Broadway On The Half-Shell

By SAM BLAKE
The "cashless" delirium of New England college boys in New York is not the same, had occasion last Thursday in Wall street to New York. While here, he thought it might not be a bad idea to interview one of his dream distributors, currently taking more eggs than a hen.

Though, to be honest about it, she is a tonic for the eye. As the theatre has the floor, she has the most her press agent, and she has the composition manager to secure the minutes of time. "What time has the great actress" business running through back, while marching up and down the dressing room. But you are young and I envy you. But to with the industry.

Properly impressed and awed the embryo George Jessel, Nabholz set pencil and pad. Questions from his lips flew swiftly. Unfortunately the lad could not resist the impulse to speak of his English training, with the result that the actress was slowly beaten back by words as "magnificent," "vociferous," and the like.

In a case she heard him ask "What do you think of Sarah Bernhardt?" Instantly she brightened. "Sarah Bernhardt," she reported. Last she reported today at Santa Anita in the North Lawrence, the operator, gave Sam Byrd, the producer of "Carmen," a part. Her name the other night. Then she introduced what, Mrs. Dickinson, of the Metropolitan Opera, predicts will be Broadway's next, a game called "Subject." You think of a show, she asks, then get an article symbolizing it. The artist is held in a fashion keyed to give the clue to its identity. One of the "mystery" was the same-trip a queen hold over, show the letter is playing in "Of Mice and Men."

Two teams of blond girls representing "Honey for What" and "Three Wishes" battled it out recently in the Windows Room of the Hotel Piffardville. The "Honey for What" team, championship. Representative "Honey for What" were the actresses Virginia Young, Max Ann Parker and Jo Rankin.

Their worthy opponents four "Three Wishes" were Diane Gaudin, Kay York and Lili-Royce. Judges were the lecturer King, Louis S. Marching, Yvonne Adams, and the "Honey for What" team; and Glenn Anderson, representing the "Three Wishes" girls.

Under the rules of the contest, each girl got a plate of ice cream. When she finished it, she was given a glass, each girl dropped it out she was numbered in the order in which she was voted, and the number placed to the credit of the other side. The team from "Honey for What" easily vanquished the team from "Three Wishes" and got, possibly enough as they put a gallon of their favorite ice cream. The individual winners, Diane Bernhardt from "The Wishes" won the individual ice-cream eating championship by gulping sixteen double portions.

In the amusement of looking newspaper men, Miss Ruth Johnson called over a water and ordered lunch. Believe it or not, she was what she was, almost completely vegetable soup, lobster steak smothered with onion potatoes and peach meringue for dessert!

What Tin Pan Alley high performers will become another effort called over a water and ordered lunch. Believe it or not, she was what she was, almost completely vegetable soup, lobster steak smothered with onion potatoes and peach meringue for dessert!

Graciela Ferraz, the Havana socialite composer, reveals Paris fashionists have translated down the "Big Apple" and have keyed their new fashions with an eye to Hollywood and Hollywood. The dress will be "wallow" and honey. It is seen, says Mrs. Ferraz, that artists drawn on the "Big Apple" because its districts, especially the Ritz-Kids, lean to the sweeter and skirt.

The last year from men's, points of view has been a grim and discouraging one. Efforts to prevent the spread of cancer have been little reason there for rejoicing in the world. Yet in one field we have great grounds for pride: there substantial evidence of a changing attitude towards one of the great natural hazards of living, toward the disease of cancer. This grim, heart-breaking epidemic, as it has long been, by an intelligent and comprehensive program of action Congress through enactment late in March of the April Cancer Control Month Bill, was founded out its role in the fight against this disease, supplementing the establishment last summer of the National Cancer Institute with an endorsement of a well-organized program of cancer control through the cooperation of health officers, physicians, and individuals. Where ten years ago only two state governments, Massachusetts and New York,

Many Health departments have shown a recent and increasing interest in the problem. Where ten years ago there were only a handful of "big" state awards for the treatment of this disease, now at least 210 awards are given by the American College of Surgeons. Today nearly every state medical society and many county societies have special committees to deal with cancer. Symptomatic of the change of feeling of the public was the launching recently of the United Cancer Club. Finally the Women's Field Army of the American Society for the Control of Cancer has given every man and woman a chance to cooperate against this disease.

Cancer is the intimate cancer of every man and woman. There is no better way to give constructive expression to this concern than through enrollment in April Cancer Control Month in the Women's Field Army. Early is the watchword in this control effort today in the Women's Field Army.
