Students Perturbed About Tennis Procedures

This column is presented as a readers' service. Phone any weekday afternoon, 468-2244, or write The East Texan, Room J-100, Journalism Building, Commerce, TX 75428.

Q. Why must students sign up to play tennis in the evenings at the ET tennis courts? Why do the courts close at 11 p.m. during the coolest part of the day? Why do most of the courts have to be so poorly lighted? —D.W.

Dr. Crabtree, varsity tennis coach, who is in charge of the tennis facilities is out of town, but one of his assistants, who declined to be named, gave the following explanation: Since the high school tennis courts are locked in the summer, the ET courts are often filled with high school player. The sign-up was started to give ET students priority. Now you must register before 5 p.m. by calling 468-2944 or 468-2945 to reserve a court between 5 p.m. and 10 p.m. or sign up with the attendant at courtside.

Dr. Crabtree's assistant said that he "thought" that maintenance had been notified to replace the burned out light bulbs at the courts. However, Jimmy Farler, assistant director of maintenance, said that "to his knowledge" he had received no notification to replace the lights from the Department of Health, Physical Education and Recreation. Maintenance must be instructed to act by the department, Farler said.

Q. Why isn't the Student Activities Board selling tickets to the Barnum and Bailey Circus which is scheduled to be in Dallas and Fort Worth around the end of June and the beginning of July as they did last year? I feel that there are quite a few students who would be interested in tickets to the circus and possibly a bus to leave from Commerce and return. —Wondering.

A. The East Texan contacted Barry Mangels, program director for the SAB and their answer is that they did not sell tickets to this circus last year but did sell tickets to the Shriner's Circus. At the present time SAB is not planning on selling tickets to the Barnum and Bailey Circus but a possibility exists that tickets could be obtained now that they know that some students are interested. The possibility will be investigated. However, Mangels added that tickets for many of the activities are on consignment whereas others must be purchased outright and the SAB must rely on student's purchasing tickets or losing money. As Mangels said, "It all depends on the budget."

Q. With the cost of electrical energy expected to double in the next two years and the energy crisis being brought about by the wasting of oil and other fuels, why do we have some of those big mercury-vapor lights around such buildings as the Administration building and the Student Center still on in the daytime and why are there so many lights on throughout the campus at night, even in areas where very few people go? —Energy Conscious.

A. Jimmy Farler, assistant director of Maintenance, was contacted to answer your questions and surprisingly enough the problem might be the "average" student. It seems that the big mercury-vapor lights are on timers or on electric eye type systems that should turn off automatically in the morning. However, these items wear out or break and will often go unnoticed for long periods of time unless someone notifies Maintenance.

In regard to the reason why so many lights are on at night, Mr. Farler said that many women on the campus have reported attempted assaults of various types in past years, and due to these attempted assaults, plus the need to keep the buildings secure from break-in, the lights are left on. He said that a program was utilized in the past to turn off every other light but so many women complained, that they were turned on again.

Mrs. Bryant Defeats 3 Male Opponents

Betty Bryant soundly defeated her three male opponents winning 18 of 19 games in the Great Texas Pig Slaughter tennis match in the same way that Billy Jean King "did in" Bobby Riggs in the controversial male vs. female contest.

Mrs. Bryant defeated Dr. Gerald Machen, 6-1; Dr. Arlen Zander, 6-0; and Paul Pace, 6-0. In all she won 18 of 19 games before a crowd of over 200.

The event was an effort to raise money for the Commerce Bicentennial celebration. According to Jay Brim, bicentennial chairman, over $250 was raised and will be used for a fountain at the new city park.

Dean Sturcken Argues Grades Come Too Easy To ET Students

by Allen Hallmark

Students are generally being given grades higher than they deserve at ET and at most colleges and universities across the nation, according to Dr. Johnye Sturcken, dean, College of Liberal and Fine Arts.

From now on, Dean Sturcken said teachers in the College of Liberal and Fine Arts, who are suspected of "blanket grading" (giving uniformly high grades) will have their grading practices checked by their department heads.

