Bowen Elected President of Summer Graduation Class In Election Held Monday Morning

Other Officers Will be Chosen Wed.

Ozell Bowen was elected president of the summer graduation class Monday morning at the annual meeting of the organization. Paul Conner, President of the Student Council, presiding and presided until Bowen was elected. John Garrett and Clarence Burton were nominated for the presidency and Bowen carried the class to a run-off.

Dr. Whiting addressed the class and discussed the means for securing a commencement in the school and suggested a bacchanalian ceremony. It is probable that Senator Tom Conroy will be asked to give the invocation and that the management address will be given by Dr. W. T. Yount for the honor.

Register John Windell did not attend the meeting. The blank space was filled by playing for several. Any graduating seniors who were absent should call at the registrar's office immediately and report their absence. A diploma fee of five dollars is levied on graduates. This must be paid by all who are graduates. It includes the use of a cap and gown. Students who are transferring work from one institution to another must pay a meeting fee of $1.00. The meeting will be held Wednesday at the gymnasium at 10 o'clock.

Alexander Returns to East Texas After Absence

E. B. Alexander, principal teacher and Training School athletic coach, has returned to the campus after a leave of absence during the last term at Columbia University. He has been working on his Doctor's degree in physics, specializing in atomic analytical work.

Alexander reports that his work has been very enjoyable. He left Columbia a stern last summer and visited his parents in Colorado before going to New York. He took his M. S. degree from the Colorado State College of Education, where he was outstanding athlete as well as scholar.

He played for the West in the annual East-West football game his Senior year.

Mr. Alexander is very complimentary of Columbia University as well as of its faculty and its organization. He is very interested in the department of chemistry in his close contact with the large industrial concerns of the East. Most of the students are studying industrial chemistry and frequently come from such laboratories as DuPont plants which come in contact with the University officers.

Alexander spoke of the student body at Columbia as being cosmopolitan group. He had friends with members of all the different nationalities, and said his discussions were colored by the strong German and Russian accents. One of the members of his laboratory class was a Frenchman who had come from Spain only a short time before he left for Columbia.

Alexander has about five more years work to do before he can receive his Ph. D., but he does not plan to go back to New York for at least another year. At the present time he is teaching a course General Science for secondary school.

His day is June 18. Don't forget to remember him with a gift from CERR's Glee Club.

Growing East Texas Library Is Aided by Friends; Book Plates Credit Contributor

By GRETCHEEN HOWELL. It is evident that you are interested in the improvement of our library. As the college grows so does its people.

Since the usefulness of a college is in a large way measured by the library, it seems that the development of the library at East Texas State is of paramount importance. These have been made and heretofore this plate will be pasted into the front cover of each book that is a gift. The plate was designed by Hope Carden, a member of the student library staff. The design represents the front door of the library through which the friends of the Library hope that many donations will come in the form of many friends who will thereby become members of the organization.

Since it is this that donation matter settles the degree of membership in the organization, it seems that the book plate should have a place for the name of the donor. The first book that this honored bears the name of the donor. Dr. T. H. McNeil, a member of the college faculty, Dr. McNeil's gift to the library. The "Friends of the Library" hope that those who have books at home that they will be willing to donate to the library will be this gift of course no robe against the donation of money. The library needs many books that it cannot afford to buy. Many libraries are entirely financed by endowments for book collections. There are in the way of moment also of special collections such as local history, biography, music, American literature, etc. An endowment for local history literature would build up the Texas collection. Professor Mayo's struggle to make education available to the young people of East Texas deserves the pen of a master, and even then the whole story comes being edited.

The best index to Professor Mayo's philosophy can be found in his favorite quotations, which are engraved on the monument. Ambitious youth shall be denied an end. "No inheritance, ambition." "The books belong to him who is able and willing to use them." "The teachers have not yet

Family Wondered If Maude Webster Would Be Missionary or Run a Circus, Now She Teaches, Which Is a Consolidation of Both

By HELENA MOHRLEY
Maude Webster, head of the Speech Department of the East Texas Teachers College, told the inquiring reporter that she was not a thing in the world that was a missionary or a circus.

Maude Webster acquired a degree from Ohio Wesleyan University and at the University of Wisconsin. Her first writing at an early date in America. One of the students was a colonial governor of Connecticut, and a missionary, and she was preacher and teacher. Her father and mother were educators, so it is natural for her to enter teaching, though she confessed she would have preferred law as a profession.

She said that in her childhood, her family wondered whether she was going to be a missionary or run a circus. She said she was engaged on teaching, but she had several elements of both occupations.

Miss Webster came to Commerce in January, 1924, to substitute for Miss Katherine Burkstreet, who was on leave of absence, in September, 1924, she was named as Miss Burkstreet did not wish to return. Miss Webster has been head of the department since a position which she holds at the department under her direction has been quite a success in East Texas State Teachers College development. Members of her debate teams have won a chapter of Pi Kappa Delta, the national forensic fraternity, and her dramatic college. Little did she know that she had several elements of both occupations.

John Hart, Journalism Instructor Personally Acquainted With All His Textbook Authors
After twenty years of newspaper work, John Hart, B.J., M.J., returned to East Texas State, his alma mater, in 1908 as Assistant Professor of English in the department of Journalism. Professor Hart in 1903 saw the beginning of journalistic endeavors on the campus with the publication of the first Local, and was in 1907 three publications whose existence when he entered in 1908.

At that time the athletic editor of the Local, which was edited by Mr. Hart, was an elective office. Politics were not had then as now, but existed between classes rather than organizations. In 1921, Mr. Hart was elected editor of the Local and since the death of Bill Gibson, 1920 editor, is the oldest living editor of that publication.

While in school at East Texas State, Mr. Hart sang in the Glee Club, played in the band, and dabbed in campus politics. At that time there was no East Texas and the Citimard and Hilda were the only clubs on the campus. He prepared for football but got knocked out before the season was over, and had to quit. Mr. Hart says he weighed only 130 then.

Professors Stone, Phillips, Craddock, Wynn, and Hammon also are some of the fellow professors who Mr. Hart attended classes under while in school here.

Two years at the University of Missouri followed his schooling here. While at Austin he became a member of Sigma Delta Chi, honorary Journalism fraternity. In 1923 he received his B.S. in Journalism from Northwestern University, while at Northwestern he joined the Alpha Psi fraternity, college division of the Missouri.

In 1924, Mr. Hart, along with Joseph L. Lipp, of Commerce, and in 1926 he married Blanche Thompson, another former East Texas State student.

Newspaper work proved to be Mr. Hart's career and he bought the Eastman Herald in 1927. After owning the Herald for four years, he sold it and bought the Herald Journal, which he owned for one year. Selling the Journal, Mr. Hart returned to Commerce in 1928. His father is on the local paper.

In the summer of 1927 he received his master's degree in Journalism from the University of Wisconsin and took up a degree in Journalism at East Texas State in the fall of 1928.

He has been a member of the Journalism fraternity and has been a member of the Journalism fraternity at East Texas State in the fall of 1928.

College Graduates Honored by Church
