E. J. Courtmen Getting in Shape

SIX LETTER MEN BACK ON BASKETBALL SQUAD

Team Practices Two Days and Three Nights Each Week

With the close of the football season, the Lion Courtmen are getting down to real work in preparation for the opening of the basketball season.

There are six letter men back in school this year: Angelo Cruz, (Captain); James Forrest Gardner, (Boss); Duncan; Fulford; Williams; Preney. Eight (Gordon Smith, Francis and three who were not in school last year) have been lettered in former years.

Most of the letter men are but a few several non-players that show much promise especially Parker, a former Texas Tech man, and (Glen) a member of the squad of 1922. In addition to these are some members of last year's squad, such as MacMillin, Carr, Bond and Pounds.

The schedule has not been made out yet but it will be arranged within the next few days. There is a strong possibility that some practice games will be held before the opening of the regular season.

The workouts this year are being held at night with the exception of Wednesday and Saturday when the practice sessions are held in the afternoon.

Much enthusiasm is in evidence in the workouts and the prospects for a winning season seem good.

EAST TEXANS TO BE PLACED IN BOXES FOR COLLEGE INSTRUCTORS

Beginning with the present issue of the East Texan a copy of each paper will be placed in a box in the registrar's office for every instructor in the College.

CHRISTMAS TREE STAR IS SURROUNDED BY TRADITION

The first Christmas tree at E. T. was in 1871.

It is a tradition, who with a good of leaves board carried the tree for the first time, covering it in tissue brought each year by Glen Madsen. Each year the same star has been carefully brought forth and subsequently put away.

In 1923 at a simple and yet beautiful service held in chapel Mr. Ingram was made custodian of the Star.

On Thursday, December 13, at 8:45, the annual service will be held. It is invited to come and take part in the service.

Hundreds of students have been the privilege of participating in the annual service since star will not be in "hold" in place.

MANY PICTURES YET DUE FOR THE COLLEGE ANNUAL

Full to Have Pictures Delayed

Work on the Locust, East Texas Teachers' College annual, is progressing well, considering the material that has been secured.

It is hoped by the Locust Staff that those who have not had their pictures for the class sections and the various organizations, go to the studio and have their delay works a real hardship on the Editors.

The president of each club is urged to come to the Locust office at once and make arrangements for their section in the annual.

STUDENT TEACHERS ARE ENTERTAINED

Misses Workman, Wilson, Evans, and Mrs. Sanders entertained the Student Teachers on Friday night, November 23, with a winner, held at the college dining room.

The group played cards and the winners were ready to treat the group nearly for an hour. Then the girls went to Miss Workman's home for "dinner" for a while.

Those present were: Mrs. Sanders, Misses Workman, Wilson, Evans, Wilson, East Texan, Carrie Mae Casperson, Ruth Johnson, Ayla Mae Hill, Mrs. Stella Johnson, Nell Wren, Della A. Green, Elna Richardson, Belle Satterwhite, Grace Sparks, Barbara Swain, Besse and Misses Marie Watkins, Frances Weir, Geraldine Young, and Marie Wilson.

ENROLLMENT AGAIN REACHES 1100

Approximately eleven hundred students has already registered for the winter term that has been during the fall. There are still a few students who have failed to pre-register.

Don't wait any longer. Go to Howe Studio and have that picture made.

Miss Deryl Bingham, Edna Jones and Dottie Taylor were visitors in Austin during Thanksgiving.

Miss Nell Daley was in Hughes Springs last week end.

Have your picture made for the Annual.

CHRISTMAS SPIRIT TO BE EXPRESSED IN CAROL SERVICE

Songs to Interpret Meaning and Significance of Christmas Season

The Annual Carol Service for the Christmas season will be held in the auditorium Friday night, December 14, at 7:30.

Those who are unacquainted with these services will spend their time gainfully by attending, as the true spirit of Christmas is expressed in the beautiful songs of the season.

