This Week

The poet had the right idea when he said that in the Spring a young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of love...

A certain person on the campus is always trying to get a member of the staff about his being a poet. That person evidently must have read the paper some time in the past and have run across a moral phrase of something or other which will nail on the head.

The newspaper man is always getting some kind of comment. Only last week the writer was challenged as to the origin of a certain bit of information which was given to the world without the aid of the Associated Press.

CRAZY DRIVING

Figures on automobile accidents, fatal and otherwise, are not encouraging.

There never will be any reason for more accidents or less than more carelessness or greater care. When accidents increase, care is decreasing and only greater care will produce fewer accidents.

When you see some of the driving that is visible at almost any hour of any day, there is no wonder that there are accidents. The only wonder is that there are not more.

Too many are speeding through city streets. A car at twenty-five or thirty miles an hour may be easy to control at intersections, while a car going just a little faster will produce control when something happens suddenly.

Too many are dashing across street intersections with the drivers as stupidly heedless of contingencies as though there were the only cars in the world.

And some of the worst offenders are the young drivers of light delivery trucks. Drivers of big trucks for big houses go to safety school and are out for safety records. They do very well. Drivers of many smaller trucks for smaller houses obviously go to no safety school, and seem to be out for killing records.

What's the hurry?

A FRIEND INDEED

On Sunday night I go to church with happy heart and free, with confidence unshaken that someone will wait for me.

A kind, understanding heart that gives its strength to mine; A kind, ever helping friend with loving eyes that shine.

I know that she will wait for me all evening she has done; I know that she will pray for me to race yet to run.

Two human loves make one divine, And lift two souls above, Two human hearts so close akin shall ever cling to love.

BLACKBERRYING

Over the fields where blackberries grow...

Two little maidens are rambling today.

Shoulder to shoulder they march along.

To the innocent air of a childish song.

Black eyes and blue eyes bent to the ground,

Searching each nook where a berry is found.

Little brown fingers stained to the tips;

Sweeter than berries the soft rosy lips.

Gladly they chatter, the wee maidens sweet.

Wild rose and daisy beneath the small feet.

Ere long curls and golden almost entwined,

As two little maidens one berry must find.

Under the sunny skies, laugh as you go.

Over the fields where the blackberries grow.

THE PUFF

Oh flower that didst live in days of old,
 Never can I look upon thy crimson face,
 Upturned to see the blue and daisy-like space.
 Unless I think of how you lived so bold
 In Flanders, where you sprang from blood of the sod.
 The blood of men has stained thy petals red
 And still you grow there in the fields of dead,
 And I, weak mortal, now give thanks to God
 For roar of cannon with the flash of steel
 Has left no gaping wound nor scar on you,
 For God has willed that you shall live and so
 May show the world that flowers will always heal.
 Oh, Poppy, how I wish this world might see
 And profit from the lesson taught by thee.

With the County Clubs

KAUFMAN COUNTY

Last week was picnic week with the Kaufman County Club. The outing was held at the city park here and was thoroughly enjoyed by every one present. A lovely picnic lunch was served consisting of appetizing and attractive food.

If Aristotle was right when he said that there was a place for everything then a place on his program must have been left open for picnics at the local park. At any rate the profs. and Professors did not fail on this occasion to actually live the lives of kids again. The Kaufman club extends to those members on the campus who have not been coming out a very special invitation to our next meeting.

Franklin Raines now are believers in spells. The spell that he spelled "Fanny Roach." We don't know whether that the Franklin "red" could play better with Fanny's beautiful bartone going at full blast or that Wood just couldn't play under that handicapping circumstance but all of us know the results. This game was indeed a hot one.

FANNIN COUNTY CLUB

For the second time this summer, the main point of interest was the Fannin County Club meeting was a girls' baseball game with Cass County. Altho the Cass County leaders stood out in this victory, the Fanninites claim to have an excellent alibi in that their opponents had on the average about a twenty-pound weight advantage. At the time that the scorekeeper ran out of paper the score stood about 10 to 7 in favor of Cass.

The only other business to come before the club was discussion of extension subjects this fall and winter to be offered at Bonham, and the meeting was very informal. After that discussion the club adjourned.

LAMAR-VAN ZANDT

Lamar-Van Zandt turned the trick—and Hopkins has some recuperating to do in order to eliminate the "Candy King" from Titus on Thursday night of this week. With Bob Huhup on the side line and the Hopkins boys off form a couple of blocks, the inspired Lamar-Van Zandt bunch led by Bradford really did the job up well. Both teams started off slow but when the final whistle blew there was nothing slow about the affair except the way the players got off the court. Some one said that Fanny Roach intends to wear a suit of green, a rabbit foot from from Hopkins, and two horseshoes Thursday night when he tackles Titus and the Titus bunch are not saying much but you can tell that they are planning plenty. See this game. It will be one of those Hot Ones.

Remember

Seniors, you have only two weeks in which to get your picture made for the 1932 Locust.

Your picture on the panel hung in the archives of the College will be a source of pleasure in the years to come.

An early sitting will insure you the best of attention.
