Academic administration reorganization confirmed

By RANDY VONDERHEID
and
DAVID L. LINDSEY
Staff Writers

Although he termed The East Texan speculation "premature," President F. H. McDowell confirmed his recommendation for the reorganization in the ET academic administration Wednesday.

McDowell said his recommendations to the May 7 meeting of ET Board of Regents involve the reassignment to faculty positions of Dr. Richard Meyer, vice president, Academic Affairs; Dr. Johnye C. Sturcken, dean, College of Liberal and Fine Arts and Dr. Bob J. Steelman, dean, Division of Continuing Education.

All those affected will have contract expiration during the course of 1976. Meyer's is expected to expire this summer. Sturcken will step down June 1 and Steelman's contract will expire Aug. 31.

Sturcken

Meyer said there was no animosity

Meyer

on his part toward the president as a result of these recommendations. "Administrative personnel should always keep in mind that their jobs are always in jeopardy because the president must assemble a team that he considers to be the most effective," Meyer said.

"I feel strongly that President McDowell and I have been amicable over this whole issue. I feel too strongly about this University to become involved in any animosity toward anybody—McDowell has his responsibilities and that is his prerogative," Meyer concluded.

Similarly, Steelman expressed no ill feelings concerning the president's action but was shocked at the announcement.

"It's the president's prerogative that he can place his choice in any position. I can't speculate as to what his thinking is," Steelman said.

Continuing Education grew from a total enrollment in 1968 of 2,977 to an enrollment of 11,166 in 1975. "This is one thing that makes it less painful is that I know I did a good job," Steelman concluded.

However, Sturcken said she was stunned when McDowell informed her of his decision Monday afternoon.

"I asked for a reason because I feel I have done a good job in this position. However, President McDowell would offer no adequate reason for his decision," Sturcken explained.

She did say McDowell indicated some of the department heads in the College of Liberal and Fine Arts were dissatisfied with her leadership.

"But there was no forewarning. McDowell never once told me he was displeased with my performance in this job. I was totally unprepared for the action and it is puzzling," Sturcken continued.

"When he called me into his office Monday and told me of his decision he offered no discussion concerning his reasons. I feel like I have done a good job here. We have done great things this semester such as the 30s Project," Sturcken said.

"I have not once heard any expressions of dissatisfaction from any of my department heads. If McDowell has been hearing anything bad about me from them, then they have been going over my head," Sturcken pointed out.

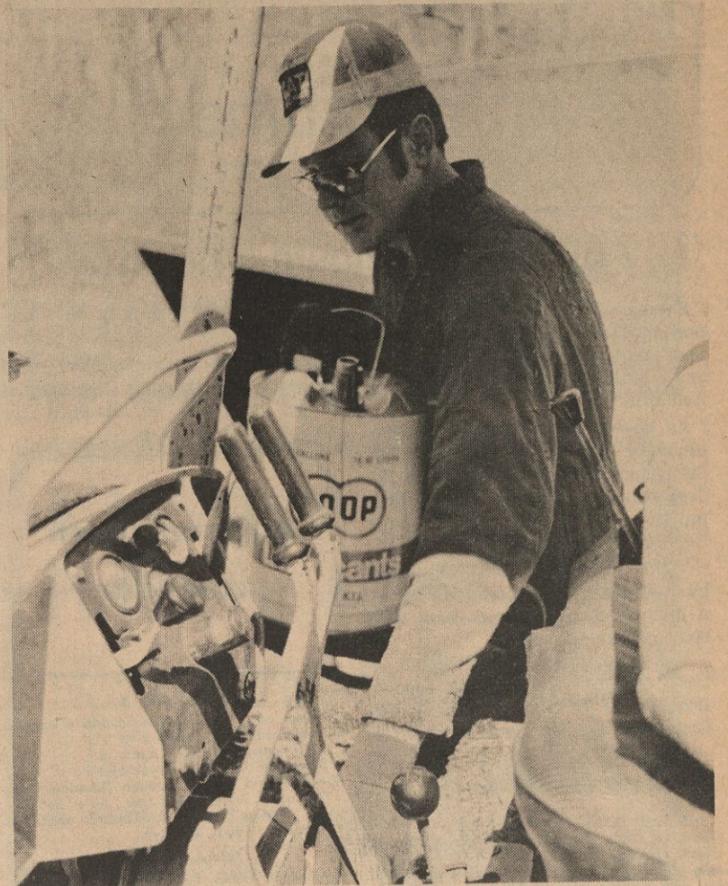

Meyer came to ET in 1965 as instructor of art education in the Art Department. In 1967, he was appointed assistant dean of the then College of Arts and Sciences. In 1969, he was appointed dean of the newly created Office of Admissions and Records.