Dean Sturcken said that she is in the process of making a study of all grading throughout the college. She said that the overall average grade of "B" in freshman composition classes "seems too high" when compared to the ACT scores of entering freshman.

The dean is not opposed to students making "A's", she said, but they ought to earn them by demonstrating the proper skills. "We are hurting the students by giving them the wrong view of their abilities," Dean Sturcken said.

Dean Sturcken made her remarks in a taped interview produced by KETR radio and moderated by Chauncey Nealy, student relations manager for the United Students Association. Nealy is making a

Denying rumors that a percentage system of grades with a mandatory number to be failed in each class has been instated, Dean Sturcken said that she "never wanted to indicate an attitude of that sort"

Instead, she expects the department heads to work closely with the faculty to be sure that fair but tough grading procedures are followed.

Asked why teachers have begun grading so leniently, Dean Sturcken said that it is a habit that has evolved over the past ten years or so which has increasingly alarmed educators all over the nation. She said students put pressure on teachers to give

Student Jobs Await

Interested Applicants

The ET Financial Aids Office has announced that it has a limited number of work-study positions available for both male and female students.

According to John Garlock, work-study program coordinator, there are a number of typing positions on campus as well as several in Greenville in the off-campus program.

Garlock also said that there are several maintenance jobs open for either males or females.

To apply for any of these jobs, an interested student may apply in the Financial Aids Office. After qualifications have been determined and a job received, the student will receive $2.26 per hour and will be able to work up to 60 hours per month.

DR. GREER HIRED

Physician Found

After a 12 month search for a resident physician for the university, Dr. Ruth Ann White announced that Dr. William E. Greer of Nashville, Tenn. has been hired to fill that position.

Dr. White, vice president of Student Affairs, said that Dr. Greer had visited the university in February, but had said that he would have to wait until his daughter finished high school in May before he could take the job. He will assume his new position July 1.

Presently, Dr. Greer is associated with the Tennessee Public Health Service in Nashville as an ear specialist. He indicated that he has an interest in Texas. He said that he had been interested in practice in a small community and a university environment. Dr. Greer, who will serve as the director of the Clarence E. Allen Memorial Hospital and Student Health Services, will earn an annual salary of over $30,000, according to Dr. White. Dr. White also said that Dr. Greer had been offered positions in private practices, but that he was not interested. He has been in private practice before.

Dr. White said that about four doctors had been interviewed since Dr. Tom Lister resigned last summer. She added that she felt that the university is fortunate to be getting Dr. Greer because he is coming from an institutional practice setting.

Summer Enrollment Figures Give ETSU New Term Record

—First-term summer enrollment at East Texas State University has set an all-time record with 6,032 students registered for classes.

According to Don Johnson, ET associate director of records, the figure represents an increase of slightly more than three per cent from last summer when 5,843 students were enrolled. The previous record enrollment was 5,985 students during the first summer term in 1972.

The most dramatic increases were in the freshman and sophomore classes, registering 23 and 25 per cent jumps in enrollment respectively, while juniors registered a 13 per cent increase. Enrollment percentages for seniors and graduate, however, declined slightly.

Round and About

As you can see by my picture above, I'm a bicycle person. In fact, I'm sort of a chauvinistic bike person. I believe that for getting around in a small town, devoid of hills and freeways, bicycles are a much better form of transportation than cars.

Everytime I get in my car these days I think about that sign over the cheapo gas station that says 47.9 cents per gallon and I love my bicycle more, and if there is no excuse to be taking the car, I get out and ride my bike. Even when it's raining, unless it's flooding, there's no real excuse not to ride the bike. All you have to do is get out the rain gear.

Of course, there are disadvantages to bicycling, like having to watch out for auto drivers who just don't seem to see people on bicycles and getting mud splashed all over you when a truck passes and empties a puddle on you.

