BRANDING IRONS

A Western educator declares the college student doesn't need direction so much as a kick in the pants. Still, why not face the young man in the way he should go and let him have both? A college can do all the directing it pleases but unless the impetus required to cause some of the students who attend college to follow directions is in the right place and strong enough, the directing has been a joke. That careless sort of student is in the minority to be sure but at the same time he is usually the one who does the most advertising. His frequent drug store corners, eating joints, and loafing quarters. He goes to all the football games and tries to make all the racket, but not the kind of racket that it takes to make sincere rooting.

When one sees a man holding up a post, the post is either loose or the man tight. Fortunately, football stadiums are without posts that can be handled right easily, so tight mind time is forced to slide down railings and banners such as are to be found in Glen Field in Texas. A jump off of seat supports fifteen feet from the ground, and traipse uncertainly up and down aisles in the grandstand. All of these movements, of course, have to be accompanied with "jawing" innocent spectators and raising a hullo and hullo that lets everybody in the grandstand know that, not only is said man present, but advertises the fact that he is "tight"—not in money matters either. The fact that human sponges will absorb anything but water is not difficult to understand because most of the sponges are already full of moonshine that will not admit more liquor.

The badness of the bad should not prejudice one against the goodness of the good, for often the same things that make a fool of one man makes a hero of another. Conscientious students are glad that the boy who brands himself before the world in an unpleasant, ungentlemanly fashion is in the minority. They appreciate the fact that people in general remember that, when they see a group of thoughtless, careless boys "show off" at a football game. As college students they stand in their own light, but they should remember that they are not throwing anybody else in the shade. Schools such as E. T. go right on just the same, but not without wanting to do something for the unfortunate few who forget the conduct best fitting a true E. T. student.

THE AIMS OF EDUCATION

By X. CARSON

President Butler says, "The professional notion of education appears to be something which is carried on at enormous expense through the years of childhood and adolescence, and then brought to a sharp halt with a degree from some secondary school or possibly with a degree from some institution of college rank." How does this sound to the intelligent reader? Educationally what becomes of high school graduates? To what extent do they pursue their studies further? A very large per cent. of them had graduation as freedom from prison. They want to get to work. Why?

Again President Butler says, "If the formal education of childhood and youth amounts to anything," it gives to those who are privileged to receive it, a taste and zeal for knowledge. It inspires a curiosity which is, or ought to be, a moving force through life."

How many graduates can you count who receive this inspiration? Is this their purpose for going to high school? Do they rather not go to school simply to "graduate"? The propagandist has told them that the business world wants "graduates." The business world wants young people who can do things, and who are honest. Where is the trouble?

It is in the academic system, and the static curriculum. They do not meet the needs of an active, dynamic machine age. The average high school is not life, and the dynamic youth wants life.

In a former editorial, I quoted President Butler of Columbia University hearing on fruits and results of "schooling." Let us quote him again. He is authority. "The formal" (He calls it formal) education of youth and adolescence should pass, not abruptly, but quite gradually, into life occupation. This two should be dovetailed and not separated by a wall. A division of time between school exercises and discipline on the one hand and ordered, useful occupation on the other is a desirable link between the work of the school and the work of life."

How does the average high school training measure up to this ideal? It is encouraging to learn that a few technical high schools have been established. The Technical High School of Dallas is a good example. Also typing courses are now being given in many high schools. We are slowly getting away from the old traditional academic notion that education is the storing of the memory with facts to be used "many days hence."

Our present formal system is a very small part of the actual experience, associated with practical courses in high school, fitting the graduate for the work he chooses, should be the aim of secondary education. Formal courses in Algebra, geometry, Latin, Spanish, history, etc., fit one for little of anything, and have ceased to have but little cultural value. They are not studied for their practical and cultural values. They are studied to secure credits.

Cheerie's Chapel Chat

Holidays are good for a lot of things, but can it be said that they improve notebooks and newspapers? At least this chapter is somewhat amiss as to subject matter, for only one chapel assembly comes up for notice this week, just when Cheerie had planned to issue a little bull dog long way out of one program, the blooming program failed to show up again. North Wind, fortunately, came along and offered a bit of questionable consolation by setting our teeth chattering, so this chatter goes on regardless of no programs.

Dean Ferguson announced a phone call he received from a young lady who works at the library who has lost a purse containing a nice sum of money. The finder is requested to return it to Miss Westbrook of the library and receive reward.

