Parasols Assume Regular Berths In Line Of Timey Fads And Fashions On Campus Of College. No Casualties Reported Yet

First they strike bathing beaches, and then they strike the miniature golf course. Later, success, they make their dilatory appearance on the campus of the College. The above mentioned objects are nothing more than umbrellas; however, the type that appears in the latter place are reduced to such a size that they become called parasols. Nevertheless, they are being used and serving the purpose of keeping the sun off of those "foot-stir" companions and that "skin that loves to be touched" and keeping people dodging.

If they do not possess such weapons (as they will probably be called later in the season) the students are denied the objects, a report has been issued that not one person on the campus has yet received the slight injury to the optical faculty as a result of the pernicious points thereof.

Reports, however, from a very reliable source has also been issued to the effect that no one has been injured attempting to use the parasol as a parachute by which to descend from the sky. No other structure of that sort.

Wide Range Of Nomenclature Shown By Eccentric Nom De Plumes Of The Colored Employees At New Library

While the nomenclature of human individuals is wide and varied in its range, running from Millington to Owendyffyn, and from Paris to Archduke, the eclectic no-de-plumes of the dorky in the old states follows no set law and the same as assumed by the negro are still a puzzle to mankind.

A slight abbreviation of the usual black backs is still present after three hundred years of new surroundings. The improper names assumed at birth, by the dorky dwellers in the minds of the white habitants of the colonies, and the same as assumed by the negro are still a puzzle to mankind.

When giving orders, it sounds as if the superintendent were speaking Greek or Latin.

They say—Go you and Call-Eye to second and hold Otin-by and Crack-Shot with two names that enter in his mind.

On the pay roll of the workmen employed at the new library building will be found the names "Call-Eye," "Otin-by," "Red Call-Eye," "Otin-by," and others of like character.

"Call-Eye" draws his pay as "Call-Eye." He has no other name, and he finds himself unhandicapped by the absence of it. The same is true with the others.

"Crack-Shot," stated H. H. Stevens, superintendent of the building, has been with the company for many years. He came under the name of Crack-Shot, and has been known by that name.

CUTTING THE CAMPUS

Due to the apparently inevitable violation of a common ruling of the campus beautification committee, it has long been an abhorrent custom of the editors of the Texas to write an editorial each term as an appeal to the student body to cease their "cutting the campus," thereby marred the beauty of the grounds. In keeping with the custom set by the predecessors of this administration of the Texas, an article of the same kind has been necessitated by the violation of the above mentioned ruling, but to a greater extent.

It will be noticed that walking across the campus has caused the forming of paths in various directions giving it quite a modernistic appearance. Our campus is remembered for the beauty by many celebrities who have visited here and it should be kept so in order to retain its worthiness for such regard. Probably there is no serious harm in cutting the grounds, but the students should at least walk in various directions in order to avoid the most objectionable path formed thus far is that from the prohibit the forming of trails and paths.

College Pharmacy for the Main Building. With just a little more effort and a few more steps on the part of the students who cross from one of the two places to the other, such trails would not be begun and the ground would be allowed to grow as has been its rightful custom for years.

This violation has probably been encouraged by the erection of the Campus Golf Course, the easiest path to be taken from the buildings to that place being directly across the grass which act further induces the student to walk on the grass elsewhere on the campus.

Wim, Wigor, And Witality Mark Lethal Encounters Of Collector Against Collector On Each First

Brain against brain. Brawn against brawn. Speed against speed. Power against power. Words against words. Jokes against jokes.

Today is the first. The survival of the whitest. A struggle to the end. There is no quarter given or taken.

Like warping a playing from feudal civilization, the collectors change sides—their enemies with win, wigor, and witality. Like admittance they rest the attack with witaly, wigor, and wim. With win, witality and wigor the two gladiators meet to fight first on this occasion if it takes all summer. They argue, they plead, they entreat, they threaten, they bring into play every trick, every known bit of cunning and chicanery.

Minutes pass. Like a fallen oak across the channel of the brimming river, the two debaters check the stream of passing pedestrians, and other collectors hover about the battle ground, ready to pounce upon the unfortunate, or hypocritical one.

The first at a great American Institution. Men who will intrepidly face the roaring cannon and the lashing of a swaman's tongue, turn pale and tremble

Loam Donated To Museum

Due to the interest and assistance of Dr. Clarence Allen, and to the generous public spirit manifested by certain citizens of the Campbell Community, the Texas State Teachers College has just acquired some rare and valuable relics.