But these are small things compared to the benefits like always having a free parking place right next to where you're going, the low maintenance costs, the exercise your body gets and the fact that you see more of what's going on around you from a bicycle.

The lunar eclipse visible in Commerce beginning about 11 p.m. on May 24 and ending on May 25 was a rare occurrence. The next chance to observe a total eclipse of the moon in Commerce will be in 1985, according to J. F. Ayers, our resident staff astronomer.

There are no doubt some good reasons behind the new rules and regulations at the ET tennis courts (see Campus Hotline), but some of them seem pretty silly to me.

For instance, why must all players quit playing at 11 p.m.? The stated reason that the players often neglect to turn off the lights could be solved by having the Security Officer on duty check the courts every thirty minutes late at night and turn the lights off when no one else is playing.

Nighttime is the best time to play tennis during the summer months in order to avoid the sun and the wind.

Another problem with the courts is the poor lighting found there, except on the new courts which were added this past fall. If there is money available to hire attendants to schedule the courts and run off high schoolers, there ought to be money available to replace burned out bulbs.

The tennis courts ought to be maintained at their peak condition at all times for students' use.

The Student Activities Board and the Student Development staff deserve some high praise for their creative Summershine Program. Considering the limited funding available and the limitation of having to schedule acts on Thursday evenings in Commerce, Texas the entertainment we've been getting is great.

There was one bad mistake, however, and that was advertising submarine sandwiches free to ET ID holders when they were really only free to those with meal tickets. However, my anger over having to shell out a dollar for all the sandwich I didn't want to eat, was mostly relieved by the very enjoyable music of the jazz-rock group Sweet Mama Shake Up.

City Council Delays Rate Hike Request

During a series of special meetings Tuesday night, the Commerce City Commission voted to delay acting on rate increases by two local utility companies until public hearings can be held on the proposed hikes on July 1.

Wes Rudd, Commerce manager for the Lone Star Gas Company, and William Gandy, of the Greenville Lone Star office, asked the commission to allow them to pass on to the company's Commerce customers a mandatory increase in the well-head price of natural gas imposed by the Texas Railroad Commission in May.

The residential natural gas rates will go up 10 cents per 1000 cubic feet of gas if approved by the commission. Gandy said that this will represent an increase of about 85 cents a month for the average residence in Commerce.

Jim Hutto, local manager for Texas Power and Light Company, said that the company's proposed new rates would add 74 cents per month to a family's electricity bill that used on the average 200 kilowatts of electricity per month. He added that the rate hike would allow the company a 7.15 per cent return on its investment.

In other commission business a group of citizens complained to the commission about the street and drainage conditions in their area. Jerry Leverett, 3021 Monroe, was the principal spokesman for the group.

Homecoming Theme Decided for 1975

"Evolution Since the Revolution" will be the theme of ET's 1975 homecoming program during the week of October 20-25, according to Ron Robinson, chairman of the 1975 homecoming committee.

Robinson added that all other plans for the homecoming celebration are tentative at this stage. The committee has submitted a schedule of events to ET President F.H. McDowell. A tentative budget has also been submitted to the president, but neither of these items has been approved.

Robinson said that his committee expects to make final plans for the homecoming programs by mid-July.

Indian Expert Speaks at Symposium

By Allen Hallmark

During initiation rites for young boys 12 to 13 years old in some Plains Indian tribes, the boys were stripped naked and told to leave the tribe for two or three months. The boys were required to live alone in the wilderness for that period and return at the appointed time fully clothed and named.

This is just a taste of the lore that was imparted to the audience attending the J. Mason Brewer Folklore Symposium in Room 216 of the Hall of Languages on Monday by Chief Rocky Stallings of the Institute of Texan Cultures in San Antonio.

Chief Stallings is really not a chief at all, he said, but a medicine man for four tribes. His father was a Tonkawa, but he seems to know the folklore of most of the Indian tribes with an emphasis on the Plains tribes who were nomads, tribes like the Comanche, Kiowa, Cheyenne and Apache.

