microfilm viewer now costs $220 and the new resolution would call for that amount to be spent to buy a viewer.

That same committee presented a report that estimated that it will take between $2,000-3,000 to build a bulletin board to be placed between the Student Center and the Student Affairs Building. The senate decided that the committee should submit a resolution stating the needed expense when it has received a final bid for the construction of the board.

Senators also volunteered to visit the offices of Gulf States-United Telephone Co. in Commerce, in response to an invitation by Bobby Black, district manager of Gulf States. The invitation was part of a reply from the manager to a letter written by Steve Henderson, president of United Students Association, which complained about poor telephone service in Commerce.