Since the beginning of Time, God has been praising in song. Before the Christian era the savage-hunters had their chants that were used to influence the different gods.

Likewise, when the angels announced to the waiting shepherds the birth of Christ, they did it in song. At Christmas time, the birth day of our Lord, the most beautiful part of the worship is the singing of the Christmas carols.

The following is the program that is to be presented: "Gloria in the Highest," "Processional," "Three Kings of the Orient Are," "O Little Town of Bethlehem," "Away, when the angels announced it. Came Upon a Midnight Clear," "Joy to the World," "Angels From the Realms of Glory," "First Noel"

"LOVE IN A MIST" IS NEXT PLAY FOR LITTLE THEATRE

Work on Rehearsals Has Begun

The next presentation to be given by the Commerce Community Theatre will be "Love in a Mist" to be acted in the new auditorium, January 23, 1924.

The play is a comedy written by Fives and Egnor, and contains a great deal of human interest.

A very capable cast has been selected from the student body, and work has already begun on an elaborate cast includes the following persons: Barbara Swain, Madeline Kaling, Thelma May, Ed Johnson, Roy Johnson, William Jones, Stanley Cameron and Gladys Thurman.

Daniel Baker Hillie Billies Win T. I. A. A. Football Championship

DEFEAT A. C. C. WILDCATS 14-0 THANKSGIVING

TRAINING SCHOOL TO GIVE VESPER SERVICE DEC. 16.

TRADITION BEING BUILT IN TRAINING PROGRAM

The T. I. A. A. Championship was held Thanksgiving day when the Daniel Baker Hillie Billies met the A. C. C. Wildcat College of Wilcox at a score of 14-0. Both teams had played through their conference schedule and both were in the race for the championship until the Thanksgiving game was over.

The results of the game was that Hillie Christian College was ahead of them 10-0, a tie with McMurry College of Abbeville for second place in the T. I. A. A. race. Incidentally the only T. I. A. A. game McMurry lost was to the Daniel Baker Hillie Billies.

Daniel Baker has a clear claim to the title having defeated such strong teams as San Houston State Teachers College, Abbeville Christian College, McMurry College and not meeting a defeat in their Conference schedule.

The Training School Christmas program will be presented as a Vesper service in the New Auditorium on Sunday afternoon, December 16, at 4:30 o'clock. This date is set in keeping with the idea that it is a sacred observance, and also allows the fathers and mothers to attend the program without inconvenience. It is hoped that the 4:30 program will not conflict with other services on the day. The general public is invited to attend.

The Training School is building a tradition in its Christmas worship program. For many years the children have given devotionals, a collection pageant and card service suited to the season. The central idea is the giving of service to others, and it is presented in the story of "Why the Chinese Feast." A large number of children will appear in both the choral and the dramatic parts of the program.

A. B. C. TO GIVE SQUARE DANCE

The Agricultural Boosters Club will give a square dance in the old gymnasium Saturday evening, December 8, at 7:30.

Special music for the occasion has been provided for, in addition to other attractive features. Admission will be fifteen cents for one person, and twenty-five cents for a couple.

KNIGHT AND CASTON TO BE W. A. A. DELEGATES

The Women's Athletic Association will hold its Wednesday meeting, November 21, for the purpose of selecting applicants of every sport in the Association. The following leaders were called:

- Chairman - Macdon.
- Field - Maurice Lancaster.
- Basket-Ball - Elizabeth Caston.
- Dancing - Kathleen Lancaster.
- Field Hockey - Pauline Williams.
- Cross - Mildred Barry.
- Baseball - Pitching - Hoyles Campbell.

It was mentioned in the East Texan last week that the following would send two delegates to the W. A. A. convention to be held in Fort Worth December 17, 18 and 19. The following were selected: Go: Ruth Knight, President of W. A. A. and Elizabeth Caston.

Because of the rain which fell Monday morning the W. A. A. missed their first part of the work. However, a very enjoyable party was had on Monday, December 3.