The most valuable of these is an old hand made loom, dating back to pre-Civil War days. It was made by John Jaggas of Morris County, Texas, eighty or ninety years ago. Mr. Jaggas, the uncle of Mrs. F. P. Reynolds, who lives a few miles north of Campbell Hill, Mrs. Reynolds donated the loom to the Museum in order that it might be preserved. Looms such as this are very rare, according to C. T. Neu, Head of the Department of History, and the Texas State Teachers College and supervisor of the Museum.

Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds also donated a reel which is in perfect state of preservation. This device was used to wind the yarn and put it into the bunks for use on the loom.

Girls map him and we will finish him. A. M. Howse and Son, Studio.

There were four buildings, three of which appear to be made of one wooden structure. The Main Building is now much as it was then. The other three, however, were adorned with fancy architecture.

A well, directly back of the Main Building, reveals to the mind the strange which those then in charge of the school had in gaining adequate water for fire prevention purposes. None of the roads were paved or gravelled, and there were only a few wooden sidewalks.

There were no houses or business buildings on the north side of Lee Street.

Dr. C. T. Neu, in charge of the collection, states that he has been promised a key-wood cabinet, a spinning wheel, and an Indian mortar.

"Through the cooperation of the student body the collection and those people interested in the College," stated Dr. Neu, "we have been able to make great progress with the work of building the Museum. We are anxious to have the collection of letters and books. Reminiscences of the pioneer days are of great value to us. Indian relics, war relics, old coins, or anything which has historical significance will be welcomed by the student body of the college, but will be displayed in glass cases in the museum room."

"East Is East And West Is West" Rut It Is Found That Commertics Don't Object To The Meeting Of The Turin

"East Is East and West Is West" And over the twin sail "meet."

At least that is the way things are supposed to be in the land of Kipling's purple roses. But Commerce is not a land of purple roses. It is a land of red and white cotton blooms. And in the land of red and white cotton blooms the east and the west twank noses with each other. Even the sun and the moon haven't the slightest regard for the laws of interplanetary right-of-ways.

The morning to make the point more clearly, a son of the southern sand, repaled in Tom Mix accoutrements, came galloping across the public plaza in a T model Ford. Now to many people who believe that the east stays on one side of the ocean, and the west spends the day on the other in soliditudinous ruminations, the incident would have evoked a storm of protestations on the ground that all the laws of veridicality had been shattered. But in Commerce, the land of red and white cotton blooms, not one should pass the slightest comment of approbation on the outer occurrence.

If the man wanted to wear a cowboy suit, ride in a T model Ford, (from which one spark plug had been removed in order to give the machine the characteristic engine joggle) and to eat and chafe wild motorcycle coats, no Commerce would object.

Commerce is a free town. It is a peaceful town. And it doesn't worry about keeping the east and the west separated. What does it care about the longitude and latitude in the land of purple roses?

Malaria Cause Of Fifty Per Cent Of Cases At Hospital

According to figures gained from hospital attendants, malaria has become prevalent in the College Hospital. Entries show that of the fourteen cases treated during the past two weeks, seven of them have been malaria. Those suffering from some cases were: D. A. Jeffries of Lake Creek, Mrs. Aron Swindell of Com. Wilmon Fight of Hughes Springs, E. Lawrence of Padestur, Hal Letha, Vickers of Depot, Irene Winn of Sulphur Springs, and Aylne Leland.

Appendicitis led next with three cases: Miss Lila Mae Smith of Whiteburg, Miss Gladys Pugh of Talco, and Miss Betts, Pugh of Leaburg. Miss Fuller was transferred to Section 5 Hospital in Greenville.

There were also two cases of mumps. A tooth was the cause of one entry in the register. There was one other case, the nature of which was not ascertained.

CLARINE BRANOM
WRITES TO LATIN CLUB FROM CUBA

The Latin Club received the following letter from a former member, Miss Clarine Branom, graduate of '26, who with four other teachers is making a tour across the South to Cuba and return.

Havana, Cuba, June 12, 1930.

Dear Mr. Freeman:

At last we are in Havana! We arrived this afternoon on the Governor Cobb. The trip was uneventful except for the sea sickness of two of the other girls. The rest of us were dazed most of the time, but that was not so unpleasant as having a full case.

Our guide met us at the boat so we had no trouble with the customs, and were taken immediately to our hotel, the Paraje. Everything is quite Spanish, as usual, Cuban. Soon after our arrival would expect, or I should think we were shopping. We make ourselves understood, it was rather hard for us to find some lovely things, but ever so often, had you been there, you would have seen a following of handsome Cubans (for all Cubans are handsome) up this aisle and down that to find the interpreter. If we did not follow immediately, our "leader" would wait for us to find the interpreter. If we did not follow immediately, our "leader" would wait for us to find the interpreter. If we did not follow immediately, our "leader" would wait for us to find the interpreter.