In 1970, he came to his present position replacing Dr. Robert E. Collier as vice president, Academic Affairs.

Steelman was brought to ET from Northwestern State College in Alva, OK as an associate professor in secondary and higher education. In 1967 ET President D. Whitney Halladay appointed Steelman as Director of Continuing Education, a post he created that year. His title was changed from director to dean. He has served in that capacity since then.

In 1968, Sturcken came to ET as an associate professor of literature and

VA operating procedures to be redefined by HEW

By DAVID L. LINDSEY
Staff Writer

Dallas representatives of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare have disclosed that the Veterans' Affairs Office has not been operating in accordance with HEW guidelines and a realignment of procedure in that office is in order.

Dr. Ruth Ann White, vice president of Student Affairs, explained that the HEW's Veterans Cost of Instruction (VCOI) program was overlapping with the Veterans' Administration program.

Dr. White said that the HEW officials were on campus March 23 to visit the Veterans' Affairs Office in a friendly, unofficial capacity to offer advice and assistance to Bob Gartrell, who became head of the office in January.

Gartrell was asked for an approved copy of the VCOI budget by HEW officials but discovered that there was no copy in the office.

"We have been operating somehow this semester without money since the VCOI funding request was never actually approved by Washington," Gartrell said.

Dr. White has resubmitted a budget for approval by HEW. She said that the Veterans' Affairs Office procedure must be realigned because HEW officials pointed out that VCOI funds should be specifically revised for counseling veterans and in outreach recruitment.

Recent Veterans' Affairs procedures used the VCOI money almost exclusively for veterans certification which is a function of the Veterans' Administration program.

Gartrell said that now a new problem exists in that the $23,000 HEW grant must not be used for handling veteran records. Under his newly defined role, Gartrell is in reality the head of a veteran counseling-advertising agency. He now must

Power plant issue included

Commission, board races set Saturday

By HOWARD McLERRAN
Staff Writer

Commerce citizens will go to the polls Saturday to fill three city commission vacancies and two school board positions. Also up for vote will be a referendum on the power plant situation and a bond assumption.

City Hall, 1119 Alamo St., will be the polling place for the city commission vacancies, the referendum and the bond assumption. The school board election will be held at the Commerce Middle School on Sycamore Street. Both polls will be open from 7 a.m.-7 p.m.

The power plant referendum was called by the city commission as a "non-binding public opinion poll."

The referendum will contain two options — retain or sell the power plant.

The power plant has been operating at a cash deficit since the 1972-73 fiscal year. For the first nine months of the current fiscal year the plant has been operating on a deficit of over $36,000.

Incumbent City Commission candidate Sharon Fulkerson said that the referendum would give direction to the commission but would not give them the power to sell the plant if that is the public's opinion.

The majority of the nine city commission candidates said that they would go with public opinion on the power plant referendum. Three of the candidates felt that the city should retain the plant and one felt the plant should be sold.

Dr. David Talbot, Dr. Robin Rudoff, James Keen III, Claude Sturgeon and Dr. W. J. Bell said that they felt that the people had to decide the power plant situation. Billy Reed, George Robinson and Michael Mhoon said that they would be in favor of keeping the power plant and Sharon Fulkerson said that she was in favor of selling the plant.

Dr. Bell said that the power plant situation is "a complex situation" caused by "emotional overtones" but that there is no question that the situation has to be decided by the people. Bell predicted that the people would vote to keep the plant.

The Commerce City Commission will meet at 5 p.m. Tuesday at City Hall instead of its regularly scheduled 7 p.m. meeting. The change was made because of conflicts with the activities of the Sam Rayburn Symposium. The commission is expected to vote on the budget for 1976-77.