Stella Anderson, O. C. Mulkey, Marjorie Cameron, J. G. Mulkey, and Marjorie Allen, were the winners in the T. I. A. A. football game.

Sara Louise Taylor visited friends in Durant, Oklahoma, during Thanksgiving.

TARDINESS A HABIT

Tardiness, the first time, may be unavoidable or at least quite accidental, but once an act is done for the first time it is very easy to repeat the second time. It is this second time which we must watch, for habits form very easily as a general thing, but they are broken, on the contrary, only at the expense of much time and effort.

For many of us it is nothing new or unusual to walk into the same class day after day several minutes after the tardy bell has rung. This act not only marks a boy or girl as one who is not prompt and dependable, but it also shows the probability of a man or woman who will never be really nor fully satisfied who will always be just a little behind all the rest.

When one student comes into a class room late, he not only disturbs the teacher in his lesson assigning, or lecturing, but also causes the other students to lose their minds from their studies, all of which results in the loss of much time and energy.

STUDENTS SUPPORT THE ADVERTISERS

The East Texan is your paper and the merchants who advertise in it are the East Texan as helping to support your school. As students you should help to support each and every one of you to purchase your supplies. Robber. Thief. He put that in whenever they may be from the merchant advertising in our college paper. When you trade with our clients who advertise, you will always get your money worth in quality as well as quantity, because of a business establishment that is not just advertising, it is worth turning.

Do not be afraid to tell you where to buy your needs, but you as students of E. T. S. it is your duty to support those who support our college organizations. We have merchants in Commerce who do not just advertise on college trade to stay in business, yet they never advertise in the paper. Remember, the ad. are also E. T. ## FLING GIVES LECTURE FOR LAMAR B. Y. P. U.

Prof. H. M. Fling gave his lecture on the "Lamar B. Y. P. U." at the Y. M. C. A. building in Commerce, Texas, on Friday, December 15, 1928. The lecture was one of the best given by Prof. Fling in several other cities. The Y. M. C. A. building in Commerce, Texas, was the scene of the lecture.

The Murray Indians pulled things up for the home folks by making the East Texas Teachers' college #113. The game was much more interesting than the score indicated, however. The Lions playing attack was almost uncopy. Once they carried the ball, from the 20 yard mark to a touchdown in four flings. A twenty-five yard pass on fourth down over the pass set the counter.

We were fortunate in getting good news in the heart of December. Concerning the distance from Commerce to special bus. This just shows what a college can do even in the winter. Stay in these East Texas.

Spiritual Influence of Astronomy

By J. M. Hines

"The heavens declare the glory of God; and the firmament showeth His handiwork."

The knowledge gained by an earnest study of astronomy renders more significant this most beautiful and marvelous statement uttered by David nearly three thousand years ago. The statement is beautiful not only because of its symmetry and harmony of expression, but because it perhaps has implied faith in and his joyous admiration of the great Creator and Designer of the universe about him; and marvelous in the fact that it gave utterance in the early dawn of human history to a truth which since has challenged the attention and most profound study of many of the world's greatest intellects and has led to the discovery of a vast amount of information for the service and advancement of mankind.

A few years ago it was my privilege to be shown through one of the great regions, north of America, the great number of organized groups which with the thousands of people and hundreds of thousands of people provided with every convenience, were existing in connection with such delicate and delicate operations that the entire world of who on perfect the mind and yet endeavoring to do the work of a machine. It is not a little strange that such a thing should have a small as designed a machine that had never been known. No personal machine could ever have been known to the world of man.

The opportunity was afforded me to visit one of the great printing presses of the country. As I was given to see the effective result of the Moxley Machine, with its half of perforated paper driven by an electric current, placing the type in line upon line in perfect position, and the machine was so constructed as to touch or to guide its movements, and yet performing a task designed for the country. ## ADVENTURES OF SIR TINY

By J. M. Hines

"The heavens declare the glory of God; and the firmament showeth His handiwork."