The first store that we visited was El Encanto, which is Havana's largest and best department store. We were so pleased to find large fashionably colored, open and shut cases, that we could not help buying. Nearly every Cuban lady carries one. We were looking at the strings of beads on display. They were lovely, some were of pineapple pulp, others were made of rock, and some had been carved of other materials by prisoners. We found hats, shoes, dresses, and jewelry that more than pleased us, but which, of course, we were unable to buy because of the great prices. However, one of the girls did purchase an attractive one.

We had intended to bring the car over, but after reaching Miami we decided it would be best to store it in Key West; and we did wisely, for driving here was more complicated than in our cities. Nearly every one goes at a snail's pace, but accidents are a few. Passing other motorists on the right as well as on the left is permitted.

Friday. This morning we made a tour of the city. We visited Columbus Cathedral, where the body of the traitor, explorer or one rejected. But after Spain lost Cuba the body was taken to Seville. Later we went to La Merced, the most beautiful church in Cuba. Here we saw a large painting of Columbus, given to the church by a Spanish nobleman who was then living on the island. There were once two of these paintings, but now there is only one, the other having been stolen from the owner in Spain has never been found.

After leaving the older section of Havana, we drove down where the wealthy people of Cuba live. Many of the houses resemble old Roman palaces with their many, many columns and lengthy porches. Marble is used a great deal. This afternoon we went to the Capitol. It is the most beautiful building I have ever seen. All the floors, walls and stairs are of marble, much of it being black marble, the costliest there is. Some of the marble is from Georgia, but most of it is from Italy. The reception room is the most gorgeous of all. Large marble columns line each side. Near the entrance to the room stands a huge statue of the Republic of Cuba. Our guide secured a pass for us to enter. The guards at the entrance spoke very little English, but he knew what we wanted to see. The pass spoke for us.

After leaving the Capitol, we went across the harbor to Morro Castle and the Cabanas. Our guide kindly conducted us thru his long tunnel, where we saw some of the old dungeons. The castle is now used as a training school for cadets. We went upon the wall from which in the old days prisoners were thrown to the sharks below. This place is called the Shark's Net. Other places of torture were the deep wells, execution rooms, and almost airless dungeons.

Quite a contrast to Morro Castle and the Cabanas were the tropical gardens that contain every plant that will grow in the tropics, I suppose. We saw palm of all kinds, rubber and almond trees, poinsettia trees, and flowers of so many colors that I cannot even begin to name them. In this garden beer is served free. It is about the best that I have ever tasted, but that is not saying much, for I have never been able to like beer.

Later we drove out Fifth Avenue where there are many lovely homes. One place that was especially interesting had a Roman garden. Another place was the home of the president of the Tropical Beer Company. The floor of one room is of mother of pearl. I know that this may sound untrue, but we saw it nevertheless. We drove out by the golf links, the Havana Yacht Club, and the National Club, which is open only to the winter. Cuba is indeed, the Antilles, and "the loveliest land that human eyes have ever seen," as Columbus said. We are going to a theatre this evening and then to a cabaret.

I hope you have a nice group of students this summer, and that they are not causing you much trouble. Our return trip will be through Georgia, Alabama, and Mississippi, and then TEXAS. I shall be happy to get home. With best regards,

In Classical Program

The performers were: Markwood Holmes, violinist; Raymond Staal, "cellist"; Alberts Boehm, pianist; Ronald and Soprano; and Helen Burwell, premiere Damesse.

The program was opened with "Finale from 'Les Maitres Chanteurs' by the Trio which was followed immediately by "Introduction and Rondo Capriccioso" by St. Saens, played as a solo solo by Mr. Holmes, "Ah, l'oiseau" sung by Mrs. Carr, and the Trio "The Wives of Strindberg" by Mendelssohn and "Opus Rondino" by Haydn, Part One of the program was then terminated by Miss Burwell who sang "Oriental" and "Cocacina Dance" by Coli-Poppilov-Ivanov.

Part two of the entertainment was then opened by "Sonata in F# minor" by Chopin, "The Swan" by Saint-Saens which was given by the Trio, "Two Yello Selections" from "Sonata in G minor" by Handel and "Allegro Appassionato" by St. Saens, were given by Mr. Staal, "The Maid" by Debuss was the dance by Miss Burwell, after which Miss Carr sang "Bridal" by Sellen, "Lover's Trees" by Peet, and "Spring Fand" by Demaree.