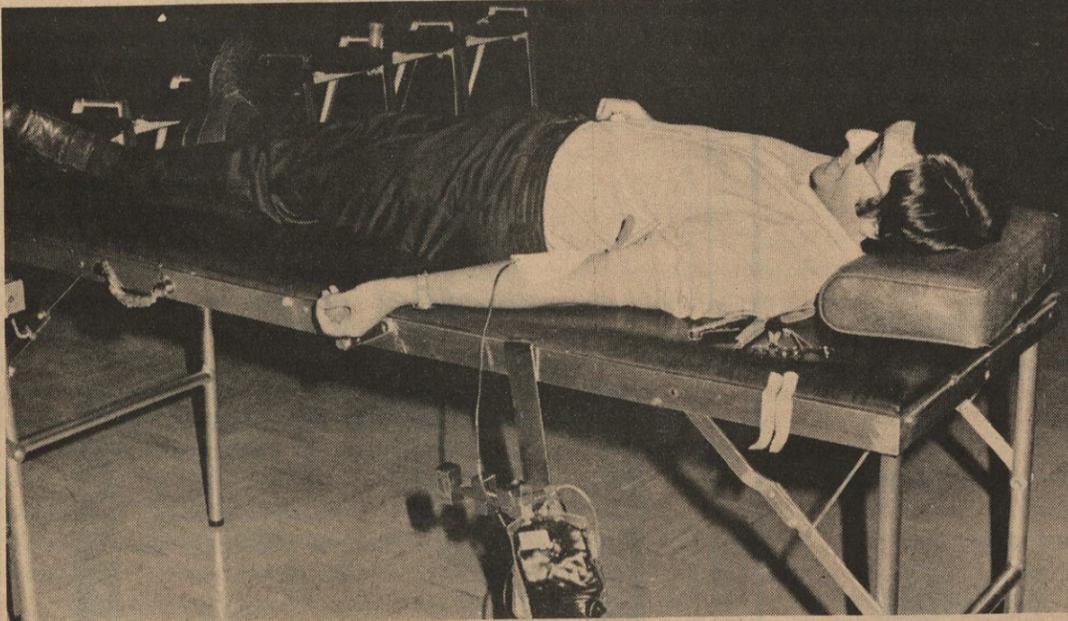

Mhoon said that he would be in favor of keeping the plant serviceable but not operating it. Robinson said that Commerce needed the city plant for competition even if it does operate at a deficit.

Three candidates have registered for each of the two school board positions. Running for Place 6 on the board are Dr. John Carrier, Ernest Burgin and Mary Savage. Dale Pashea, Joe Fred Cox and J. D. Van III are running for Place 7 on the board.

The bond assumption concerns the levying of water taxes on two areas of land annexed into the city's boundaries. A City Hall spokesman said that the two pieces of land, primarily "involving University Inn and some agriculture areas," were not paying water taxes even though they were in the Commerce water district and city boundaries.

Weather

Warm on Friday. High temperature near 80 degrees. Winds out of the south at 10-20 m.p.h. Turning cooler on the weekend. Small chance of rain near Commerce on Sunday. Look for low temperature Saturday and Sunday morning near 50 degrees. High temperature both days in the 70s. Mostly cloudy and a good chance of thunderstorms Monday. Forecast by Michael Mhoon.

ated, with six pints being donated at the downtown Commerce station and the rest donated at the Student Center during the two-day drive. The ROTC won $100 for being the campus organization to donate the most blood with 36 pints.

Musical 'Of Thee I Sing' to make use of multi-level stage, many costumes

By DANNY GODDARD
Student Writer

An elaborate multi-level stage and over 150 costumes including a wedding dress are being made for the next University Playhouse production "Of Thee I Sing," April 21-28. George S. Kaufman and Morrie Ryskind wrote the 1931 musical which won a Pulitzer Prize. Music and lyrics were composed by George and Ira Gershwin.

The play is a satirization of the absurdities of a presidential campaign. John P. Wintergreen (the P. stands for Peppermint) sweeps to a White House victory with his slogan "Put Love In The White House."

In a campaign devoid of issues, Wintergreen's backers arrange a beauty contest in Atlantic City to choose a bride for the presidential nominee. Then he is to propose to her in every state in the Union.

But Wintergreen has other plans. He falls in love with his secretary and marries her instead. The result is near war with France.

"I think it's a damn fine comedy," Anne Bomar, speech and drama faculty and director of the play, said. "It has delightful characters and an unusual format."

The musical will be the last University Playhouse production of the semester. The play is a departure from the serious political drama "Waiting for Lefty" presented earlier in the year.