"Bang!" A loud explosion kicked the boat to its foundations. Kiley screamed "Stand! We're being waylaid!" and ducked under the "good" look.

"What that fire?" said Obe as he prepared the life boat and lowered to the damage.

White Kanley moored in the rear cabin of the boat the rest of the crew worked. Once Dorra suggested that the sleeping one be awakened and put to scrubbing deck, but that interrupted and reminded Obe that the crew would be cruel, due to the fact that Kanley had two thoughts that day and as a youth was completely worn out. "Let the poor boy sleep," he said.

Once Kanley and the crew was returned since all the crew with the exception of the first sleep. Sir Tiny placed nothing in his pocket and kept the travelers during the influence of "Morning" and the work started in and made a start at an attempt. Sir Tiny was first to the boat in order to awake the occupants and the crew.

"What is a Star?" asked Jilly. "Who is under the North?" "The opportunity was afforded me to visit one of the great printing presses of the country. ## The Significance of Armistice Day as a Contribution to the Cause of World Peace

Due to the fact that a great number of persons were unable to hear the address made at the College on November 11 by Hon. Wayne H. Howell of California, and in view of the excellent nature of the speech, it has been suggested that a part of Howell's speech be published. His address is one of the best that has been heard in Commerce on a similar subject, and it will doubtless be valuable to present in part, to the public through the press.

Excerpts from the address follow:

The possibilities of the proper observance of Armistice Day as a contribution to the cause of World Peace cannot be overestimated. No truly great nation can afford to let the remembrance of the valor of its heroes, living and dead, who served the cause of justice and right, notwithstanding the fact that the possibilities of Armistice Day to more material of showing our victory and perpetuating a memory, which is the real purpose and opportunity of this great National Holiday have been so completely forgotten.

In the spirit of Lincoln's Gettysburg address let us not only commemorate the valor of those who made the supreme sacrifice, but also dedicate ourselves to the ultimate realization of the ideal for which they fought, namely, that war might end and lasting peace prevail; that even the unasked might reach such a state of understanding and goodwill that the causes of war will be removed or minimized, and perhaps in time eliminated, when reason shall overcome prejudice and passion, and all men shall be treated as a beloved neighbor, and his rights and his honor will be respected, and his freedom will be secured, and his life and his property will be safe and undisturbed, and his freedom of thought and of expression of his final attainment of peace and justice.

Highly let us recall a few of the facts the world witnessed on that day, and as a sort of historical background. For fifty-two months preceding November 11, 1918, the principal powers of the world were engaged in an unprecedented conflict, the purpose and significance of which the world had never before known experienced. In July 1914 we witnessed the principal powers of the Old World try at each others' throats with such malice and ferocity as to startle the world. With the alignment of these nations in this conflict there was revealed to the world for the first time a system of alliances which the average citizen of the countries involved knew little or nothing of. To avoid a repetition of these dangerous, uncalculated attacks, the powers of peace have been chiefly concerned since the cessation of hostilities. After these fifty-two months of desperate struggle with the inevitable exhaustion of the United States we were drawing in a large circle, Great Britain, France, Italy, Japan, and Austria-Hungary, Germany, and the United States, and the nations tried to avoid the inevitable result of the Armistice.

It is now the occasion of an opportunity to honor and memorialize the great nation of the United States and Germany were fought, and Germany, seeking the humiliating disaster, and anxious to make the best price possible under the circumstances, capitulated on November 11, 1918, in an Armistice which was equivalent to unconditional surrender. Germany had sacrificed the possibility of a more advantageous capitulation for the sake of protecting her own borders from threatened invasion and possible devastation. And so, at eleven o'clock on the morning of November 11, 1918, the deafening roar of cannon and the rattling of machine guns and the whirr of motors ceased and a stillness that was almost oppressive brooded over the battle front and men who had suffered too long for ill-hatred and who were moved with emotions too deep for adequate expression, or perhaps even understanding, rose out of the trenches in safety for the first time in fifty-two long months. The first Armistice Day had begun. The greatest war of all time was at an end.