 Vic Bowers proclaimed a special chapel for Wednesday morning which is called for the purpose of circulating "beatitudes" to fill the beauty section of the Locust. He also reminded students who have not had their pictures made that December 10th is the last day to have a photo made that will mean a big discount for the Locust. All students who had their beauty pictures last year can get a print of the same picture placed in the annual this year for fifty cents. If they do not care to have a new view made, hustle on down to out of one program, the blooming program failed to show up again.

 Like our football games, our chapel assemblies are without that regular E. T. spirit, usually manifested in student announcements. A special meeting last week elected E. D. Bates vice-president of the student council. Tuesday's assembly made no announcement of the fact however.

 The Lamb Trio of Paris, Texas

was scheduled for a program Tuesday but, as before, the Threesomes failed to show up. Remember how Mr. Whitley filled in with an elongated speech once before when the Trio did not put in appearance? Dean Ferguson did not feel equal to the task and what is more did not "want" to kill time just to make up a program that was not present.

 Miss Patton returned to the organ and favored the audience with a number after which two young men whose names do not matter, whose looks we were asked to garden, and whose voices have been heard here before, consented to

On May 31, 1894, the Fifty-first Congress of the United States passed an Act creating the Daughters of the American Revolution, a body corporate and politic, for patriotic, historic and educational purposes. This Act originally permitted the National society to own property in the City of Washington to the amount of $500,000.00 and later was amended to read $1,000,000.00. The original Act was approved by Grover Cleveland, President of the United States; Thomas B. Reed, Speaker of the House of Representatives, and Adelphi B. Stephenson, Vice President of the United States of America.

This National Society annually makes a report to the Executive Institution, and the Secretary of this Institution reports to the United States Congress such proceedings as he deems of national interest and importance.
We have 2294 chapters in the United States and foreign lands, London, England; Paris, France; Manila, Philippine Islands; Hawaii, Cuba, China and other lands, engaged in, and co-operating with the following activities: Lecture films; conservation and thrift; correct use of the flag; the D. A. R. Magazine, the official organ of the National society. It contains a monthly message from the President General, and minutes of National Board meetings. It features important work of National committees, a genealogical department and book review. I trust this unusual magazine is on the table of your college library.
We foster activities on Ellis Island and Angel Island. Ellis Island is the station just out of the port of New York, where the immigrants are detained, until they are admitted to the country. Here we maintain two D. A. R. matrons to look after the comfort of the immigrant and we furnish material to work into articles for the detained aliens, to keep them busy for the weeks of detention, and sometimes months. Angel Island is the gateway of the Orient, and received its name because but most of those detained are Chinese and Japanese. The D. A. R. Matron is given to them the same as at Ellis Island. You understand in my limited time I cannot go too much in detail of the various activities of our different departments. We carry on, extensively, in genealogical research. This work is to copy original, unpublished, early town, county and city records, wills, deeds, land warrants, county warrants, land grants, pensions, papers marriage license and marriage bonds; minutes of early town meetings and so on and on, along this line.
We foster the Girl Home Makers. This committee was formed to help educate children and young girls of both native and foreign birth, in the arts and science of practical home-making through clubs, sewing, rug-making, basketry, cooking and all forms of practical home-making. In the division of Historical and Literary Reciprocity the National Society has acquired more than 3000 papers touching on periods of settlements, colonization and the Revolution. The study and exchange of papers from other states. The Historical Research Committee includes the compilation and publication of genealogical records of the National Society into Lineage Books. The compilation and arrangement of a complete Bibliography relative to the Revolutionary War, and especially that period of war from 1770 to 1783; the history of men and women in this and other countries who lent aid in securing our independence and various other activities pertaining to our country. And we are co-operating with the George Washington Bicentennial Commission. A committee on Legislation urges the study of the Constitution and good citizenship, to get an adequate conception of the wisdom of the study of the resolutions adopted at Continental Congress, and earnest, active support of these resolutions, especially those relating to the legislative measure favored by the Society. The United States Government for Immigrants and Foreigners. It teaches the immigrant how to be an American citizen and why to become an American citizen. National Defense is a most important activity of our society. In every State a majority of the Chapters have well established National Defense Committees, that are very comprehensive in their programs, as outlined by the National Committee in Washington. I so much wish I could tell you more of this phase of our work.

