Symposium Set for Next Week

By Mary Lou Hazal

Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson and former U.S. House Speaker John McCormack have been added to the list of national figures who will be on campus for the annual Sam Rayburn Symposium on Public Affairs Tuesday and Wednesday, April 1-2.

Approximately 45 speakers, including national and state political leaders, college educators, Washington columnist Patrick Buchanan, deputy press secretary Gerald Warren, former press secretary George Reedy and Liz Carpenter, and Philip Coldwell of the board of the Federal Reserve System, are scheduled to appear at various activities during the symposium.

Mrs. Johnson and McCormack will attend the Sam Rayburn Memorial Dinner to be held at 7 p.m. Tuesday, in the Texas and American Ballroom of the Student Center. Named in honor of ET alumnus and former U.S. House Speaker Sam Rayburn, the symposium's theme is "We the People: The Future of Representative Government in America." All programs, excluding the General Faculty Convocation, are open to students, according to Dr. Carrier. He added that besides honoring Rayburn the symposium is designed for the discussion of public affairs.

Dr. Carrier explained that the symposium will give faculty, students and area residents an opportunity to meet political leaders and ask them questions. The various programs have been planned to appeal to a wide audience with topics ranging from the career of Rayburn, government and free enterprise, nuclear energy and education, Congressional reform, the news media and women in politics.

Russell Slated for Forum Arts

By Debi Patterson

Mark Russell, political satirist and comedian, will perform before a Forum Arts audience at 10:30 a.m. Tuesday, April 1, in the University Auditorium, according to Dr. Margaret Wheat, Forum Arts chairman. The program is being jointly sponsored by the Forum Arts Committee and the Sam Rayburn Symposium.

Russell is replacing Jeremiah Collins, who was originally scheduled for this program, but who died recently.

Dr. Wheat also said that Russell, who has been compared to Will Rogers, political comedian Mort Shal, and performer Tom Lehrer, has been appearing at the Shoreham Hotel in Washington, D.C. since 1961 and writes a column for The Roll Call, a weekly newspaper on Capitol Hill.

His repertoire includes satirical jokes and song parodies about "... big people, Establishment people and their big institutions," she added.

John Pagonis of The Washington Post has described him as "... a satirist, but he is also a singer, a pianist, a loon, a teacher, a preacher, a bit of a charlatan and a very, very funny man."

For example, one of the jokes in his act concerns the energy crisis.

"Sam Rayburn as Legislative Leader and World Spokesman" will be examined at the history symposium at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday, in Room 221 of the Business Administration Building. Dr. Frank Freidel, history faculty, Harvard University; Dr. D. Clayton Brown, history faculty, Texas Christian University; and Dr. Lionel Patenaude, history faculty, St. Mary's University, will discuss Rayburn's career as a state and national legislative leader.

At the College of Business symposium at 3 p.m. Tuesday, in the Journalism Auditorium, Philip E. Coldwell, a member of the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System in Washington, D.C. will explain monetary policies.

The Political Science Department will discuss congressional-presidential relations and reform movement of the 94th Congress at 3 p.m. Tuesday, in Room 221 of the Business Administration Building. On the program will be Congressman Ray Roberts; John Gronouski, former Scarborough received 524 of the votes cast for president, with opponent Gary Bassett receiving 191 votes. Incumbent USA President Steve Henderson received two write-in votes for president, according to Smith.

In the vice presidential election, ballot count was Dockery, 283 votes; Brown, 226; Chauncey Nealy, 176; and Danny Reid, 82.

Symposium: Chance To Look At Nation—Present, Future

The Sam Rayburn Public Affairs Symposium, the first of an annual event, is bringing to our campus some of the nation's most outstanding political, academic and news media figures. On Tuesday and Wednesday, April 1-2, we will be given the rare opportunity to exchange views on current public issues with persons who are not only knowledgeable in the areas, but also experienced.

Besides paying tribute to ET's most celebrated alumnus, Sam Rayburn, the symposium offers students the chance to gain an inside look at what makes our nation "tick" and its possible future—a future that we as students should have a hand in making. The symposium's theme, "We the People: The Future of Representative Government in America," can only be carried out through the exchange of ideas between students and the nationally prominent figures.

The guest list for the symposium reads like a "Who's Who" on the national scene as it includes such persons as Mrs. Lyndon B. (Lady Bird) Johnson, former Speaker of the House John McCormack, Congressmen Ray Roberts, Dale Milford, Wright Patman and Jim Wright, political satirist Mark Russell, American Political Science Association President Austin Ranney, Philip E. Codwell of the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System, Austin Circuit Court Judge William Homer Thornberry, State Rep. Sarah Weddington, and the list goes on.

With such an impressive line-up of guests, the symposium promises to be one of the most successful events ever planned at ET. Since classes have been dismissed for the most part of the two days, students have no excuse not to take advantage of the opportunity to increase their knowledge of the world around them.

The symposium can only be successful if students participate and attend as many of the symposia as possible. Such an opportunity as this—to look at today's issues with the nation's top figures—doesn't come often enough. It's your future—be concerned enough to examine it while the opportunity exists.