"The play doesn't pretend to have a strong social issue," Bomar explained. "It has a simple story line, but it does say things about the political system. 'Of Thee I Sing' shows how the money-boys and newspaper magnates can run the election."

The play requires 13 scenes in different locations. The staging will be among the most complex and expensive used for a University Playhouse drama.

"The musical will also have a live orchestra which will consist of seven or eight pieces. The cast is twice the size of anything we've done recently," Bomar noted.

"Of Thee I Sing" will be one of the programs in the 1930s Project being conducted by ET. Students enrolled in Forum Arts will be able to get in free.

Performances will be held at 8 p.m. nightly. Reservations can be made by calling the box office at 468-2669.

English major earns education, income by driving bulldozer

By DANNY GODDARD
Student Writer

The bulldozer sat in the middle of a cow pasture three miles north of Cooper and waited for its operator to finish filling the crankcase with thick black oil bought at the local co-op.

"John Deere must make a good machine because I've been driving it for four months and haven't torn it up yet," said 6-foot 4-inch, 210-pound Frankie Enloe, Allen junior.

Enloe pushed back the red cap with a CAT patch on it and wiped away the sweat on his forehead with his sleeve. "I've been driving a bulldozer since I was 10-years-old working for my dad, John Enloe."

"I didn't get paid for working or have an allowance, but I had plenty. He died when I was 16 and I started driving a dozer for pay when I was 17."

Enloe is working his way through college running the bulldozer for Billie Rayshell and earning $5 an hour. He usually clears around $300 by working 60 hours a month.

"The boss is never on the job. He finds the jobs and I go do them," Enloe explained. Mainly, he builds tanks, terraces and re-routes streams, but Enloe will do practically any job requiring a bulldozer.

Pointing to the small yellow bulldozer, Enloe said, "This is a finishing machine. It can't do the quantity of work a bigger dozer can, but it can do better quality work."

"The operator has to know about earth compaction and water drainage. You also have to know how to leave it looking pretty, so the guy will call you back."

"I work in all kinds of weather, except when it's raining," Enloe noted. During the winter he grew a thick bushy beard, in sharp contrast to his short red hair, cowboy hat and boots.

"Everyone was wondering why I was running around looking like a freak. It was because I was cold," he grinned.

"I've driven a truck and I was the youngest foreman for a sub-contractor working on the Missouri-Pacific Railroad in 1974," said the 23-year-old.

"I even played in a rock and roll band. Now they're playing at 'Daddy's Money.' I still write a few songs," Enloe commented while he poured the last of the oil into the bulldozer. He is majoring in English.

"I used to ride a chopper with the president of the Banditos. But I went on a mission trip with a girl I knew, and had a religious experience," he revealed.

Enloe put a pinch of Copenhagen in his cheek and swung into the cab of the bulldozer. "Now my only vice is chewing tobacco. I don't smoke, drink or chase women in the daylight."

The engine started and the blade dug into the ground uprooting a small tree. Enloe was intent, bent over the controls with steady practiced ease.

The controlled violence of the earth-moving machine reflected Enloe's philosophy. "I like to knock down trees, but I don't like for them to fall on me."

Parking guidelines given

The Security Department has advised that on Tuesday and Wednesday of the Sam Rayburn Public Affairs Symposium the following parking areas will not be available to students, faculty and staff:

The Student Center parking lot west of the Student Center will be reserved for visitor parking. Some spaces around the Social Science, Journalism and Music Buildings will be barricaded for guest speakers and panelists.

Hillis, Barker take new offices

By BOB DURHAM
and SUE RUGGLES
Student Writers

Hue L. Hillis, United Students Association president-elect and Brad Barker, vice president-elect were sworn into their respective offices Wednesday.

Only eight senators listened as Chief Justice of the Supreme Court Freddie Orr administered the oath of office.

Out-going vice president Del Brown expressed his thanks to out-going president Gerald Scarborough for his outstanding work for the USA and then asked him to speak.

Scarborough thanked Brown for his comments and said he enjoyed the past year. He added that he thought many important things had been achieved and that they should be carried forward.

Scarborough hoped the new officers would continue work on the legal rights program. He had no regrets and felt the USA had done an outstanding job during the past year.

Orr then called Hillis and Barker to the rostrum for administration of the oath of office. Orr said that the office was demanding, but he was sure that they could do the job.