What was the price, and of what avail? 65 million men had been mobilized, 4 million had been killed or died; 21 million had been wounded; seven and one-half million had been taken prisoners or were missing; a total casualty of 37 million or 20 per cent of the total mobilization. The economic waste is beyond all human calculation. It had impoverished the world.

Motivated by the hopes of November 11, 1918, it is clear that the first decade has proved to be a disappointing one. What the program of reconstruction has accomplished is all exceptionally good. It is clear that only relatively minor progress has been made in what might, perhaps, be called the organization of peace. The world has certainly grown calmer. Pathos has been subdued, but it would be false to attempt to disguise the fact that the superficial improvement has not served to eliminate the cause of war. In recent months new expression, aside in the speech of Woodrow Wilson, the explosion which this aspect provoked in Germany, and in the world wide mobilization consequent upon a new Anglo-French agreement which revivifies all the old memories of the pre-war days.

Our country is not without her share in the accomplishments of the past decade. First comes the work of Secretary Kellogg in bringing about the signing of the Kellogg-Briand Treaty. Mr. Woodrow Wilson of New York City, former Attorney General of the United States, the American member of a Committee of Jurists working under the League of Nations for the codification of international law and securing its acceptance by the Nations on such basis as that of the recent Mutualist Treaty. The more completely war is removed the more necessary is the creation of definite mechanisms for the settlement of questions by Courts of Law or boards of arbitration.

Mr. Charles Evans Hughes has been elected to lead and guard in this line the best interests of the international community at the Hague.

In conclusion, I hope you have derived the feeling that the best remarks on the possibilities of the proper observance of Armistice Day is a contribution by the United States, to study together the status and security of the peace of the World, and on the basis of undisciplined intelligence and understanding use the opportunity the day affords to contribute our best efforts to the development of a world sentiment against war, knowing that the highest commendation of those sacrificed to war lies in the cooperation of ourselves for, and the best of ourselves to the ultimate attainment of permanent peace.

Have you GOT 'EM?
When a fellow breaks in weary
And the sun's refused to shine
When every day is dreary,
And the blues come by his mind,
When the hours, slowly dragging
Seem to last as many years,

And old Dadness keeps on nagging
—him
Until he breaks in tears,
That fellow needs some PCS!
His thinking comes in pairs.
He also needs some sympathy
Cause there's symptoms of the dirt.

"Drums of Love"

AT HIPPODROME MONDAY AND TUESDAY

Don Calhoun de Alvia, a giant of a man, grunted, lashed and stroked by war, rules fifty tyrannical away over a large dominion. With his in his battles and on the occasions of state, is his handsome brother, Leonardo. The two brothers are bound by a solemn oath of faith to a ritual death to anyone who will dishonor the name of their house.

A cruel battle takes place between the forces of Calhoun and the Duke of Granada. The Duke is defeated and to save his life and the last remnants of his domain, he consents to give his daughter, Emmanuela, in marriage to Calhoun. As he is about to call for his bride—Calhoun finds that it will be necessary for him to remain at home, entertaining a foreign ambassador. He sends word to bring the bride home.

Emmanuela, trembling, waits for her father's husband. She has learned from Calhoun of a great shame which she has sworn to keep secret. She has an opportunity to tell the truth to Calhoun, but she is torn between her duty and her love. She is torn between her duty and her love. She is torn between her duty and her love.

Calhoun, finding out, is torn between his duty and his love. He is torn between his duty and his love. He is torn between his duty and his love. He is torn between his duty and his love.

Difficult Process

A color-controlled machine was used and displayed recently in Los Angeles. It will start and stop at the sound of the voice. The end is so perfect, there is no reason why every child machine can be developed to such an extent as to reproduce a photograph without a shadow of a shadow. It is a wonder that it is not used in every school. It is a wonder that it is not used in every school. It is a wonder that it is not used in every school.