GUEST EDITORIAL

Student Initiative Produces Positive Results for Campus

This newspaper has often criticized the ET student body in editorials for the failure of the students to get involved in what is happening on campus. It is good to be able to report that involvement is becoming more visible these days.

First, the students in the Music Department declined to accept departmental cutbacks suddenly thrust upon them by the administration. Instead of cynical acceptances or violent individual outbursts, the music students acted to bring about a rational debate on the issue that resulted in a reasonable decision by the administration to postpone the hasty action.

Second, the graduate students in the Art Department have banded together to form the Association of Graduate Students, a group dedicated to bringing outstanding artists to campus for seminars. The group held a fund raising party at the home of David Wallin, graduate assistant in art, and raised $100. Charles McGough, head, Art Department, has backed the students and has promised to add triple matching funds to any amount raised by the students.

These music and art students should be commended for speaking out on issues that affect them and taking a role in improving the quality of education at ET.

It is also encouraging to note that more than 300 ET students have registered to vote in Commerce. They will be qualified to vote in the April 1 City Commission election and take part in the affairs of a city which is only a temporary residence for most of them.

There is much to be learned from textbooks and lectures, but these students have realized that learning can also come from working with others in campus organizations and clubs to bring about changes that help us all.

Of course, student participation in the recent student government elections was down about 40 per cent from a year ago. But this may reflect more on the past inadequacies of student government and the failure of candidates to campaign than on student apathy.

The music and art students have shown that they will act when it is in the interest of their groups to do so. Student government must show the student body that it can act in the vital interest of all the students. Then, and only then, will students get involved in student government.

Jobs Open for Vets

The Veteran's Affairs office still has many jobs open for veterans on campus, according to Bill M. Martin, director of Veteran's Affairs.

Martin said the Veteran's Affairs office has openings available in its work-study program, which permits vets to work 250 hours a year at $2.50 an hour.

A veteran does not have to come from a low-income family to be accepted for the program. "These jobs were made available to offset the difference in benefits that vets of World War II and vets of Vietnam receive," Martin said.

The only eligibility requirement for the work-study program is that the vet must be a full-time student. Veterans can receive applications at the Veteran's Affairs Office and the applications take one month to be cleared through the VA regional office in Waco, Martin state.

After a veteran is accepted to work on the work-study program, he is obligated to work 100 hours within a one-year's period, but his hours can be arranged for his convenience, Martin said.

He said, "If I see that enough persons are interested, I will start a special program to make more jobs available. We are starting an outreach program which will permit commuting vets to work in their home communities. Their jobs will be to contact other vets and let them know what services and benefits are available to them."

Twenty persons are working on the work-study program, according to Martin.

Speakers Say 'Possession' Rare

By Elaine Krah

"Possession" by the devil is extremely rare because there are so many people willing to accept evil that the devil finds possession unnecessary, Father Don Gillig, pastor of St. Joseph Church in Commerce, and Dr. Margaret McClear, literature-languages faculty, said in a discussion on exorcism Wednesday, March 12, during a meeting of the Psychology Club.

Exorcism is used by the Catholic Church to drive out the devil from a person, but there have been fewer than five such cases in the church's history in the last century, Father Gillig said. Two cases, one which occurred in 1917 in Georgetown near Washington, D.C. and another case which occurred in St. Louis, Mo., in 1949, are the basis for the book "The Exorcist" by William Blatty.

Dr. McClear became familiar with the St. Louis possession case while she was doing doctoral work there. The person who performed the exorcism was from the university in St. Louis.

To accept the rite of exorcism one must first accept the belief that demonic forces are present in the world, Father Gillig said. Some theologians say possession is impossible and there is no devil, so there is mystery surrounding the rite, he added.

Dr. McClear said there is a difference between temptation and possession. When the devil tempts a person, the person accepts evil and unites with it according to his own free will. She added that when a person becomes possessed, it is a one-sided situation with the devil taking control of the body of the person. In possession the soul is not affected, but in temptation it is, Dr. McClear said.

It is difficult to convince the Catholic Church that a person is actually possessed, and this is proven by the few cases documented as true demonic possessions, Father Gillig said. Many psychological disorders have similar symptoms as possession so the church makes sure it is actually a possession before consent is given to perform an exorcism.

If a priest in a local parish has reason to believe a person is possessed, he first goes to the bishop of the area while the patient supplies opinions from at least two doctors and two psychologists, Dr. McClear said. If permission is granted to perform an exorcism, a person considered very mature and stable is appointed to perform the rite, she said.

The actual exorcism ritual consists of readings from Scriptures that have been specially selected for the occasion, Father Gillig said. The reading takes about 45 minutes, and the exorcist performs the rite each day until the person is no longer possessed, he said. Prior to the attempted exorcism, the exorcist goes through a ritual called the Black Fast which consists of a meal of bread and water and continues the fast until he is finished with the exorcism, Father Gillig added.