Chief Stallings brought with him an assortment of Indian artifacts ranging from a six foot Cherokee blow pipe, which he demonstrated by hitting a target deadcenter twice from about 20 feet in the classroom, to a medicine bag filled with jerky, dried cactus and wild hickory nuts.

God's great gift to the Plains Indians was the bison, Stallings said, and he went on to mention a few of the 13,000 to 14,000 uses the Indians made of the buffalo. Among the more exotic uses for different parts of the buffalo, the chief mentioned that tomahawk handles were made from the buffalo bull's phallus, the bones were used as knife handles, the teeth as rattles, the horns as lamps and the grease as fuel for the lamps.

Children were not coddled by the Indians, according to Chief Stallings. No sooner could a boy learn to shoot a bow and arrow than he was expected to immediately begin contributing to the pot. If he didn't—he didn't eat.

Male training consisted of learning protection and provision while females learned the homemaking skills of making teepees, starting fires and tanning buffalo.

The chief said that warfare between tribes was such a way of life that the life expectancy of a male was only about 31 years and there were often six or seven females for each male.

Chief Stallings also demonstrated many uses for the maguey plant or century plant, which he termed "God's gift to the Indians of Northern Mexico." Hammocks, rope, bow strings and strong liquors like pulque, mescal and tequila are a few of the things made from this fibrous plant, the Chief said.

The J. Mason Brewer Symposium will continue today and Monday through Friday of next week. Each session begins at 10:30 a.m. till 12 noon in Room 216 of the Hall of Languages.

Today's speaker, Dr. Jose Reyna of Kingsville, will speak on "Chicano Tales." On Monday Col. Lee Somerville, USAF (Ret.) will explore Red River Folklore. On Tuesday Ms. Joyce Roach, president of the Texas Folklore Society, will address the symposium on the topic "Western Women Folklore."

On Wednesday Dr. Jim Lee of Denton will speak on Redneck Folklore. On Thursday the symposium speaker will be Ms. Sarah Green of Gilmer talking about Courthouse Folklore. The final day will feature Dr. Patricia Rickles, president of the Louisiana Folklore Society, speaking on "Cajun and Negro Folklore."

Traylor Russell, ET alumnus, Mt. Pleasant, will speak at 10:30 a.m. Monday, June 24 in HL-216 on the "Folklore of Jefferson County, Texas."

President Signs Bill, Vets To Receive Pay

By Jim Moore, Interpretative

Many veterans across the campus found empty or only partial pay checks in the mailbox from the Veterans Administration last month.

That situation has been corrected as Congress passed a bill and sent it to the President that would give the VA enough money to finish out fiscal year '75 and gave the VA its money for fiscal year 1976. The bill was signed by President Ford on Friday, June 13, and the Veteran's Affairs office reports that checks for the over 100 students affected at ET are already coming in.

The problem on checks was that on Monday, June 9, the VA officially admitted that it was broke.

The problem came about as a direct result of the supplemental pay increase that was vetoed by President Ford last fall semester and overridden by Congress. The problem was that even though the pay increase was approved, money was not appropriated with it. This, coupled with the increasing numbers of Vietnam and Korean era veterans who were returning to college as the economic forecast went from bad to worse brought about the need for more and more money, straining an already tight budget.

The VA had gone to Congress before asking for more money and ended up the same way in June as the VA needed an additional $400,000 to finish up the fiscal year. The new fiscal year begins July 1.

The Senate and House of Representatives passed the proposed bill on Wednesday, June 11, but as there were several riders on the bill that were thought to be controversial in the eyes of the President, passage seemed dim. The President can only pass a complete bill or veto it in whole. He is not allowed to veto portions of it as can governors.

Additionally, Ford was not officially against the bill or the veterans but he has indicated that he is not too favorable towards them by attempting to get legislation passed that would eliminate future servicemen from receiving GI Bill benefits and has tried to get Congress to revoke the two year extension on benefits that was given to veterans last year.