"I'm all fired up and I hope we can do as good a job as Gerald Scarborough and Del Brown did," Barker said.

The proceedings were then adjourned due to lack of a quorum to conduct Senate business.

2 senatorial candidates coming to symposium

By SUSAN WILSON
Staff Writer

Two candidates in the Texas Democratic primary campaign for the U.S. Senate will be appearing in tandem during the Sam Rayburn Public Affairs Symposium next week.

Lloyd Bentsen, incumbent U.S. Senator, is a featured speaker at 7 p.m. at the Sam Rayburn Memorial Dinner Tuesday night, where the theme of this year's symposium, "Liberty Under Law: Foundations of a Free Society," will be discussed.

Phil Gramm, opposing Bentsen in the Democratic primary, will be the guest speaker at 3 p.m. Wednesday, at the College of Business Administration Symposium entitled "Freedom, the Law, and the American Business System."

Gramm, 33, a professor of economics presently on leave of absence from Texas A&M University, is an expert on energy, environmental policy, banking and inflation.

Both Bentsen and Gramm are self-proclaimed conservatives. Bentsen defeated strongly entrenched Sen. Ralph Yarborough in 1970 in a campaign that emphasized Yarborough's liberal record welfare programs.

languages. In the fall of 1972, she was appointed dean of the graduate school. She gained full professorship of literature and languages in 1973.

Later in 1973, President McDowell appointed Sturcken to her present position as dean, College of Liberal and Fine Arts.

President McDowell left noon Wednesday for Texas A&M to meet with the Association of Texas Colleges and Universities.

His official statement was that additional comment on the subject prior to the Spring meeting of the Board of Regents would serve no useful purpose and would be inappropriate at this time.

He noted that announcements of personnel actions generally are not made until recommendations received formal action by the ET Board of Regents but said he is making this brief statement to allay further speculation and unfounded rumors concerning his recommendations.

only handle counseling duties and somehow affect some sort of door knocking campaign to let area veterans know what programs are available.

This is all just fine, Gartrell said, but that leaves the certification program unfunded because the $4,000 awarded to ET by the VA to allay veteran record keeping expenses currently goes into ET's general account and not to the Veterans' Affairs Office.

Dr. White said that there will be a meeting soon to discuss the realignment of Veterans' Affairs procedures.

"VA regulations are still in the process of change, and we are in the process of studying the newest changes," Dr. White said.

"We have had no trouble with the VA in the past, and expect none in the future," she added.

Dr. White said that as far as a VA audit of ET's veterans' records is concerned, veterans here don't have to fear losing benefits.

"We try to stay in line with VA guidelines and have even requested audits in the past to be sure we were maintaining records in accordance with their guidelines," Dr. White said.

Two resign; court justice offices open

Two Supreme Court justice positions are now open due to resignations of justices, and a third position may open up if another justice is asked to resign.

Justice Ronnie Adcock will probably be asked to resign from his position since he is busy working as an insurance adjuster for his father's firm and helping out in area election campaigning, leaving too little time to work as a justice, Chief Justice Freddie Orr said.

Students with at least a junior standing and 2.5 grade point average can apply to be a Supreme Court justice. After filling out an application, a candidate must be nominated by the United Student Association president and be approved by the senate.

One case involving student Jeff Teasley, who is appealing a traffic ticket he received was taken before the courts earlier this week, but Orr said that the court will not try the case.

Orr said that he must talk to Dean of Student Life Ron Robinson "to find out where the jurisdiction on this case lies." Since the case would involve a student appealing to an all-student court, a decision made by the Supreme Court might be biased, he said.

Instead, the case will probably be heard by the Traffic Committee which consists of faculty, students and staff members, Orr said. It could then be appealed to the associate dean of Student Life, and then to the director of Traffic and Security.

The Supreme Court has jurisdiction over cases directly involving students alone, such as cases involving Panhellenic, Inter-Residence Hall Council or the Interfraternity Council, Orr said.

Though the court has not heard a case in the past two years, Orr said that "it was real active three years ago." Orr said that he thinks students are unaware that the court exists because it has seen so little action in the past couple of years. Due to this lack of awareness, justices become discouraged and quit.

Justices currently on the Court include Ardis Wright, Roger Bartz, David Johnson, Isaac Williams, Wade Glover and Ronnie Adcock.