Symptoms of a possessed person, according to Dr. McClear, are speaking in tongues unknown to the person before, revelation of future unknown events, vomiting, cursing, violence, levitation feats and a total change of personality close to schizophrenia.

The person performing the exorcism is never left in the room alone

'Star Trek' Interest Shown in Display

By J. F. Ayers

There is growing interest on campus in the fate of "Star Trek," a television series that was cancelled in 1969, or at least there's a growing display about it.

John F. Lamb, mathematics faculty, started a "Star Trek" display in the math wing of the Hall of Sciences Building last August, and the display has grown until it partially fills the case next to it.

Although "Star Trek" went off the air officially, re-runs (Dallas, Channel 39) and annual conventions of thousands of fans have kept it alive and now it may be coming back, according to Dr. Lamb.

Several organizations started letter writing campaigns earlier this year in an attempt to have the series brought back to television, Dr. Lamb said. He posted a bulletin in his display from one group, listing the address of the organization.

Since then, other notices have been added to the first one, and according to different "Star Trek" organizations, "Star Trek" movies may be offered to the public soon. It all depends on the interest shown by the people, Dr. Lamb said.

Anyone who would like to see "Star Trek" revived can write Barry Diller, president of Paramount Pictures, at 5451 Marathon St., Los Angeles, Calif., (90038) between now and May 7, Dr. Lamb said, and let his feelings be known.

and is advised to never talk with the possessed person except for the reading of the scriptures, Father Gillig explained. Some exorcisms take months before the devil leaves, Father Gillig added, but the person who is possessed has no recollection of his actions during the possession.

Although "The Exorcist" concerned the possession of a girl, the actual person possessed in 1949 was an 11-year-old boy, Dr. McClear said. The exorcism took three months in this case but there were no deaths in either case, contrary to the version in the novel, she explained.

Father Gillig said the devil's purpose when possessing a person is not to inflict himself upon the victim but to influence the observers to come over to his side. It is hoped that the observers will see such utter ugliness in the possessed that they will reject humanity as ultimately bestial and consider themselves unworthy to attempt any good.

Join the
family in the

Imagine an order of 22,000 priests and brothers in 73 countries around the world. (That's a pretty big family.)

But that's what the Salesians of St. John Bosco are all about — a large family of community-minded men dedicated to the service of youth. (And no one gets lost.)

In Italy in the 1800's a chance meeting between a poor priest and a street urchin served to create a movement of such success that it is still growing today. Don Bosco became the priest who brought youth back from the streets — and back to God.

He reasoned that a program of play, learn and pray would make useful citizens of the world. He crowded out evil with reason, religion and kindness in a (what was then unheard of) atmosphere of family.

The ideals of St. John Bosco are still with us today. His work goes on in boys clubs, technical and academic schools, guidance centers, summer camps and missions. And his very human approach is very evident in the family spirit of the Salesians. This is the way he wanted it. This is the way it is. The Salesian experience isn't learned — it's lived.

He added that the students are given constructive criticism by the judges on how to improve their performances for district UIL competition and that certificates for excellent and superior performances are given.

Dr. Farr also noted that several schools have already entered and that more are expected. KETR To Go On-the-Air Radio KETR is expected to begin broadcasting within the next week to 10 days, according to Station Manager Phil Ebensberger.

"We have submitted our application for Program Test Authority to the Federal Communications Commission in Washington, D.C., and once this is granted, we will be able to go on the air," said Ebensberger.

Jerry Erickson, station engineer, said that it generally takes 10 days for FCC approval, but he added that he is hopeful the commission will act sooner so KETR would be able to sign on Monday, March 31.

According to Roy Lamberton, program manager, Ebensberger, who is attending the Public Radio Conference in Washington this week, should let him know by Friday, March 28, about the FCC decision.

If the station goes on the air Monday, it will provide live coverage of a portion of the Sam Rayburn Public Affairs Symposium as well as the City Commission election April 1 and the school board election April 5.

Programming Outlined

KETR regular programming will be aimed at Hunt, Delta, and Hopkins counties, according to Lamberton. It will broadcast at 88.9 mhz between 6 a.m. and midnight daily.

"Our Monday to Friday morning programming is designed to help listeners get up and on their way and then to entertain while also keeping them informed about events both locally and around the world," Lamberton said.

He added, "KETR will provide hourly newscasts and short information features as well as continuing coverage of any local developments and will provide an information service not now available."

The afternoon programming will feature a classical music show, "Music of the Ages," followed by National Public Radio's Peabody Award winning program, "All Things Considered." According to Lamberton, the early evening schedule consists of public affairs, information and cultural programming.

Lamberton said that the late night programming will be called "Free-form" and will present contemporary music as well as progressive country and jazz.

Disc Jockeys Chosen

Seven disc jockeys were chosen from an audition session before the spring break and the "jocks" have had two meetings in preparation for the on-the-air date.

Disc jockeys chosen were Mike Woodhull, John McCormack, Willis Johnson, Delanna Reed, Gerald Smith, Pete Roguz and Phil Arnold.

Lamberton said that he wants the D.J.s to have separate personalities and not fit into the same mold.