National Old Trails:
The Society has secured State and national legislation, creating an ocean to ocean National highway, and established his highway as a National memorial to the worthy pioneer fathers and mothers of the past, and has studied every secret old trail or traced old routes or pathways in every State, and urge the making of state maps showing the site of old trails and monuments. The preservation of historic spots, reconciliation of historic buildings, marking graves of real daughters, and those of Revolutionary soldiers. Under this head there are numerous activities that claim attention of the organization, but few want of time we will not mention:

We have reserved the Scholarship and Student Loan Fund for our last topic. The National Society maintains a Student Loan Fund that contributes to many worthy, ambitious young women in their effort to secure an education, in various parts of this land. The applicants on evidence of responsibility, and worthy character, may secure a loan to assist them in completing their education. Many have taken advantage of this opportunity and we learn from their testimonials evidence of happy, useful lives of these young women. The various State Conferences and numerous Chapters in the several states maintain scholarship and loan funds. Let us remind you here in connection the Charles Carroll Chapter has a loan fund that is functioning. You can readily see they are living up to the injunction of the immortal Washington in his farewell address: To promote as an object of primary importance, institutions for the general diffusion of knowledge. We have not time to further speak of the numerous National and State Conferences, and the many other activities of our Society. D. A. R. has given generously to schools and scholarships, approved by our National Society. The State Conference of the daughters of the American Revolution of Texas Society has a $6,000.00 Scholarship at the State University; $6,000.00 from Houston State Teachers College, Huntsville; $5,000.00 at North Texas State Teachers College, Denton, and is now completing a scholarship of $5,000.00 to West Texas Teachers' College, Canyon. You can understand why some five years ago I became thoroughly convinced that the East Texas State Teachers College was so much entitled to a D. A. R. scholarship as any of the other of our State institutions. I have all this time never lost an opportunity to sell this set of dreams of now to the members of our organization throughout the State, and in Texas State Conference and in the State Conference of the East Texas Teachers' College. I feel that not only the daughters of the American Revolution in Cimmerca, but the entire citizenship of Texas, should feel a just pride in the recent honor conferred on Mrs. Jones and five other Texas women for their efforts in erecting the Lattin monument at Navasota that was dedicated last year. This decoration, a very beautiful medal, was given by the Minister of Public Instruction and Fine Arts of the French Republic, presented in Houston, November 4th, by the French Consul. This decoration originated as early as a lady and on her medal Mrs. Jones is named an officer of the French Academy.

Now back to the scholarship. Do not think you do not have opportunity in securing this scholarship. Let the odds were so in our favor that you win. It is a safe policy to secure a D. A. R. to complete one scholarship before beginning another, but we know there were a few who go that would allow to be under the latrine of the Texas State Conference and all would have working for this so long, not across the members were not not across Judge from the floor until the West Texas State Teachers' College Scholarship had been completed, but that we now had interested persons who would give to this school and to our Texas Teachers' College, and we would have a locafund that would be available for use and functioning while the West Texas Teachers' College Scholarship was being completed, then we would have a sum to start with. In closing I cannot speak too highly of this little band of loyal women, Charles Crossat Chapter D. A. R. in their efforts in behalf of this scholarship for East Texas State Teachers College, which scholarship will be known as the George Washington Memorial Scholarship. This Chapter gave inspiration and assurance of their desire for this work that has made us push on to our accepted laurel.

SMOKELESSNESS

—that's the thing!

CAMELS are never parched or toasted

HAVE you noticed the new trend in cigarettes?—freshness is the popular thing.

That's because a fresh cigarette, as demonstrated by Camels, is something smokers have discovered as better than anything they ever tried before.

Camels are fresh in the Camel Humidor Pack because they're made fresh to start with — blended of choice, delicately mild, sun-ripened tobacco in which the natural moisture and fragrant flavors are vigilantly safeguarded.

The tobaccos in Camels are never parched or toasted — the Reynolds method of scientifically applying heat guarantees against that.

That's why we say with so much assurance that Camels are truly fresh. They're made fresh — not parched or toasted — and then they're kept fresh in the Camel Humidor Pack.

Try Camels' freshness for a change. Switch over for just one day, then change back — if you can.

From all indications old E. T. ought to have another good basket ball team this year, even though several members of the present court have passed out of college history.

Every year sport fans start out optimistically over prospects, and we can't help but feel proud of our record as a winning basketball team.

Last year the boys won the championship of the Mustangs division of the T. L. A. and placed both Oliver and Harold Stringer on the all-conference team. On this year neither of these men will be seen in it either, but another Stringer will be there.

Captain Curtis Stringer will be one of the standbys of the team. Being able to really handle a basketball seems to run in the family.