But the bill is passed and veterans should be receiving their checks as usual in the future.

King Runs Again

Once upon a time there was a king who, unlike many others, was rather small in stature but possessed the determination of a giant.

The king's domain was the Lone Star Conference and he did his ruling not from a throne, but from a running back position on the ET Lions football team.

After having ruled impressively for several seasons, the king departed his old kingdom in search of a new domain and had an opportunity to star as a running back with a professional football club.

His chance was slow in coming, but at last Arthur James has been given the opportunity to play at his position with the Shreveport Steamers, a World Football League franchise that began last year as the Houston Texans.

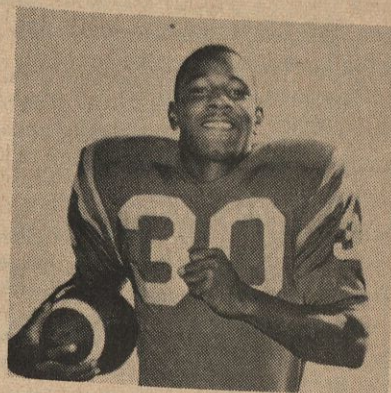

James, as you may recall, was the "King" at ET, in the Lone Star Conference and in the state of Texas; but when he graduated in 1970 his crown was toppled and he has never been able to regain it completely.

The only Texas collegian to ever gain over 4,000 yards in a career, James kicked around the minor leagues awhile before trying to break into the "big money" with the Memphis Southern last summer.

The Southernmen gave him a try, but as a receiver in a position he was not really for at the time.

"It seems everywhere I went in professional football, they'd stick me in as a wide receiver," James said of his pro football disappointments. "I never played wide receiver once while at East Texas. It's a whole new world and it takes time to adjust to."

At 5'9", 178 pounds, James is far from puny but he doesn't fit into the pro coach's idea of a big and bruising running back. However, James thinks some ideas about professional running backs just may be changing.

Arthur James

"When I came out of college," the "King" recalled "pros didn't come about a running back who was small. But with the performance of Mercury Morris, Mack Herron and the likes, the way is being paved for the small back."

James has always been plagued by his size. When he came out of high school he was looked upon more as a peon than a king. He couldn't find a college that wanted his talents after he left Dunbar High School in Texarkana.

The ET coaches looked him over and tried to send him away but Rich Houston, James' cousin, was making up records here at that time and eventually both of them talked coach Hawkins into giving James a try.

He went on to establish eight Lone Star Conference records that still stand among them, rushing for 323 yards in one game.

Tournaments Lead Off IMs

By Charles Clayton

The avid sports enthusiast suffers somewhat of a let down during the summer months. Sure there's baseball and auto races, but the coverage of these events lacks some of the lustre and excitement that's found in sports programs during other seasons of the year.

However, there's one sure way to satisfy your sporting urge while at the same time increasing your knowledge of many sports and enjoy the feel of actual competition ... by participating.

During the summer session, the ET Intramural Department is offering coed softball, tennis and badminton. Softball is already in full swing in the form of a nine-team round-robin tournament which is scheduled to end around July 2.

A second round-robin will begin on Monday, July 14. New teams will be added and those who missed competing during the first round will have the opportunity to participate at that time.

A single elimination pyramid-type tennis tournament is also underway with categories for men's and women's singles, men's and women's doubles and mixed doubles.

Badminton also is being featured with a tournament which includes men's and women's singles, men's and women's doubles and mixed doubles.

Although play has already begun in all events, anyone can get into the competition by going to the Intramural Sports Office, located in the Field House and signing up. According to Ted McKissick, assistant IM director, the summer sports activities allow you to play at your own convenience and provides a fun way to physical fitness.

In addition to the intramural sports, the IM Office also provides an equipment check-out for overnight and weekends. Tennis rackets and balls; badminton rackets, nets and shuttlecocks; basketballs; volleyballs and nets; horseshoes and softball equipment may all be obtained by simply showing your ID card and signing for the goods.
